Bob Kennedy Warns Reds On Defiance

Says U.S. Action Due If Court's Ruling Disobeyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy Saturday told the American Communist party in effect it cannot win in its announced plan to defy the Supreme Court of the United States.

The court, in an historic decision last Monday, ruled the party must register with the Justice Department as a foreign-dominated and foreign-financed group, and disclose its membership rolls.

PUNISHABLE CRIME

At the same time, the court held that membership in the party — with knowledge of its aim of violent overthrow of the government and active participation in that aim — is a punishable crime.

Gus Hall, the party's general secretary, formally announced in New York two days ago the party will not comply in any way with the registration order, which he described as a form of "suicide," which would subject the registered membership lists to possible prosecution under the individual membership decision.

Atty. Gen. Kennedy held a press briefing on the decision in which he said his department is prepared to take every necessary step required to bring about Communist party compliance with the Supreme Court order.

He made public a prospective timetable for these actions and in answers to questions made these salient points:

The party can register as ordered and so continue as a legal entity in this country.

If it refuses to register, it will face criminal prosecution and the imposition of fines of $10,000 a day for each day of failure to register — a process which he conceded probably would quickly bankrupt the party.

The penalties for a failure to comply with the Supreme Court order might also involve the same kind of fine and five years imprisonment for party leaders, which well might make the organization an impotent shell.

Kennedy made it clear that in

Army Uses Tear Gas In Recife

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —Army troops fired tear gas at student strikers in Communist-infested Recife Saturday as two navy destroyers steamed toward the northeastern port with marines aboard.

The Navy Ministry said the cruiser Tamandare was ordered to start the 1,000-mile journey to Recife Sunday. Army, navy and air force units already are on duty there and a battalion of infantry was airlifted in Friday.

President Janio Quadros' government emphasized the ships were proceeding to Recife with "all possible urgency" but only as a "preventive measure."

Pro-Communist and pro-Cuban sentiment is strong in the poverty-stricken northeastern area and officials apparently fear the student strike could set off an explosion.

The students struck May 31 demanding dismissal of a dean who banned an address by Celia Guevara, mother of Cuban economic boss Ernesto Guevara.

Army units had permitted students to peacefully demonstate in the streets until Saturday, when they used tear gas to break up crowds. No injuries were reported. It was the first clash between troops and students since the strike began.

There were indications in news dispatches from Recife and the capital of Brasilia that Communists were taking part in the strike but so far as was known did not have an upper hand.

Fatal Shooting Charges Filed

Di Pietro, 43, was charged with shooting Lynn Shipp, 31, Bogalusa businessman, in the head three times on June 5.

The sheriff said he was convinced Shipp was shot in the sparsely settled Mitch area, four miles north of Bogalusa, and that the victim was brought to town in a truck.

Di Pietro came in to Bogalusa with a bullet wound in the leg that day. He walked into a Negro cleaning establishment and said he and Shipp were shot by a Negro. The sheriff said di Pietro changed his statement later.

THIS GASOLINE TANKER caught fire and exploded Saturday when it skidded and the front end of the two-tank truck upset on a turn in the Anthony Wayne Trail. Gasoline was sprayed on the houses at right, which caught afire. At least 65 persons were injured. (AP Wirephoto)

Relief Units Aid In Storm Razed Town

RAVENNA, y. (AP) — Relief units started this tornado-shocked railroad town toward recovery Saturday after a storm that swept through several business and residential blocks, injured more than 50 persons and left 30 or more families homeless.

"They all must have made out all right," said Mayor Millard Webb. He explained there had been no need to set up public shelter after the tornado late Friday. "Thy all skedaddled out of here some place last night," he added.

ONE DEATH

The only death occurred 25 miles away at Belle Point in adjoining Lee County. A heavy timber from a partly constructed church fell on Valerie Hope Collins, 9, who was visiting her grandfather. She is from Newport, Ky.

"Our people are out of the panicky stage now," Webb commented. "The people are settled down. We're getting a lot of help."

The Red Cross and Civil Defense units pitched in to aid. The big task was clearing debris and guarding stores and houses, many of them open, until the furnishing could be moved to warehouses for storage. Damage exceeded $1 million.

The town water supply was normal. Communications were limited. There was no electric power except from portable generators.

Businessman Guy Hatfield told interviewers he had just invited a passerby into his clothing store when the tornado hit.

"I looked toward the front and the rain was coming in sheets parallel to the ground. I told the

65 Are Injured By Giant Blast

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A gasoline tank truck overturned and exploded on the edge of the downtown district Saturday, injuring at least 65 persons—about half of them children. Several nearby homes were set afire and two were destroyed.

The giant blast injured persons two blocks away. The most critically injured were firemen attempting to extinguish the burning truck when it exploded.

"As soon as we put water on it (the truck), it exploded," said Fire Chief Arnold Papenhagen.

"The whole 600 block of Vinton Street was a solid sheet of fire," said one witness. At least nine houses on that street were set afire.

"One fireman came running out of the smoke with his clothing on fire," said Mrs. Philip G. Lopez who lives near by.

"He fell down on the grass and another fireman put out the flames," she said. "There were people lying all over the grass."

The injured included 10 firemen and two policemen. Most of the rest were bystanders, including Mrs. Lopez' son, Ricky, 9. Eight city hospitals treated the injured.

The truck driver, Edward Baum, of nearby Swanton, was in serious condition at St. Vincent Hospital. Police said Baum was in shock and was unable to give them details of the crash.

The Standard Oil of Ohio tanker truck skidded on a turn from the Anthony Wayne Trail near the downtown area. The two-tank vehicle jack knifed and the front tank overturned. The cab ended up between the two tanks.

Among the severely injured were Fire Capt. Tom Alfieri, Police Albert Bernhagen and firemen Bill Jensen, Robert Harrison and Glen Carter.

One of the youngsters injured was Frank Dailey, 12, who said the explosion knocked him out of a tree where he was building a treehouse.

Leonal Muniz, 19, of nearby Swanton, was a block away from the blast repairing his automobile. He was underneath the auto and his clothes were set afire by the flaming gasoline which spilled into the streets.

Echo Shrinks, Still Brightest Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP)—Echo I, the star-like balloon satellite, has shrunk to two-thirds its original size and has wrinkled from a sphere into the elongated shape of a prune.

But the huge aluminum-coated plastic ball still is sufficiently rounded to reflect faithfully many of the radio signals bounced up against it.

And it still is the brightest and shiniest object that can be seen every night, from some part of the earth, moving serenely across the sky.

Watchers in the southern part of the United States in recent weeks, in fact, have described the satellite as unusually bright.

Not so, says the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which launched the 136-pound, 100-foot-diameter sphere into orbit last Aug. 12. Probably the southern sky is clearer with the better weather of spring.

If anything, says NASA, echo should be dimming as she ages.

A spokesman said radar measurements indicate that the satellite is now only about 70 feet in diameter.

Furthermore, its skin has wrinkled along the 84 gores of material from which it was fabricated.

The Smithsonian Institution's astrophysical laboratory has estimated that the satellite will become caught in the earth's atmosphere and destroyed either next April, or in July, 1963, or in May, 1964.

Those are the periods of Echo's lowest perigees, or closest approaches to the earth. Laboratory

Jackson Jail Admits Six More Riders

Increases Arrest Total To 104 In Mississippi City

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A group of six more "Freedom Riders" rolled into the Greyhound Bus Terminal late Saturday boosting the total number of riders arriving to 104.

Previously, 98 others had been jailed and convicted on breach of peace charges stemming from failure to obey an officers' command to move on in Jackson bus, train and air terminals since May 24.

ALL ARRESTED

Capt. J. L. Ray arrested the six after they left the bus and went directly to the restaurant counter. Four whites and one Negro were seated and another Negro was standing nearby at the time of the arrest.

Ray told the group to "move on." He then asked if they heard his command. They nodded and he said, "You are under arrest."

The six arrested were Daniel Horne and Noel Woods, both from Chicago; Stephen Green, Rye, N.Y.; Richard Griswold, Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Mrs. Katherine Pleune and Miss Leora Berman, both of Chicago. Horne and Woods are the Negroes.

Broken Dam Problem In Saturn Test

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Dr. Wehrner Von Braun is confident that the Saturn rocket booster can be moved around a broken section of dam on the Tennessee River. The question is, what's the best way to do it.

Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, said Saturday the the Saturn will be delivered to Cape Canaveral for testing on schedule.

The hitch developed when the Wheeler Lock on the Tennessee River was damaged in an accident. Plans originally were to transport the Saturn booster on a barge through the Wheeler locks to the Cape.

Since it will take several months to repair the lock, for a time it appeared that the Saturn testing schedule would be delayed.

But Von Braun said it is now only a question of the "most reliable, easiest and least expensive means" of going around the damaged lock.

He said the booster can be taken by barge as far as the lock, and then transported on an existing road around the lock to another barge. Or he said it can be trucked to Florence, below the dam, and taken by barge from there.

In the first choice, temporary loading and unloading levels would be needed at the river. On the second choice, extensive relocation and elevation of utility lines would be required on about 50 miles of road. Von Braun said the first choice seems the most feasible at present.

Thunderstorms Hit Some Areas

By United Press International

Dark thunderheads brought hail, high winds and traffic halting rains to the eastern quarter of the nation Saturday, while funnel shaped clouds dropped down in the west and southwest.

High winds and ½ inch hailstones battered Ulster and Greene counties in New York's Hudson Valley. Electrical power failed several times at Saugerties, N.Y., and driving sheets of rain stopped expressway traffic.

Washington, D.C.'s, national airport measured more than an inch of rain and locally heavy showers soaked the Albany and Binghamton, N.Y., areas.

Hopes Faint For Missing U.S. Airmen

TOKYO (AP)—Aircraft wreckage and clothing were recovered in the Pacific early Sunday in an area where a U. S. Air Force C133 Cargomaster was believed to have crashed Saturday. An air and sea search for the eight missing crewmen continued.

An Air Force spokesman said a Navy destroyer picked up the wreckage and clothing 115 miles east of the Japanese coast.

FROM AIRCRAFT

The Air Force declined to make positive identification, saying only the recovered material was identified as "definitely coming from an aircraft."

The finding was on the 2,250-mile route the C133 was to take from Tachikawa Air Force Base to Midway Island, first stop for the California-bound, four-engine turboprop plane.

Thirty planes, U. S. Navy ships and Japanese coast guard and shipping vessels searched for the crewmen.

Carrying 47,000 pounds of cargo, the plane had reported 16 minutes after takeoff but was not heard from again. It had a 10-hour fuel supply.

The Air Force has identified the missing crewmen as:

Lt. Nathan L. Patterson, 27, instructor-navigator, Travis. His home town is Elfrieda, Ariz.

Sgt. Oral G. Converse, 34, flight engineer's instructor, Winters, Calif. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Converse, live in South Haven, Minn.

Sgt. Howard . Otero, 42, flight engineer, Vallejo, Calif.

Sgt. Billy R. Edwards, 33, loadmaster, Fairfield, Calif. His mother, Bertie Edwards, lives in Ceres, Calif.

London Is Getting Giant-Sized Worm

NEW YORK (AP) — London is getting the worm, Omaha is getting the birds, and Marte Latham is getting her bedroom back.

Gertrude, a 5-foot earth worm, left for London Saturday night as a gift to the Royal Zoological Society that will classify and house her.

Mrs. Latham, a professional collector of rare animals, captured Gertrude, Tony and Oscar on a recent trip to Columbia.

Gertrude is the only giant prehistoric-type animal ever caught and kept alive in civilization, according to Mrs. Latham.

The worm can expand her thin brown body to five feet or contract it to two feet. She weighs only about a pound and is so delicate that the slightest bump or temperature change causes her body to disintegrate.

So Gertrude reclined in the air-conditioned bedroom of a fashionable East Side hotel suite, and Mrs. Latham slept on the living room floor because the air conditioning at 40 degrees was too cool.

Oscar the owl lived in the kitchen and Tony the eagle preferred the bathroom. A waiter from a well-known steak house brought Oscar's and Tony's dinner up on a tray. Gertrude eats dirt. She likes dirt.

Actually, Gertrude lives in a big box filled with earth and newspaper strips, topped by ice cubes to keep the soil damp and cool.

Bastrop Judge Edges Lassiter; No Opponent Yet

By WILEY HILBURN JR.
World Staff Writer

Thirty-seven-year-old Bastrop City Judge Mack E. Barham, piling up a better than four to one margin on his home ground of Morehouse Parish, apparently defeated Monroe District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter Saturday in a close Democratic Primary election for the Fourth Judicial Judgeship.

With all precincts from Ouachita and Morehouse parishes except two from Calhoun reporting, the unofficial vote was:

Barham, 7,017; Lassiter 6,042. Ouachita Parish returns, complete except for two boxes in Calhoun, gave Lassiter 5,539; Barham, 4,099. Complete unofficial returns from Morehouse Parish gave Barham 2,918; Lassiter, 503.

HEAVY LEAD

Although trailing in all Ouachita precincts except seven, Judge Barham built up an insurmountable lead in Morehouse and pressed Lassiter closely in many Ouachita boxes.

Ouachita Parish turnout was light, with 9,638 voters of a registered 24,793 total casting their ballots. Of a total of 4,676 registered in Morehouse, 3,421 voted.

The victorious Barham, on the Bastrop city bench for the past 12 years, said late tonight he felt "like he was climbing a hill all the way but made it not alone, but with the help of so many friends and others."

Democratic nomination in the voting area, Ouachita and Morehouse parishes is tatamount to election. Republican or independent candidates have 20 days to qualify for a general election.

Barham will serve for five years, completing the six-year term of the late Judge David I. Garrett.

The city judge campaigned on a platform of experience, calling for "fearless and impartial justice." Both candidates had ex-

BASTROP (Special) — Three children drowned in Bayou Bartholomew near here last night when the boat in which they were riding with their parents hit a log and they were believed thrown into the water.

The youngsters, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Eugene Heckford of Bastrop, were Marsha Ann, 7, William, 5, and Keith, 3.

Keith's body was recovered last night and authorities were continuing the search for the other two. The accident occurred about 8:30 p.m.

Circumstances surrounding the accident were not available last night, but reports said the boat in which the family was riding struck a log in Bayou Bartholomew on the Wardville Road.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night for Keith.

Hopes Rise On Resuming Laos Talks

Harriman Still Optimistic Over Peace Agreement

GENEVA (AP) — New hope that the stalled international conference on Laos will get started again was reported Saturday in U.S. and Communist camps.

W. Averell Harriman, chief U.S. delegate to the conference, was reported optimistic about chances of reaching agreement with the Soviet Union on peace in Laos.

TALK OPTIMISTIC

Soviet bloc sources talked optimistically about arranging another meeting of the 14-nation conference, which has not met since Tuesday, and getting a true cease-fire.

A high American source said Harriman, who talked for an hour Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, based his optimism on this estimate of the situation:

1. The pro-Western forces of Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, retreating in Laos a month ago, have regrouped and grown stronger. The over-all military picture is better.

2. No major cease-fire violations have been reported since Wednesday, when pro-Communist rebels won a victory at Padong, near their capital of Xieng Khouang.

3. Neutral truce teams are taking new initiatives to get to trouble spots and enforce the cease-fire. They need cooperation from the Laotian factions, most of whose leaders are in Geneva or nearby where they can be influ-

ALL ARRESTED

Capt. J. L. Ray arrested the six after they left the bus and went directly to the restaurant counter. Four whites and one Negro were seated and another Negro was standing nearby at the time of the arrest.

Ray told the group to "move on." He then asked if they heard his command. They nodded and he said, "You are under arrest."

The six arrested were Daniel Horne and Noel Woods, both from Chicago; Stephen Green, Rye, N.Y.; Richard Griswold, Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Mrs. Katherine Pleune and Miss Leora Berman, both of Chicago. Horne and Woods are the Negroes.

Broken Dam Problem In Saturn Test

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Dr. Wehrner Von Braun is confident that the Saturn rocket booster can be moved around a broken section of dam on the Tennessee River. The question is, what's the best way to do it.

Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, said Saturday the the Saturn will be delivered to Cape Canaveral for testing on schedule.

The hitch developed when the Wheeler Lock on the Tennessee River was damaged in an accident. Plans originally were to transport the Saturn booster on a barge through the Wheeler locks to the Cape.

Since it will take several months to repair the lock, for a time it appeared that the Saturn testing schedule would be delayed.

But Von Braun said it is now only a question of the "most reliable, easiest and least expensive means" of going around the damaged lock.

He said the booster can be taken by barge as far as the lock, and then transported on an existing road around the lock to another barge. Or he said it can be trucked to Florence, below the dam, and taken by barge from there.

In the first choice, temporary loading and unloading levels would be needed at the river. On the second choice, extensive relocation and elevation of utility lines would be required on about 50 miles of road. Von Braun said the first choice seems the most feasible at present.

Thunderstorms Hit Some Areas

By United Press International

Dark thunderheads brought hail, high winds and traffic halting rains to the eastern quarter of the nation Saturday, while funnel shaped clouds dropped down in the west and southwest.

High winds and ½ inch hailstones battered Ulster and Greene counties in New York's Hudson Valley. Electrical power failed several times at Saugerties, N.Y., and driving sheets of rain stopped expressway traffic.

Washington, D.C.'s, national airport measured more than an inch of rain and locally heavy showers soaked the Albany and Binghamton, N.Y., areas.

Partly Cloudy, Warm Expected

The same goes for Monday. Today's expected high reading will range between 86 and 92 degrees—not much change from Saturday's readings.

The low tonight will be near 70.

Saturday's top temperature mark was 91, a little cooler than Friday's 96-degree high. The low in the Twin Cities, as recorded by Federal Aviation at Selman Field, was 70.

Hopes Faint For Missing U.S. Airmen

TOKYO (AP)—Aircraft wreckage and clothing were recovered in the Pacific early Sunday in an area where a U. S. Air Force C133 Cargomaster was believed to have crashed Saturday. An air and sea search for the eight missing crewmen continued.

An Air Force spokesman said a Navy destroyer picked up the wreckage and clothing 115 miles east of the Japanese coast.

FROM AIRCRAFT

The Air Force declined to make positive identification, saying only the recovered material was identified as "definitely coming from an aircraft."

The finding was on the 2,250-mile route the C133 was to take from Tachikawa Air Force Base to Midway Island, first stop for the California-bound, four-engine turboprop plane.

Thirty planes, U. S. Navy ships and Japanese coast guard and shipping vessels searched for the crewmen.

Carrying 47,000 pounds of cargo, the plane had reported 16 minutes after takeoff but was not heard from again. It had a 10-hour fuel supply.

The Air Force has identified the missing crewmen as:

Lt. Nathan L. Patterson, 27, instructor-navigator, Travis. His home town is Elfrieda, Ariz.

Sgt. Oral G. Converse, 34, flight engineer's instructor, Winters, Calif. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Converse, live in South Haven, Minn.

Sgt. Howard . Otero, 42, flight engineer, Vallejo, Calif.

Sgt. Billy R. Edwards, 33, loadmaster, Fairfield, Calif. His mother, Bertie Edwards, lives in Ceres, Calif.

Bastrop Judge Edges Lassiter; No Opponent Yet

By WILEY HILBURN JR.
World Staff Writer

Thirty-seven-year-old Bastrop City Judge Mack E. Barham, piling up a better than four to one margin on his home ground of Morehouse Parish, apparently defeated Monroe District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter Saturday in a close Democratic Primary election for the Fourth Judicial Judgeship.

With all precincts from Ouachita and Morehouse parishes except two from Calhoun reporting, the unofficial vote was:

Barham, 7,017; Lassiter 6,042. Ouachita Parish returns, complete except for two boxes in Calhoun, gave Lassiter 5,539; Barham, 4,099. Complete unofficial returns from Morehouse Parish gave Barham 2,918; Lassiter, 503.

HEAVY LEAD

Although trailing in all Ouachita precincts except seven, Judge Barham built up an insurmountable lead in Morehouse and pressed Lassiter closely in many Ouachita boxes.

Ouachita Parish turnout was light, with 9,638 voters of a registered 24,793 total casting their ballots. Of a total of 4,876 registered in Morehouse, 3,421 voted.

The victorious Barham, on the Bastrop city bench for the past 12 years, said late tonight he felt "like he was climbing a hill all the way but made it not alone, but with the help of so many friends and others."

Democratic nomination in the voting area, Ouachita and Morehouse parishes is tatamount to election. Republican or independent candidates have 20 days to qualify for a general election.

Barham will serve for five years, completing the six-year term of the late Judge David I. Garrett.

The city judge campaigned on a platform of experience, calling for "fearless and impartial justice." Both candidates had ex-

3 Bastrop Children Drowned

BASTROP (Special) — Three children drowned in Bayou Bartholomew near here last night when the boat in which they were riding with their parents hit a log and they were believed thrown into the water.

The youngsters, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Eugene Heckford of Bastrop, were Marsha Ann, 7, William, 5, and Keith, 3.

Keith's body was recovered last night and authorities were continuing the search for the other two. The accident occurred about 8:30 p.m.

Circumstances surrounding the accident were not available last night, but reports said the boat in which the family was riding struck a log in Bayou Bartholomew on the Wardville Road.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night for Keith.

RARE SPECIMEN

London Is Getting Giant-Sized Worm

NEW YORK (AP) — London is getting the worm, Omaha is getting the birds, and Marte Latham is getting her bedroom back.

Gertrude, a 5-foot earth worm, left for London Saturday night as a gift to the Royal Zoological Society that will classify and house her.

Mrs. Latham, a professional collector of rare animals, captured Gertrude, Tony and Oscar on a recent trip to Columbia.

Gertrude is the only giant prehistoric-type animal ever caught and kept alive in civilization, according to Mrs. Latham.

The worm can expand her thin brown body to five feet or contract it to two feet. She weighs only about a pound and is so delicate that the slightest bump or temperature change causes her body to disintegrate.

So Gertrude reclined in the air-conditioned bedroom of a fashionable East Side hotel suite, and Mrs. Latham slept on the living room floor because the air conditioning at 40 degrees was too cool.

Oscar the owl lived in the kitchen and Tony the eagle preferred the bathroom. A waiter from a well-known steak house brought Oscar's and Tony's dinner up on a tray. Gertrude eats dirt. She likes dirt.

Actually, Gertrude lives in a big box filled with earth and newspaper strips, topped by ice cubes to keep the soil damp and cool.

Mrs. Latham, 37, a mother of two children, has donated Ger-

Hopes Rise On Resuming Laos Talks

Harriman Still Optimistic Over Peace Agreement

GENEVA (AP) — New hope that the stalled international conference on Laos will get started again was reported Saturday in U.S. and Communist camps.

W. Averell Harriman, chief U.S. delegate to the conference, was reported optimistic about chances of reaching agreement with the Soviet Union on peace in Laos.

TALK OPTIMISTIC

Soviet bloc sources talked optimistically about arranging another meeting of the 14-nation conference, which has not met since Tuesday, and getting a true cease-fire.

A high American source said Harriman, who talked for an hour Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, based his optimism on this estimate of the situation:

1. The pro-Western forces of Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, retreating in Laos a month ago, have regrouped and grown stronger. The over-all military picture is better.

2. No major cease-fire violations have been reported since Wednesday, when pro-Communist rebels won a victory at Padong, near their capital of Xieng Khouang.

3. Neutral truce teams are taking new initiatives to get to trouble spots and enforce the cease-fire. They need cooperation from the Laotian factions, most of whose leaders are in Geneva or nearby where they can be influ-

Officer Drags Man From Fire

Policemen are never off duty—as was proved last night when Monroe Police Capt. J. E. McMullen dragged a man from a smoking room to safety.

Cecil Eugene Cullipher, 25 of 2301 South Grand St., was hospitalized last night with superficial burns after he was overcome by smoke in his back bedroom apartment around 10:45.

Firemen and policemen quickly applied oxygen to Cullipher who was at first believed to be dead but proved to be overcome by smoke.

The fire in the back bedroom of Cullipher's apartment where he was staying with his grandmother was coming from a mattress. Firemen pulled the mattress out the blaze and containing it to the single room. Chief Reilly said there was little damage done to the building.

According to Capt. McMullen, he was on his way home from work after getting off at 10 p.m. As he passed the apartment building where Cullipher was living, his sister in the truck with him sais she heard someone hollering.

McMullen parked his truck and ran back to the front hallway of the apartment house. Cullipher's grandmother, a wheel chair invalid, told him that her grandson was in the back bedroom overcome with smoke.

Cullipher's father, Jimmy Cullipher, is employed with the Department of Public Safety, Driver's License Division at Selman Field.

Cause of the fire was undetermined last night.

The victim was identified as Thomas Sanders, 18, who moved three weeks ago to Langdale, Ala. from Columbus, Ga., with his mother, Mrs. Wendell D. Pope.

The youth's father, Gene Sanders, was reported to be a Columbus resident.

A companion, identified by police as Billy Richardson, also of Langdale, said young Sanders could not swim and thought he would be able to wade the entire distance.

Girl Identifies Man As Slayer Of Boy Friend

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)— A Phi Beta Kappa university graduate was arraigned on a murder charge Saturday after his former sweetheart identified him as the slayer of her new boyfriend.

Police said Ronald M. Stump, 22, Keokuk, showed no emotion when Miss Leanna Skultety, 21, identified him as the slayer.

Stump, a psychology graduate last February from the University of Iowa, has maintained he is a "victim of circumstances."

He is accused of slaying Michael Daly, 22 of Des Mones.

Stump was given until Monday to enter a plea to the murder charge and was held in jail without bond.

Daly was shot three times at point blank range by a gunman who pulled up behind a car he and Miss Skultety were riding in. The gunman fired once at the girl, a coed at Drake University, but missed.

his view the party has had about all of the constitutionally guaranteed "due process of law" in connection with the registration issue, since that issue involved some 10 years of litigation after passage of the 1950 Internal Security Act.

The Subversive Activities Control Board held that under the Internal Security Act American communism is simply a tool of international communism with headquarters in the Soviet Union. Referring to the board's finding, Kennedy said:

"The control of the Communist party in the United States is no longer a matter of charges and accusations, but a matter of judicial finding. The Communist party of the United States has had its day and in fact, its years in court."

Kennedy said his department had information that the leaders of the 10,000-member party held a special meeting last week to organize a worldwide campaign to stir up sentiment against the Supreme Court decision.

Assuming that the Supreme Court will not grant a further hearing in the registration case, Kennedy said the registration order is due to come down June 30, and that the Subversive Activities Control Board long-standing order for registration will become final July 10.

He said the party will then have 30 days until Aug. 9, to carry out the registration, listing the names of officers and members, with addresses, and aliases, if any, along with a complete accounting of party finances, and other data on activities.

Under the 1950 act, if the party does not register by Aug. 9, the responsibility for registration will fall on individual party officers, who must come forward within 10 days. If they fail to do so, party members will be required to register individually within the following 60 days.

Soviet Proposes Germany Treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev proposed to President Kennedy in Vienna an immediate peace conference over Germany, it was disclosed by Tass news agency Sunday.

This conference would write a peace treaty to fix Germany's irrevocable borders, make West Berlin a demilitarized free city, end the Allied occupation of Berlin and turn over control of its lifelines to the East German Communists.

If the Allies were not ready to do this he offered an "interim solution," by which the two German states would be given six months in which to get together and themselves work out a solution that would be the basis of a treaty.

The Soviet Union and the Western powers would agree beforehand to accept whatever agreement the Germans made.

All this was contained in a memorandum on the German question which Khrushchev handed to Kennedy in Vienna last weekend.

It set a new Soviet timetable for the German question that headed off any showdown over Berlin until the end of this year.

Tass said it was making both memos public because a number of foreign news reports about them had contained inaccuracies and distortions.

Khrushchev's memorandum on Germany made it plain that his main objective remained the same—the elimination of what he called the "cancerous growth" of West Berlin and the boosting of his East German satellite to full sovereignty.

He warned that if there was no peace conference and the Germans failed to agree he would go ahead with his long-threatened peace treaty with the East Germans alone.

That would end the occupation status of West Berlin and give the East Germans complete mastery over the access routes to the city.

Khrushchev proposed that if the peace conference could not agree on a single treaty with Germany, then two should be signed—one with West Germany and the other with East Germany.

He said that, as far as the Soviet Union was concerned, West Germany could stay in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and East Germany in the Warsaw defense bloc.

There was a slight hint that if a conference got under way, he might not insist on West Berlin becoming a free, demilitarized city. He said that the Soviet government "at present . . . sees no better solution."

He attacked Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government accusing it of saber-rattling and of attempting to revise the results of the war.

His paper on a nuclear test agreement clung to the same Soviet arguments that have been advanced through so many weary months of negotiations at Geneva.

Khrushchev dwelt at length on the East-West argument over the nature of the control organ to prevent violation of any ban on nuclear testing. This argument has stalled the talks going on for 2½ years in Geneva on a nuclear test-ban treaty.

"It is well known that there are neutral states," Khrushchev wrote. "But there cannot be neutral people." He continued:

"The history of present international relatins knows not a few examples of how one person, who finds himself under the influence of one or another group of states or acts to please them, carried out already agreed decisions incorrectly. That naturally was of advantage only to the group of states this person represented, but led to damage for other states.

"The nomination of one person to put into effect the decisions taken concerning the control, might be considered as a dictatorship or the effort to impose his will."

Khrushchev has developed this theme to support an argument for his "troika" system, a three-man control board with representatives from East, West and neutral blocs on an equal basis.

The West has rejected this proposal as in effect giving the Soviet Union a veto on any decisions of the control organ. According to Soviet proposals these three must take unanimous decisions.

Runaway Flatcar Kills Two

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two trainmen died in the flaming wreckage of their engine cab Friday night when a runaway flatcar hit them as they tried to halt the runaway.

The trainmen had hoped to get in front of the car, accelerate to the same speed, and then ease the lumber-loaded car to a halt.

But it was traveling faster than they thought—an estimated 60 miles an hour—and smashed into the diesel engine while it was still gaining speed.

A switchman jumped from a side ladder an instant before the crash. Lumber from the car's 35-ton load slammed into the engine cab, pinning Frank Teed, 70, and Carl Olsen, 50, in the wreckage.

The wreck caught fire. By the time rescuers were able to get to the cab, both men were dead.

The flatcar broke loose in Sun Valley and rolled onto the Southern Pacific right of way, which is a downgrade from Sun Valley into Los Angeles. Switchmen tried to shunt it onto sidings, but each time it flashed past before the switch could be thrown.

The car had rolled 14 miles when the railroad men tried to get in front of it near the Los Angeles freight yards. A motorcycle officer who paced the car on a parallel road said it was doing 60 m.p.h. minutes before the collision.

Hopes Rise On Resuming Laos Talks

Because of the cease-fire violation at Padong, Western delegates have prevented the conference from meeting. They have been urging stricter instructions for the truce teams, to enable them to go where they please. The Soviets have been blocking this.

Some conference sources think Gromyko returned from Moscow Thursday with authority to make an arrangement for saving face on both sides. This would take the form of putting less emphasis on instructions for the truce teams, and more on getting the Laotians to cooperate.

The Communist nations and the pro-Communist Laotians are wary of giving the truce teams more power. They fear the precedent this would create when it comes to setting up long-term machinery for investigating any future breach of Laotian neutrality.

V. K. Krishna Menon, head of neutral India's delegation, has called for a meeting of the conference Monday. He wants to take up the main problem of creating a peaceful, neutral Laos and disregard the cease-fire issue. This also is the position of the Communist countries.

Lord Home, British foreign secretary, arrives Sunday to talk with Gromyko. Britain and the Soviet Union are cochairmen of the conference.

The Laotian leaders in Europe have been playing a kind of hide and seek. Prince Boun Oum, head of the pro-Western Laotian government is in Nice, on the French Riveria. With him is Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia, who has been trying to sponsor a conference of the three rival Laotian princes.

Boun Oum says he does not want to leave Nice, out of courtesy to Sihanouk. The two other princes, half-brothers Souvanna Phouma and Souphanouvong, are in Geneva. They have been reluctant to go to Nice.

He said that, as far as the Soviet Union was concerned, West Germany could stay in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and East Germany in the Warsaw defense bloc.

There was a slight hint that if a conference got under way, he might not insist on West Berlin becoming a free, demilitarized city. He said that the Soviet government "at present . . . sees no better solution."

He attacked Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government accusing it of saber-rattling and of attempting to revise the results of the war.

His paper on a nuclear test agreement clung to the same Soviet arguments that have been advanced through so many weary months of negotiations at Geneva.

Khrushchev dwelt at length on the East-West argument over the nature of the control organ to prevent violation of any ban on nuclear testing. This argument has stalled the talks going on for 2½ years in Geneva on a nuclear test-ban treaty.

"It is well known that there are neutral states," Khrushchev wrote. "But there cannot be neutral people." He continued:

"The history of present international relatins knows not a few examples of how one person, who finds himself under the influence of one or another group of states or acts to please them, carried out already agreed decisions incorrectly. That naturally was of advantage only to the group of states this person represented, but led to damage for other states.

"The nomination of one person to put into effect the decisions taken concerning the control, might be considered as a dictatorship or the effort to impose his will."

Khrushchev has developed this theme to support an argument for his "troika" system, a three-man control board with representatives from East, West and neutral blocs on an equal basis.

The West has rejected this proposal as in effect giving the Soviet Union a veto on any decisions of the control organ. According to Soviet proposals these three must take unanimous decisions.

Runaway Flatcar Kills Two

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two trainmen died in the flaming wreckage of their engine cab Friday night when a runaway flatcar hit them as they tried to halt the runaway.

The trainmen had hoped to get in front of the car, accelerate to the same speed, and then ease the lumber-loaded car to a halt.

But it was traveling faster than they thought—an estimated 60 miles an hour—and smashed into the diesel engine while it was still gaining speed.

A switchman jumped from a side ladder an instant before the crash. Lumber from the car's 35-ton load slammed into the engine cab, pinning Frank Teed, 70, and Carl Olsen, 50, in the wreckage.

The wreck caught fire. By the time rescuers were able to get to the cab, both men were dead.

The flatcar broke loose in Sun Valley and rolled onto the Southern Pacific right of way, which is a downgrade from Sun Valley into Los Angeles. Switchmen tried to shunt it onto sidings, but each time it flashed past before the switch could be thrown.

The car had rolled 14 miles when the railroad men tried to get in front of it near the Los Angeles freight yards. A motorcycle officer who paced the car on a parallel road said it was doing 60 m.p.h. minutes before the collision.

Hopes Rise On Resuming Laos Talks

Because of the cease-fire violation at Padong, Western delegates have prevented the conference from meeting. They have been urging stricter instructions for the truce teams, to enable them to go where they please. The Soviets have been blocking this.

Some conference sources think Gromyko returned from Moscow Thursday with authority to make an arrangement for saving face on both sides. This would take the form of putting less emphasis on instructions for the truce teams, and more on getting the Laotians to cooperate.

The Communist nations and the pro-Communist Laotians are wary of giving the truce teams more power. They fear the precedent this would create when it comes to setting up long-term machinery for investigating any future breach of Laotian neutrality.

V. K. Krishna Menon, head of neutral India's delegation, has called for a meeting of the conference Monday. He wants to take up the main problem of creating a peaceful, neutral Laos and disregard the cease-fire issue. This also is the position of the Communist countries.

Lord Home, British foreign secretary, arrives Sunday to talk with Gromyko. Britain and the Soviet Union are cochairmen of the conference.

The Laotian leaders in Europe have been playing a kind of hide and seek. Prince Boun Oum, head of the pro-Western Laotian government is in Nice, on the French Riveria. With him is Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia, who has been trying to sponsor a conference of the three rival Laotian princes.

Boun Oum says he does not want to leave Nice, out of courtesy to Sihanouk. The two other princes, half-brothers Souvanna Phouma and Souphanouvong, are in Geneva. They have been reluctant to go to Nice.

Jeff Chandler Has Setback

CULVER CITY, Calif. (UPI)— Actor Jeff Chandler, who has undergone three internal operations in the past month, has developed an infection which has caused a setback in his recovery, his doctor said Saturday.

But the doctor said the 42-year-old he-man actor was "rallying to therapy."

Chandler underwent surgery May 13 to correct a spinal disc ruptured while making a movie in the Philippines. Five days later he was rushed back for internal surgery to stop hemorrhaging.

During the second operation he received a 55-pint blood transfusion and appeared to be recovering, but again on May 27 had to undergo emergency surgery for internal bleeding.

Eichmann Listens Calmly As Witnesses Tell Of Nazi Horrors

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann, 55, whose name means "Man of Oak" in German, is sitting through recital of a procession of horrors blamed largely on him with a remarkable mask of calm.

The former Gestapo officer has given no sign of sharing the deep emotion that has exhausted others in the courtroom during nine weeks of prosecution testimony on the Nazi murder of six million Jews.

The state's case now has consumed 252 hours of testimony since the trial began April 11.

The record, taken in Hebrew and translated into English, German and French, so far runs more than 600,000 words. The state produced 1,400 documents and offered the eyewitness accounts of 109 men and women, most of them Jews who survived the pogrom.

An official reported that the research, legal talent, security arrangements and other aspects of the trial so far have cost Israel the equivalent of $1¼ million. There are few complaints in Israel about the expense.

The daily sessions have been crammed with Jews, most of them living mementos of the death factories. A few spectators lost control as memories of their vanished families returned, shouted at Eichmann and were ejected.

One witness who lived through two years at Auschwitz never got to tell his story because he collapsed on the stand. Another had a slight heart attack just before testifying and had to appear several days later.

So far, 40,000 visitors have attended the trial. Another 50,000 have seen televised transmissions at a specially selected hall.

Of all the witnesses, Israel produced the most — as could be expected—98. There were five from the United States, and one each from Britain, France, Germany, Luxembourg, Brazil and Canada.

The prosecution expects to finish its case Monday. After a week's recess Eichmann is to take the stand as his own star witness.

But the daily courtroom grind—if not its human and moral significance — has begun to affect him. Twice he has had heart flutters. And now, Eichmann is wan and pale, his hands trembling whenever he picks up a document from the foot-high pile he carries with him.

No New Tax Needed Says Senator Long

WASHINGTON (Special) — Sen. Russell B. Long declared Saturday that "no new taxes are needed for the Federal Highway System" and proposed a plan to cut Federal gasoline taxes a penny a gallon.

Long was the lone member of the Senate Finance Committee to vote this week against a new tax package proposed by the administration to keep the Interstate Highway program on schedule.

He said the administration's request for new taxes on tires, tubes, re - tread rubber — as well as retention of the extra cent - a - gallon tax — is not necessary because many taxes on road - related items are "going into the general treasury to support a variety of other projects having nothing to do with highways."

The Louisiana senator said he hoped to offer an amendment whn the tax bill reaches the Senate floor — probably this week— to divert part of the excise tax on automobiles and automobile parts from the treasury's general revenue to the trust fund which provides money for the Interstate Highway program.

He said, "not only will this provide all the money the president is asking to continue the Interstate System and pay for all the other federal roads, but it will mean that no taxes will have to be raised and that the one - cent - a - gallon tax on gasoline can be dropped, according to schedule, this month.

Stevenson Gets Views Of Latins

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson finished the first week of his South American tour Saturday with a fairly clear picture of the south-of-the-border situation he will describe to President Kennedy.

It sums up: Latin-American leaders are ready with varying degrees of enthusiasm, to join in Kennedy's alliance-for-progress program to raise economic standards in the hemisphere. But most are cool to any joint action toward Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba.

The views of Latin America's largest nation still are not fully known, since Stevenson will not see Janio Quadros, Brazil's independent-minded new president, until Sunday. They will meet in a suburb of Sao Paulo.

U.S. EMPLOYE MISSING

Officials Discount Defection By Clerk

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 28-year-old employe of the super-secret National Security Agency was missing Saturday but officials discounted any idea that he has defected to the Communists.

William Hyter Covington vanished early last week and was the object of a widespread search Saturday. An employe of the Defense Department for five years, he held a $6,600-a-year job in which he was reported to have limited access to secret information.

Urgency of the search was heightened by the fact that last summer two NSA code clerks—both considerably higher on the employment scale — disappeared and later turned up in Moscow. These men, Bernon F. Mitchell and William H. Martin both have been serving as Soviet propagandists since their defection.

The NSA is engaged in around-the-clock monitoring of electronic communications. Its activities are so secret that its employes are not supposed to tell friends where they work.

The Defense Department, which operates NSA, said Covington returned to work May 31 after a two-month absence following an operation. He asked to get off June 2 saying he needed further medical treatment and has not reported for work since.

As nearly as officials could determine, Covington left his home in nearby Laurel, Md. on Tuesday. His wife reported him miss-in Wednesday. Covington was reported seen at the Charles Town, W. Va., race track and at Arlington, Va., across the Potomac from Washington. He was said to have cashed a check for $120 before his disappearance. Also missing is his automobile, a 1958 olive-green Plymouth bearing Maryland license FF1347.

The Pentagon said Covington graduated from high school at Winchester, Va., in 1951, served in the Army as a radio operator from September 1952 to September 1955. He was employed by NSA in January 1956.

He is the father of two children, one two months old and one three years.

Police Seeking Slayer Of Boy

NEW YORK (AP) — Police Saturday sought a man with receding grey hair for questioning about the killing of Jose Vasquez, 7, whose nude body was found on a tenement roof.

An autopsy showed the little boy had been sexually assaulted and stabbed seven times—five times in the back from the neck down and twice in the chest.

A man and woman, whose identities were withheld, told of seeing the man on the roof with the boy. They said the man wore a grey suit.

Meanwhile, known degenerates were rounded up for questioning about the slaying, which occurred Friday.

SEEK MISSING ROCKET

JODRELL BANK, England (AP)—Two Soviet space scientists started work Saturday at Jodrell Bank Observatory, searching for the Soviet Union's missing rocket to Venus. Prof. Anna Masevitch and a Dr. Khodarev sifted through tape recordings of signals picked up by Jodrell Bank's huge radio telescope. The rocket is thought to have traveled about 62 million miles since it was launched Feb. 12. Its radio went silent soon after launching, but Jodrell picked up some signals May 30 on a frequency the rocket had used.

Greeks, Pelican Mascot Greet Mrs. Kennedy

MYKONOS ISLAND, Greece (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy met the mascot of Mykonos, a yellow-billed pelican named Pedro, as 500 excited Greeks applauded her arrival Saturday night.

Mrs. Kennedy spotted the haughty, ungainly looking bird as she approached the dock in a white speedboat from the yacht North Wind, which had dropped anchor nearby.

When she stepped ashore, the bird waddled unafraid amid the crowd of photographers that gathered about her. Mrs. Kennedy stroked the bird's long beak.

Mrs. Kennedy, looking tanned and rested after three days of cruising the Aegean, spent the day swimming and visiting ruins on the nearby island of Delos.

Admiral Hits Carrier Work

BRIDGETON, N.J. (AP)—Vice Adm. Wallace M. Beakley of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, said Friday night that the super aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk was badly built.

The carrier was constructed at the New York Shipbuilding Corp. yards in Camden and now is at the Philadelphia Navy Base for outfitting before it starts sea duty.

Clair Helmer, executive vice president of the shipbuilding concern, a subsidiary of Merritt Champman and Scott, denied the admiral's allegations. He noted the ship had passed both builder's and Navy sea trials and had been accepted and commissioned by the Navy. He asserted "We have no indication that the Navy is displeased."

Beakley's statement was made in a talk to the local Kiwanis Club.

He said the Kitty Hawk, a $250 million vessel, was "dragged out" of the Camden shipyard ahead of schedule and taken to the naval base for completion, including some rebuilding.

In his address, Beakley said: "South Jersey shipbuilders did a bad piece of workmanship. The construction was extremely poor. South Jersey shipbuilders have pulled themselves out of a very good source of income."

He said New York Ship, one of the major shipbuilders in the nation, had lost $22 million on the contract. Helmer denied this also and said he and other officials of the firm were awaiting an official explanation of Beakley's remarks from the Navy Department.

Admiral Hits Carrier Work

BRIDGETON, N.J. (AP)—Vice Adm. Wallace M. Beakley of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, said Friday night that the super aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk was badly built.

The carrier was constructed at the New York Shipbuilding Corp. yards in Camden and now is at the Philadelphia Navy Base for outfitting before it starts sea duty.

Clair Helmer, executive vice president of the shipbuilding concern, a subsidiary of Merritt Champman and Scott, denied the admiral's allegations. He noted the ship had passed both builder's and Navy sea trials and had been accepted and commissioned by the Navy. He asserted "We have no indication that the Navy is displeased."

Beakley's statement was made in a talk to the local Kiwanis Club.

He said the Kitty Hawk, a $250 million vessel, was "dragged out" of the Camden shipyard ahead of schedule and taken to the naval base for completion, including some rebuilding.

In his address, Beakley said: "South Jersey shipbuilders did a bad piece of workmanship. The construction was extremely poor. South Jersey shipbuilders have pulled themselves out of a very good source of income."

He said New York Ship, one of the major shipbuilders in the nation, had lost $22 million on the contract. Helmer denied this also and said he and other officials of the firm were awaiting an official explanation of Beakley's remarks from the Navy Department.

Stevenson Gets Views Of Latins

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson finished the first week of his South American tour Saturday with a fairly clear picture of the south-of-the-border situation he will describe to President Kennedy.

It sums up: Latin-American leaders are ready with varying degrees of enthusiasm, to join in Kennedy's alliance-for-progress program to raise economic standards in the hemisphere. But most are cool to any joint action toward Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba.

The views of Latin America's largest nation still are not fully known, since Stevenson will not see Janio Quadros, Brazil's independent-minded new president, until Sunday. They will meet in a suburb of Sao Paulo.

U.S. EMPLOYE MISSING

Officials Discount Defection By Clerk

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 23-year-old employe of the super-secret National Security Agency was missing Saturday but officials discounted any idea that he has defected to the Communists.

William Hyter Covington vanished early last week and was the object of a widespread search Saturday. An employe of the Defense Department for five years, he held a $6,600-a-year job in which he was reported to have limited access to secret information.

Urgency of the search was heightened by the fact that last summer two NSA code clerks—both considerably higher on the employment scale — disappeared and later turned up in Moscow. These men, Bernon F. Mitchell and William H. Martin both have been serving as Soviet propagandists since their defection.

The NSA is engaged in around-the-clock monitoring of electronic communications. Its activities are so secret that its employes are not supposed to tell friends where they work.

The Defense Department, which operates NSA, said Covington returned to work May 31 after a two-month absence following an operation. He asked to get off June 2 saying he needed further medical treatment and has not reported for work since.

As nearly as officials could determine, Covington left his home in nearby Laurel, Md. on Tuesday. His wife reported him missin Wednesday. Covington was reported seen at the Charles Town, W. Va., race track and at Arlington, Va., across the Potomac from Washington. He was said to have cashed a check for $120 before his disappearance. Also missing is his automobile, a 1958 olive-green Plymouth bearing Maryland license FF1347.

The Pentagon said Covington graduated from high school at Winchester, Va., in 1951, served in the Army as a radio operator from September 1952 to September 1955. He was employed by NSA in January 1956.

He is the father of two children, one two months old and one three years.

Playground To Open Monday On School Yards

Playgrounds, sponsored by the Monroe Recreation Department, will open Monday morning at 8:30 for children between the ages of 6 and 15.

Playgrounds will be open Monday through Friday from 8:30 until 11:30 and will be in operation for 8 weeks.

A varied program of handcraft, games, sports, special events, competition, etc. will take place on each playground.

There will be adult leadership on each playground.

No charge is made for any of the activity and parents are urged to send their children to the nearest playground.

Playgrounds will be located at the following schools and places: Lida Benton, Barkdull Faulk, George Breese Manor, Plum Street school, Georgia Tucker, Lexington and Sherrouse for the white children. J. S. Clarks, Lincoln school, Booker T. Texas Ave. Housing Project and the north side of Bernstein Park.

Police Seeking Slayer Of Boy

NEW YORK (AP) — Police Saturday sought a man with receding grey hair for questioning about the killing of Jose Vasquez, 7, whose nude body was found on a tenement roof.

An autopsy showed the little boy had been sexually assaulted and stabbed seven times—five times in the back from the neck down and twice in the chest.

A man and woman, whose identities were withheld, told of seeing the man on the roof with the boy. They said the man wore a grey suit.

Meanwhile, known degenerates were rounded up for questioning about the slaying, which occurred Friday.

SEEK MISSING ROCKET

JODRELL BANK, England (AP)—Two Soviet space scientists started work Saturday at Jodrell Bank Observatory, searching for the Soviet Union's missing rocket to Venus. Prof. Anna Masevitch and a Dr. Khodarev sifted through tape recordings of signals picked up by Jodrell Bank's huge radio telescope. The rocket is thought to have traveled about 62 million miles since it was launched Feb. 12. Its radio went silent soon after launching, but Jodrell picked up some signals May 30 on a frequency the rocket had used.

Judge Barham, who was born in Bastrop and lived there all his life, received his law degree from the L.S.U. Law School in 1946. He married in 1946 the former Ann LeVois of Beaumont, Tex. and is the father of two children.

After practicing law in Bastrop, Barham was elected judge of the Bastrop City Court at the age of 24. Since then, he has been re-elected to two additional terms as city judge and has served the court for over 12 years.

Interested in the youth of his area, Judge Barham has been active in Scouting, serving as chairman of the Northern District Boy Scouts of America and as a member of the board of directors for the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council.

Concerned with the problems of youth, the city judge instituted the first student traffic court in Louisiana in 1953. Barham has also served for the past year as president of the Louisiana Juvenile Court Judges Association and was a delegate to the 1960 White House conference on youth in Washington, D.C.

Barham was elected by the lawyers of Ouachita and Morehouse Parishes to serve as president of the Fourth District Bar Association in 1952. He was also elected by the lawyers to serve on the board of governors of the Louisiana State Bar Association from 1954 to 1956.

Judge Barham is a member of Kiwanis and has served as president of the Bastrop Kiwanis Club. In 1958 he served Kiwanis International as Lt. Governor of Division 6, Louisiana, Mississippi, West Tennessee District.

Lassiter is married and has two sons and one grandson. He has been a resident of Ouachita Parish since 1931 and was educated in the schools of Rapides Parish.

He received a B.A. degree from Tulane University in 1927 and LL.B in 1929. He has been in law practice for about 30 years and is a member of the Fourth Judicial District Bar Association, Louisiana State Bar Association and American Bar Association.

He has lectured since 1955 at the Law School of Northwestern University of Chicago each summer in a special course for prosecuting attorneys from all over the United States and foreign countries.

Lassiter is now serving as vice president of the National District Attorneys Association; as vice chairman of the Salvation Army Board; as special attorney for the Joint Segregation Committee of the Louisiana legislature; as special counsel to the Sovereignty Commission of Louisiana; as a member of the Louisiana Law Institute Advisory Committee on the Code of Criminal Procedure.

He has practiced law in all the courts of Louisiana, including the courts of Appeal and the Supreme Court.

He is and has been District Attorney for Morehouse and Ouachita Parishes since 1954, having had no opposition for the second term of office.

calculations point to mid-1963 as the most likely of the three periods for the end of orbit.

Echo was launched into a nearly circular orbit, 1,000 miles above the earth. The light pressure of sunlight pushed the sphere into an everincreasing eccentricity until last December, when the ball was careening as much as 1,350 miles out into space and back to within 590 miles of the earth.

The next Echo satellite, to be launched about a year hence, will be 20 times more rigid than Echo I. It will be 135 feet in diameter, and will weigh 500 pounds.

In the following year NASA will attempt to launch three such satellites aboard one rocket.

What has Echo I accomplished? NASA says it has proved the feasibility of passive communication satellites, has confirmed theories of radio wave propagation—and it has confirmed theories as to orbital behavior.

London Is Getting Giant-Sized Worm

trude to the London society.

Oscar and Tony will return next week from Omaha where they are appearing with television personality Herb Shriner and will wait for a collector to claim them.

Gertrude's saga started a few weeks ago 15,000 feet up in the Colombian Andes when a native digger, employed by Mrs. Latham, found the worm six feet underground. The worm was packed off to this country.

Customs regulations required changing the Colombian soil for American soil. A similar soil switch last year killed another giant worm captured by Mrs. Latham. But this year, Mrs. Latham devised her own soil, a newspaper, ice cube and air-conditioner recipe which has suited Gertrude just fine.

"Americans showed very little interest in the worm but the British flipped," said Mrs. Latham.

Mrs. Latham, a slender attractive brunette, holds a degree in geography and zoology. She has beaten her way into the Colombin bush a dozen times in as many years in search of rare animals. "I was sick and tired of cocktail parties," she said.

fellows, 'This is it.'

"We threw ourselves on the floor and held onto the furniture. The plaster began to crash. I suppose it was all over in a minute or so.

"I am thankful to be alive," Hatfield added.

Among the injured, only a few were hurt seriously.

Perhaps the hardest hit was the Louisville & Nashville Railroad which estimated damage at $175,000.

Ravenna is about 50 miles southeast of Lexington and 125 miles southeast of Louisville.

Youths May Have Slain Florida Pair

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Sheriff Dale Carson said Saturday he is "pretty well convinced" that two teenagers captured in Utah Saturday killed two women who came here May 29 to play a "dream hunch" at a dog racing track.

"We have established beyond reasonable doubt that the two youths were in this area at the time the women were murdered," said Carson.

The youths, identified as James D. Latham, 18, Mauriceville, Tex., and George York, 19, Jacksonville, Fla., were apprehended in a stolen car near Grantsville, Utah, Saturday.

The boys were also being questioned by federal authorities about murders in Illinois, Kansas, Colorado, Tennessee and Arizona.

Carson said the general physical descriptions of the boys coincide with those of two youths seen conversing with the two women at a filling station here the night of May 29.

Carson said he planned to send officers to Salt Lake City Monday, where the two are now being held, to question them concerning the slayings.

The bodies of the two women, Mrs. Patricia Ann Hewitt, 26, and Mrs. Althea Ottavio, 44, both of Valdosta, Ga., were found last Wednesday morning, strangled by stockings and a piece of underclothing.

They had driven from their homes on Memorial Day to Jacksonville to play a daily double combination at the kennel club here. Mrs. Ottavio had dreamed the 2-5 combination would win—and it did, paying $177 for a $2 bet.

They were reported missing a few days after the race.

The women were last seen alive shortly after midnight May 30 at a service station. While they were there a pickup truck with two men answering the descriptions of the two boys apprehended in Utah drove into the station. The station attendant said one of the men talked to the women before driving away.

Jackson Jail Admits Six More Riders

Student Non-violent Movement in Nashville, Tenn., were scheduled to leave Memphis, Tenn., earlier Saturday and arrive in Jackson at 12:45 p.m.

However, they were eating breakfast in Memphis when their bus was scheduled to leave there and the driver refused to wait for them. They had to take a later bus.

A national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality in St. Louis, Mo., Charles P. Oldham, said the group plans to send 15 or 20 more Freedom Riders to Jackson in about 10 days.

Five residents of Berkeley, Calif., say they plan to leave for New Orleans June 17 and board a bus to Jackson in tests of Mississippi segregation.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has filed a petition asking a three-judge federal court in New Orleans to protect Freedom Riders from arrest and police interference.

Leaders of Negro groups have said the only way the segregation barrier in Mississippi can be cracked is through federal intervention. Many southerners fear if arrests and police protection are halted by the courts, mob violence will result.

CORE has favored open conflicts with Southern laws and traditions, while the NAACP fights "Jim Crowism" through legal means.

As the arrests continue, the problem of jail space in Jackson increases. When the number is sufficient to create bad sanitary and space problems, Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy is expected to move the prisoners elsewhere.

Gilfoy said rumors they would be moved to the state penitentiary were unfounded, but did not name any proposed location. "The situation isn't bad now," he added.

The white Freedom Riders, placed in city jail, have announced they will join a hunger strike on Monday unless the federal government takes some action by then.

Negro Couple Weds In White Church

GAFFNEY, S.C. (UPI)—A Negro couple was married in a white Episcopal Church Saturday despte the objections of some of the congregation.

The ceremony attracted little attention, however, although townspeople knew in advance of the wedding.

The Rev. Ralph Johnson, who performed the marriage of Henry W. Brevard II and Mildred J. Gilmore, said he had no knowledge of reaction within his church to the marriage. But some members of the church of the incarnation said they had voiced objections. The church, built this year, has a congregation of less than 100.

Johnson said the Negroes were confirmed Episcopalians, "and this is the only Episcopal church in town.

Arabs Fire Hot Blast At Soviets

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Members of the Arab League Council blasted the Soviet Union Saturday for "interference in the domestic affairs of an Arab country."

In separate statements representatives of Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Yemen and Jordan denounced attacks against the United Arab Republic by Soviet propaganda media for imprisonment of Communists. The U.A.R. press has denied Soviet charges that two Communists died in U.A.R. prisons.

Prince Mohammed Ibn Massoud, Saudi Arabia's defense minister, said, "The attacks reveal the intention of the Soviet Union to impose its system on a sovereign Arab country. The consequences of such attacks will cause Arab countries to reconsider friendly relations with the Soviet Union.

"Saudi Arabia as well as all Arab countries will not allow foreign ideologies to find their way to the Arab world," he said.

Ahmed Basha of Yemen issued a statement saying, "Soviet propaganda launched a campaign against the U.A.R. with many 'invented stories' that have been proven wrong."

Mrs. Constance Baker Motley and Thurgood Marshall, New York attorneys for the NAACP, and R. Jess Brown of Jackson and Vicksburg, filed the bill. It charges harrassment, intimidation and coercion of freedom riders.

Judge Barham, who was born in Bastrop and lived there all his life, received his law degree from the L.S.U. Law School in 1946. He married in 1946 the former Ann LeVois of Beaumont, Tex. and is the father of two children.

After practicing law in Bastrop, Barham was elected judge of the Bastrop City Court at the age of 24. Since then, he has been re-elected to two additional terms as city judge and has served the court for over 12 years.

Interested in the youth of his area, Judge Barham has been active in Scouting, serving as chairman of the Northern District Boy Scouts of America and as a member of the board of directors for the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council.

Concerned with the problems of youth, the city judge instituted the first student traffic court in Louisiana in 1953. Barham has also served for the past year as president of the Louisiana Juvenile Court Judges Association and was a delegate to the 1960 White House conference on youth in Washington, D.C.

Barham was elected by the lawyers of Ouachita and Morehouse Parishes to serve as president of the Fourth District Bar Association in 1952. He was also elected by the lawyers to serve on the board of governors of the Louisiana State Bar Association from 1954 to 1956.

Judge Barham is a member of Kiwanis and has served as president of the Bastrop Kiwanis Club. In 1958 he served Kiwanis International as Lt. Governor of Division 6, Louisiana, Mississippi, West Tennessee District.

Lassiter is married and has two sons and one grandson. He has been a resident of Ouachita Parish since 1931 and was educated in the schools of Rapides Parish.

He received a B.A. degree from Tulane University in 1927 and LL.B in 1929. He has been in law practice for about 30 years and is a member of the Fourth Judicial District Bar Association, Louisiana State Bar Association and American Bar Association.

He has lectured since 1955 at the Law School of Northwestern University of Chicago each summer in a special course for prosecuting attorneys from all over the United States and foreign countries.

Lassiter is now serving as vice president of the National District Attorneys Association; as vice chairman of the Salvation Army Board; as special attorney for the Joint Segregation Committee of the Louisiana legislature; as special counsel to the Sovereignty Commission of Louisiana; as a member of the Louisiana Law Institute Advisory Committee on the Code of Criminal Procedure.

He has practiced law in all the courts of Louisiana, including the courts of Appeal and the Supreme Court.

He is and has been District Attorney for Morehouse and Ouachita Parishes since 1954, having had no opposition for the second term of office.

calculations point to mid-1963 as the most likely of the three periods for the end of orbit.

Echo was launched into a nearly circular orbit, 1,000 miles above the earth. The light pressure of sunlight pushed the sphere into an everincreasing eccentricity until last December, when the ball was careening as much as 1,350 miles out into space and back to within 590 miles of the earth.

The next Echo satellite, to be launched about a year hence, will be 20 times more rigid than Echo I. It will be 135 feet in diameter, and will weigh 500 pounds.

In the following year NASA will attempt to launch three such satellites aboard one rocket.

What has Echo I accomplished? NASA says it has proved the feasibility of passive communication satellites, has confirmed theories of radio wave propagation—and it has confirmed theories as to orbital behavior.

London Is Getting Giant-Sized Worm

trude to the London society.

Oscar and Tony will return next week from Omaha where they are appearing with television personality Herb Shriner and will wait for a collector to claim them.

Gertrude's saga started a few weeks ago 15,000 feet up in the Colombian Andes when a native digger, employed by Mrs. Latham, found the worm six feet underground. The worm was packed off to this country.

Customs regulations required changing the Colombian soil for American soil. A similar soil switch last year killed another giant worm captured by Mrs. Latham. But this year, Mrs. Latham devised her own soil, a newspaper, ice cube and air-conditioner recipe which has suited Gertrude just fine.

"Americans showed very little interest in the worm but the British flipped," said Mrs. Latham.

Mrs. Latham, a slender attractive brunette, holds a degree in geography and zoology. She has beaten her way into the Colombin bush a dozen times in as many years in search of rare animals. "I was sick and tired of cocktail parties," she said.

fellows, 'This is it.'

"We threw ourselves on the floor and held onto the furniture. The plaster began to crash. I suppose it was all over in a minute or so.

"I am thankful to be alive," Hatfield added.

Among the injured, only a few were hurt seriously.

Perhaps the hardest hit was the Louisville & Nashville Railroad which estimated damage at $175,000.

Ravenna is about 50 miles southeast of Lexington and 125 miles southeast of Louisville.

Youths May Have Slain Florida Pair

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Sheriff Dale Carson said Saturday he is "pretty well convinced" that two teenagers captured in Utah Saturday killed two women who came here May 29 to play a "dream hunch" at a dog racing track.

"We have established beyond reasonable doubt that the two youths were in this area at the time the women were murdered," said Carson.

The youths, identified as James D. Latham, 18, Mauriceville, Tex., and George York, 19, Jacksonville, Fla., were apprehended in a stolen car near Grantsville, Utah, Saturday.

The boys were also being questioned by federal authorities about murders in Illinois, Kansas, Colorado, Tennessee and Arizona.

Carson said the general physical descriptions of the boys coincide with those of two youths seen conversing with the two women at a filling station here the night of May 29.

Carson said he planned to send officers to Salt Lake City Monday, where the two are now being held, to question them concerning the slayings.

The bodies of the two women, Mrs. Patricia Ann Hewitt, 26, and Mrs. Althea Ottavio, 44, both of Valdosta, Ga., were found last Wednesday morning, strangled by stockings and a piece of underclothing.

They had driven from their homes on Memorial Day to Jacksonville to play a daily double combination at the kennel club here. Mrs. Ottavio had dreamed the 2-5 combination would win—and it did, paying $177 for a $2 bet.

They were reported missing a few days after the race.

The women were last seen alive shortly after midnight May 30 at a service station. While they were there a pickup truck with two men answering the descriptions of the two boys apprehended in Utah drove into the station. The station attendant said one of the men talked to the women before driving away.

Jackson Jail Admits Six More Riders

Student Non-violent Movement in Nashville, Tenn., were scheduled to leave Memphis, Tenn., earlier Saturday and arrive in Jackson at 12:45 p.m.

However, they were eating breakfast in Memphis when their bus was scheduled to leave there and the driver refused to wait for them. They had to take a later bus.

A national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality in St. Louis, Mo., Charles P. Oldham, said the group plans to send 15 or 20 more Freedom Riders to Jackson in about 10 days.

Five residents of Berkeley, Calif., say they plan to leave for New Orleans June 17 and board a bus to Jackson in tests of Mississippi segregation.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has filed a petition asking a three-judge federal court in New Orleans to protect Freedom Riders from arrest and police interference.

Leaders of Negro groups have said the only way the segregation barrier in Mississippi can be cracked is through federal intervention. Many southerners fear if arrests and police protection are halted by the courts, mob violence will result.

CORE has favored open conflicts with Southern laws and traditions, while the NAACP fights "Jim Crowism" through legal means.

As the arrests continue, the problem of jail space in Jackson increases. When the number is sufficient to create bad sanitary and space problems, Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy is expected to move the prisoners elsewhere.

Gilfoy said rumors they would be moved to the state penitentiary were unfounded, but did not name any proposed location. "The situation isn't bad now," he added.

The white Freedom Riders, placed in city jail, have announced they will join a hunger strike on Monday unless the federal government takes some action by then.

Negro Couple Weds In White Church

GAFFNEY, S.C. (UPI)—A Negro couple was married in a white Episcopal Church Saturday despte the objections of some of the congregation.

The ceremony attracted little attention, however, although townspeople knew in advance of the wedding.

The Rev. Ralph Johnson, who performed the marriage of Henry W. Brevard II and Mildred J. Gilmore, said he had no knowledge of reaction within his church to the marriage. But some members of the church of the incarnation said they had voiced objections. The church, built this year, has a congregation of less than 100.

Johnson said the Negroes were confirmed Episcopalians, "and this is the only Episcopal church in town.

Arabs Fire Hot Blast At Soviets

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Members of the Arab League Council blasted the Soviet Union Saturday for "interference in the domestic affairs of an Arab country."

In separate statements representatives of Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Yemen and Jordan denounced attacks against the United Arab Republic by Soviet propaganda media for imprisonment of Communists. The U.A.R. press has denied Soviet charges that two Communists died in U.A.R. prisons.

Prince Mohammed Ibn Massoud, Saudi Arabia's defense minister, said, "The attacks reveal the intention of the Soviet Union to impose its system on a sovereign Arab country. The consequences of such attacks will cause Arab countries to reconsider friendly relations with the Soviet Union.

"Saudi Arabia as well as all Arab countries will not allow foreign ideologies to find their way to the Arab world," he said.

Ahmed Basha of Yemen issued a statement saying, "Soviet propaganda launched a campaign against the U.A.R. with many 'invented stories' that have been proven wrong."

Mrs. Constance Baker Motley and Thurgood Marshall, New York attorneys for the NAACP, and R. Jess Brown of Jackson and Vicksburg, filed the bill. It charges harrassment, intimidation and coercion of freedom riders.

ON U. S. HIGHWAYS

Battle Expected Over Billboards

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senators who like their scenery free of beer and baby food ads mounted a determined drive Saturday to ban billboards along the nation's growing network of interstate highways.

The fight over the anti-billboard provision is expected to spark debate next week when the Senate takes up House-passed legislation authorizing $11.56 billion more for construction on the 41,000-mile superhighway program.

Another battle may develop over congressional cuts made in higher taxes sought by President Kennedy to help finance the program on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Sen. Maurine Neuberger, D-Ore., plans to sponsor an amendment to expand the provision of federal bonus payments to states which agree to bar outdoor advertising from the sylvan right-of-way of interstate route.

Her husband, the late Sen. Richard Neuberger, was the original architect of the provision, with Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif. it was written into the federal highway act in 1958 after a lengthy senate fight.

Under the bill as passed by the House and approved without a change by the Senate Public works Committee, the bonus program expires June 30.

Mrs. Neuberger said her amendment would extend the existing program of one-half per cent bonus payments for another two years.

Only two states—Maryland and North Dakota—have taken advantage of the program so far. But at least 40 other states have enacted enabling legislation and are in the process of negotiating agreements with the Bureau of Public Roads.

Interstate roads are built on a 90-10 federal-state matching basis. States which take advantage of the bonus payments receive $90.50 to every $9.50 in state funds, instead of $90 federal, $10 state.

Other lovers of an uncluttered outdoors have joined Mrs. Neuberger.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said: "certainly I'll support the amendment. Why should we befoul the face of our nation?"

Drink Machines Are Robbed; $3 In Cash Taken

Monroe police are investigating the break-in of two drink machines that occurred Friday night.

Approximately $3 was taken when the machine at a service station on Winnsboro Road was pried open. Clifford Welch, owner of the station, reported the theft Saturday morning.

A second machine was broken into at Long's Skelly Station, 1605 DeSiard Street. Herman Long, owner, reported that approximately $2 was taken in this theft.

An attempted theft was also reported to police yesterday. A worker at Henderson's Variety Store, 77 DeSiard St., told police that a Negro girl came in the store and took a straw hat. The girl was stopped, but pushed the worker away and ran. The hat was valued at approximately $1.

FIRST APPEARANCE

British Get Look At Infant Prince

LONDON (AP)—Prince Andrew, youngest member of Britain's royal family, made his first official public appearance Saturday cradled in his mother's arms.

He was brought out on the palace balcony at the climax of ceremonies marking the birthday of his parents, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

The queen rode from the palace Saturday morning in bright sunshine to review 1,700 of her finest fighting men at the annual ceremony of Trooping the Colors.

It was the 10th time since her ascension to the throne that she had taken part in this spectacle marking the sovereign's official birthday. Her actual birthday was April 21, when she was 35.

Riding her chestnut thoroughbred, Imperial, she sat almost immobile for more than an hour while troops of the Brigade of Guards, the massed bands and the Household Cavalry went through the solemn ritual.

This year the standard or colors of the 2nd battalion of the Scots Guards was "trooped"—marched slowly past the assembled ranks.

The queen wore a bright red tunic, black skirt and black tricorn hat for the ceremony.

She and Prince Philip, who also took part as a colonel of the Welsh Guards, wore the dark green sashes of the Order of the Thistle, as a mark of respect for the Scots Guards.

It was a double birthday—the queen's official birthday, fixed for the second Saturday in June when Britain can usually hope for good weather for the ceremony, and Philip's 40th birthday.

Double salutes of 62 guns were fired by the artillery company from the Tower of London and two salutes of 41 guns were fired from Hyde Park.

Said a War Office spokesman: "This is the first occasion of which we are aware when the sovereign's official birthday has fallen on the same day as someone else who is entitled to have a royal salute on the actual birthday."

After the queen had ridden at the head of her troops to the palace, the royal family came out on the palace balcony to watch a flypast by 16 Royal Air Force jets at 1,000 feet.

That's when 16-month old Prince Andrew appeared. As the jets roared overhead he pointed up and smiled.

Saturday evening the queen and her husband left for Windsor Castle where Prince Philip was to celebrate his birthday at a party.

Owner Of Famed Club Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—John Perona, 64, owner of El Morocco, a nightspot famed for its zebra-striped decor and Cafe Society clientele, died at his home Friday night of double pneumonia.

He had been in ill-health for nine months. He recently visited Palm Beach, Fla., to rest and had returned to his home a week ago.

Perona rose from humble surroundings to make his place a virtual headquarters for the international smart set and to become an arbiter of who "belongs" and who doesn't.

The former busboy played frankly to snob appeal in attracting the wealthy, the famous, the titled and the glamorous to his lush East Side place.

"The secret is being able to select and blend clientele like the ingredients of a fine sauce.

"It's been said there have been only two great maitre d's—Albert of Maxim's and Carino of El Morocco. He worked for me 20 years without a day off until he died.

"Carino never smiled. People who didn't belong cringed under his icy glare. He could tell all about a person at a glance."

Among those who cringed in the old Morocco, recently supplanted by a new one, were those assigned to tables on the far side of the dance floor. They knew this area as "Siberia."

But to be invited to sit at Perona's own "round table" was to Cafe Society like being invited to the royal box.

Perona was born at Ivrea, near Turin, Italy. He went to Argentina when he was 15 and later became a sparring partner for Luis Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas."

Perona moved on to New York and with a brother, Joseph, opened a West Side restaurant known simply as Perona's.

Immediately after the fight, he went to Perona's restaurant. He was accompanied by a number of celebrities who took a liking to the proprietor.

Perona moved to the swank East Side and opened his El Morocco "unofficially" on Oct. 5, 1931. He opened it "officially" in 1933 when prohibition ended.

ON U. S. HIGHWAYS

Battle Expected Over Billboards

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senators who like their scenery free of beer and baby food ads mounted a determined drive Saturday to ban billboards along the nation's growing network of interstate highways.

The fight over the anti-billboard provision is expected to spark debate next week when the Senate takes up House-passed legislation authorizing $11.56 billion more for construction on the 41,000-mile superhighway program.

Another battle may develop over congressional cuts made in higher taxes sought by President Kennedy to help finance the program on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Sen. Maurine Neuberger, D-Ore., plans to sponsor an amendment to expand the provision of federal bonus payments to states which agree to bar outdoor advertising from the sylvan right-of-way of interstate route.

Her husband, the late Sen. Richard Neuberger, was the original architect of the provision, with Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif. it was written into the federal highway act in 1958 after a lengthy senate fight.

Under the bill as passed by the House and approved without a change by the Senate Public works Committee, the bonus program expires June 30.

Mrs. Neuberger said her amendment would extend the existing program of one-half per cent bonus payments for another two years.

Only two states—Maryland and North Dakota—have taken advantage of the program so far. But at least 40 other states have enacted enabling legislation and are in the process of negotiating agreements with the Bureau of Public Roads.

Interstate roads are built on a 90-10 federal-state matching basis. States which take advantage of the bonus payments receive $90.50 to every $9.50 in state funds, instead of $90 federal, $10 state.

Other lovers of an uncluttered outdoors have joined Mrs. Neuberger.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said: "certainly I'll support the amendment. Why should we befoul the face of our nation?"

Drink Machines Are Robbed; $3 In Cash Taken

Monroe police are investigating the break-in of two drink machines that occurred Friday night.

Approximately $3 was taken when the machine at a service station on Winnsboro Road was pried open. Clifford Welch, owner of the station, reported the theft Saturday morning.

A second machine was broken into at Long's Skelly Station, 1605 DeSiard Street. Herman Long, owner, reported that approximately $2 was taken in this theft.

An attempted theft was also reported to police yesterday. A worker at Henderson's Variety Store, 77 DeSiard St., told police that a Negro girl came in the store and took a straw hat. The girl was stopped, but pushed the worker away and ran. The hat was valued at approximately $1.

FIRST APPEARANCE

British Get Look At Infant Prince

LONDON (AP)—Prince Andrew, youngest member of Britain's royal family, made his first official public appearance Saturday cradled in his mother's arms.

He was brought out on the palace balcony at the climax of ceremonies marking the birthday of his parents, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

The queen rode from the palace Saturday morning in bright sunshine to review 1,700 of her finest fighting men at the annual ceremony of Trooping the Colors.

It was the 10th time since her ascension to the throne that she had taken part in this spectacle marking the sovereign's official birthday. Her actual birthday was April 21, when she was 35.

Riding her chestnut thoroughbred, Imperial, she sat almost immobile for more than an hour while troops of the Brigade of Guards, the massed bands and the Household Cavalry went through the solemn ritual.

This year the standard or colors of the 2nd battalion of the Scots Guards was "trooped"—marched slowly past the assembled ranks.

The queen wore a bright red tunic, black skirt and black tricorn hat for the ceremony.

She and Prince Philip, who also took part as a colonel of the Welsh Guards, wore the dark green sashes of the Order of the Thistle, as a mark of respect for the Scots Guards.

It was a double birthday—the queen's official birthday, fixed for the second Saturday in June when Britain can usually hope for good weather for the ceremony, and Philip's 40th birthday.

Double salutes of 62 guns were fired by the artillery company from the Tower of London and two salutes of 41 guns were fired from Hyde Park.

Said a War Office spokesman: "This is the first occasion of which we are aware when the sovereign's official birthday has fallen on the same day as someone else who is entitled to have a royal salute on the actual birthday."

After the queen had ridden at the head of her troops to the palace, the royal family came out on the palace balcony to watch a flypast by 16 Royal Air Force jets at 1,000 feet.

That's when 16-month old Prince Andrew appeared. As the jets roared overhead he pointed up and smiled.

Saturday evening the queen and her husband left for Windsor Castle where Prince Philip was to celebrate his birthday at a party.

Owner Of Famed Club Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—John Perona, 64, owner of El Morocco, a nightspot famed for its zebra-striped decor and Cafe Society clientele, died at his home Friday night of double pneumonia.

He had been in ill-health for nine months. He recently visited Palm Beach, Fla., to rest and had returned to his home a week ago.

Perona rose from humble surroundings to make his place a virtual headquarters for the international smart set and to become an arbiter of who "belongs" and who doesn't.

The former busboy played frankly to snob appeal in attracting the wealthy, the famous, the titled and the glamorous to his lush East Side place.

"The secret is being able to select and blend clientele like the ingredients of a fine sauce.

"It's been said there have been only two great maitre d's—Albert of Maxim's and Carino of El Morocco. He worked for me 20 years without a day off until he died.

"Carino never smiled. People who didn't belong cringed under his icy glare. He could tell all about a person at a glance."

Among those who cringed in the old Morocco, recently supplanted by a new one, were those assigned to tables on the far side of the dance floor. They knew this area as "Siberia."

But to be invited to sit at Perona's own "round table" was to Cafe Society like being invited to the royal box.

Perona was born at Ivrea, near Turin, Italy. He went to Argentina when he was 15 and later became a sparring partner for Luis Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas."

Perona moved on to New York and with a brother, Joseph, opened a West Side restaurant known simply as Perona's.

Immediately after the fight, he went to Perona's restaurant. He was accompanied by a number of celebrities who took a liking to the proprietor.

Perona moved to the swank East Side and opened his El Morocco "unofficially" on Oct. 5, 1931. He opened it "officially" in 1933 when prohibition ended.

10 Northeast Students On Fossil Hunt

What kinds of fossils are in the beds of the ancient seas in southwest Arkansas where paleozoic rocks pushed up millions of years ago to form the Ouachita Mountains?

Ten Northeast Louisiana State College students will seek the answer to this and other questions as they study during their annual summer geology field trip which began this week and will end July 20.

Realizing that the science of the earth, geology, can be taught in the classroom but must be applied in the laboratory, the Northeast geology students each summer visit their laboratory.

That laboratory is the mountains, the valleys, road cuts, gullies, streams, or any place that rocks can be observed in their natural surroundings.

And the area of study this year is southwest Arkansas. They will behoused on the campus of Henderson State College at Arkadelphia, Ark.

In the course of their work they will find evidences of the ancient paleozoic rocks that pushed up to form the Ouachita Mountains. They will map the shoreline of seas that invaded that area during the mesozoic era about 100 million years ago. seas shells and other fossils in the beds give stark evidence that this part of Arkansas once lay beneath ancient seas.

The group will make side trips to the diamond mine at Murphroesboro and to the Magnet Cove area in search for minerals. After completing six weeks of field work, the group will return to the campus of Northeast State.

The stulens on the trip are Melvin Nelson, Bob McGough, Smoky Stover, Donny Nolan, all of Monroe; Harry Barfoot and Rose Mary White of West Monroe; Clyde McGowen and Charles Boies of Richland; Billy Barnett of Bastrop; and Vera Kirivatana of Thailand. Miss White is the only girl geology major making the trip and is only the second in the history of the department. Dr. Frank Welder is the director of the 9th annual summer field trip. Marcus Mapp is acting chairman, department of geology.

Algerians look to the Sahara Desert for their country's economic future. Already the exploitation of its hidden riches — oil, natural gas, manganese, diamonds, nickel and copper — is bolstering the country's economy.

Oppression In Dominican Is Reported

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Sunday News says Organization of American States investigators have been told secretly by Dominicans that oppression in their country is as bad as or worse than before dictator Rafael L. Trujillo was slain.

Hal Hendrix, the News' Latin-American editor, wrote that the OAS team also has learned Trujillos assassination was the climax of a plot dating back to 1960 and involving his civilian and military opposition.

The OAS mission is in the Dominican Republic investigating whether the trend in that nation is away from police state conditions under Trujillo's son and heir, Rafael Jr.

Hendrix's story was datelined Ciudad Trujillo, from which he returned Saturday.

His account said: In carefully arranged conferences with Trujillo opposition spokesmen, the OAS ambassadors have received information that brutality has increased sharply.

It has been learned that the Trujillo slaying originally was scheduled for Jan. 20, 1960, at a national cattle fair in Ciudad Trujillo. The plan was then to eliminate Trujillo with a bomb in his reviewing stand. The dictator's security forces nipped the plot with two days to spare and jailed more than 2,500 persons.

The plotters reorganized in a smaller unit and last February decided to try again. Trujillo's everyday routine was closely watched and May or early June was chosen for a new attempt to remove him. Another meeting set May 30 as the date.

The OAS committee was told that imprisonment of Dominicans continues without warrants or justifiable cause. Witnesses interviewed by the mission said some conspiracy suspects have been taken to a security police "house of torture" at kilometer 9 on the San Isidro highway, and are made to stand handcuffed and naked in the open.

The OAS committee includes representatives from Colombia, Panama, Uruguay and the United States. It has made no comment on its probe to date and has given no indication when it expects to finish probing the Dominican Republic's civil climate.

Rescue Squad Finds Bodies Of Three In River

MCLAIN, Miss. (UPI)—A rescue squad Saturday recovered the bodies of two Green County men and a boy who drowned in the Leaf River near here late Friday.

Authorities said John Lowe Hillman, 33, and his son, John Roy Hillman, 12, were found in about six feet of water near where their overturned boat was located early Saturday. They said it appeared that Hillman was trying to rescue his son when both drowned.

The body of L. M. Daughdril, 35, Hillman's brother-in-law, was located about 100 yards downstream from the other two in about six feet of water. It appeared as if his body had been carried by the current.

The death of the three shocked residents of this small southeast Mississippi town of 900. The Hillmans lived at Neely, two miles northeast of here, and Daughdrill lived at Leakesville, the county seat.

RIDERS' INVASION

Barnett Averts Racial Violence

JACKSON, Miss., June 10 (UPI) Gov. Ross Barnett has lost his reputation as the most vehement segregationist in Dixie.

It's not that Barnett has decided he's been wrong and Mississippi should integrate, after all.

But his pleas that violence be avoided during the invasion of the "freedom riders" and his state's polite handling of the riders have served to lessen the reputation gained by Barnett during his race for governor, when he made segregation his No. 1 topic, and during some of his later speeches, written by Citizens' Council officials.

Some of Barnett's past attacks on the federal government could have led some to the belief Civil War II was just around the corner.

But as the "freedom riders" rolled into Mississippi, Barnett with Washington. He cheerfully assured such governmental figures as Robert F. Kennedy that everything was under control.

Although Mississippi rejected a request that "freedom riders" be offered police protection, it ended up furnishing plenty of it. Of course it was said the officers were out in droves not to protect riders but to maintain law and order, but it amounted to protection.

The contrast in Mississippi's and Alabama's handling of the "freedom rider" situation resulted in Barnett and his state being almost left out of integration spokesmen's attacks on the Deep South. Alabama and its governor, John Patterson, bore the brunt of the attacks.

Integration leader Martin Luther King, speaking in Bridgeport, Conn., took issue with "arrogance and defiance of law in Alabama" but praised Mississippi for going "out of its way to see that violence does not take place."

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, came here and delivered an address which included some criticism and some praise for Mississippi.

He expressed delight over Mississippi allowing the NAACP to stay in business in the state and not outlawing the organization as Alabama has done.

Mississippi's arrests of the riders, he said, were illegal but much better than the violence which occurred in Alabama.

Wilkins said Barnett would not go along with Patterson's "raw and wrong way" with the riders..

And he praised Barnett for meeting recently with state NAACP leaders. "I dont't care how bad we think of Governor Barnett, we must say that he has performed one of the duties of his office. Some of them wont even listen," he said.

Wilkins and King are perhaps the nation's two top integration leaders. If you had predicted a couple of years ago that they would soon be praising Mississippi or Barnett, your family or friends might have insisted that you see a doctor.

3 Alabamans Lose Lives In Disasters

By United Press International

Fire erased two lives and another person was drowned for a total of at least three violent deaths in Alabama this weekend, a United Press International survey showed Saturday.

A teen-aged boy was swept to his death in the swift Chattahoochee River Current Saturday trying to wade 30 yards to a sandbar for a bet. Officers identified the victim as Thomas Sanders, 18, of Langdale, Ala. A companion, Billy Richardson, told police Sanders could not swim, but thought he could wade from the bank at Lanett, Ala., to the nearby island.

The father, John Henry Williams, told firemen the daughter, Beverly, either fell or hid behind a bed when fire broke out about 5:20 a.m.

A Butler County insurance man, William Roy Phelps, 43, died Saturday morning of burns received when his house caught fire.

Phelps was removed from the burning house by city firemen and rushed to the hospital where he died minutes later.

Fire Chief W. W. Fussell said Phelps was found within a few feet of the front door and evidence indicated he had been in bed. The fire chief said he had gone about 2 feet toward the door.

Chief Fussell said investigation indicated the blaze started from a burning cigarette in the bedroom Phelps was occupying and spread to destroy about 75 per cent of the interior of the house.

Fussell said Phelps was alone in his home on Chestnut St. His wife was in Michigan with one child, and two other children were spending the night with his sister in Greenville.

The fire was reported by neighbors, and apparently had been burning some time when the call was made.

The greatest death toll from fire in American history occurred Oct. 8, 1871, in the area of Peshtigo, Wis. Spreading over 1,280,000 acres of forest land, flames wiped out 17 towns and took at least 1,152 lives.

Gypsy Held For Larceny Of $118,000

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—A gypsy fortune teller, ordered back to New York to stand trial for grand larceny, contested her arrest here and was jailed without bond Saturday.

Mrs. Mary Volga Adamo, indicted for taking $118,000 from Mrs. Frances Friedman of New York as the price of freeing her from "evil, petitioned for her release and the case was set for hearing Monday.

Circuit Judge Ben Willis refused the woman bail pending the hearing.

She was picked up by local sheriff's deputies minutes after Gov. Farris Bryant signed papers for her extradition to New York.

Mrs. Adamo, who claims she is not the woman being sought, lives in Miami Beach but was here for an extradition hearing before the governor. She was arrested just as she and her husband, George, were getting ready to leave for home. She was picked up in a Tallahassee parking lot and whisked to jail to be held for New York authorities.

She swore under oath at the extradition hearing Friday that she was not in New York on the dates named in the indictment and that she never laid eyes on Mrs. Friedman until the woman came south to press charges against her, first in Alabama, then in Florida.

She evaded extradition in Alabama when the governor refused to sign extradition papers while the case was pending in the courts on Mrs. Adamo's fight to escape extradition. The case since has been thrown out of court in Alabama.

Relatives Fear For Lives Of Trujillo Killers

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, D.R. (UPI)—A relative of one of the men who assassinated Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo told newsmen Saturday the group had been well treated "but we will be taken care of after you leave."

Families of the assassins, heavily guarded by armed police at two brown and tan stucco houses, were visited Saturday by newsmen and by representatives of the Organization of American States who flew here to check against any repressive measures that might be in force.

Eighteen women relatives were being held in one of the two-story houses and newsmen saw 22 cots with clean white sheets. Male relatives were held in the other houses about 400 yards away. OAS representatives talked with the men and women privately on lawns near the houses.

A government spokesman said after the visit the OAS men did not ask to visit the prisoners but that the government volunteered the visit. The spokesman said the prisoners were being held in "protective custody" and would be released when the investigation is over.

The spokesman denied that any constitutional guarantees had been suspended following the Trujillo assassination and said "Dominican police work like any police in the world." He said any of those wanting to leave the country would be given passports when the investigation is finished.

French Police Arrest 18 In Terror Reign

PARIS (UPI) — French police said Saturday they had arrested 18 Moslem deserters from the French army and accused them of taking part in a predawn reign of terror in suburban Paris.

The arrests followed a series of dawn raids across France aimed at both left- and right-wing opponents of the government's policy in Algeria. Police arrested at least 20 pacifist and leftist writers and editors and seized many documents, tracts and brochures urging young Frenchmen to refuse to fight in Algeria.

Police sources said the arrests of the Moslem deserters broke up Algerian rebel plans for a new attack on Paris police. Last Sunday, eight police were wounded and 12 terrorists killed in a gunfight with police.

The 18 Moslem soldiers were caught in a four-day dragnet, police said. They added that a large cache of rebel arms was confiscated.

Group Purchases Site For Hospital

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI)—Dr. Hugh Mac Guire, head of the Atomedic Research Center Inc., said Saturday the group has purchased "roughly four square miles of choice and developed land" near here as a site for their proposed push-button hospital.

"I believe this is the largest purchase of land ever made by a non-profit organization for a medical development," the Montgomery surgeon said. "Because of the welcome our proposed center received from Tuskegee citizens, we were able to purchase the huge track for approximately $350,000.

Accused Killer Writes Hymn

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Spade Cooley, former Western hillbilly band leader indicted for the beating death of his wife last April, has written a hymn dedicated to a Seattle church, the Rev. Louis B. Gerhardt said Saturday.

The composition, "Faith," was written in jail, the pastor of the Fairmount Congregational church said, after he went to California to talk with Cooley. They had met a few months earlier and after his arraignment, Cooley telephoned him.

"This is a tremendous witness to the power of prayer and Christian love," the Rev. Mr. Gerhardt said.

Boy Reunited With Pet Wolf After Months

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP)—A boy and his friend, a 125-pound timber wolf, were reunited last week after 18 months apart.

Lutz Bauersachs, 13, and Lobo, sharp-toothed and fierce-eyed, had both changed — but not forgotten each other. Lobo leaped into the boys' arms.

The story began more than two years ago. Lobo and two other wolves were taken to be trained at the zoo Lutz's father operates 12 miles north of here. Lutz took an immediate liking to the vicious hunter from the woods and Lobo began to trust him.

"The two were inseparable," the boy's father said Friday. "They played together all the time.

"I was not alarmed. The wolves were being trained carefully and besides, Lobo trusted the boy."

A year and a half ago the three wolves were taken to California and Arizona, for filming of a movie which will bear Lobo's name. The trainers here thought Lobo would forget.

Last week the animals were returned north. The Bauersachs watched anxiously as Lobo's crate was opened.

He leaped out and looked around. Then he bounded straight for the delighted boy.

Set 'Recognition' Program Tuesday

Rights Group Reports On Complaints

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Rights Commission has received complaints about racial discrimination from every state except Vermont and North Dakota and the most from Louisiana and Alabama.

Several southern states but by no means all of them have produced an overwhelming majority of claims by Negroes that they cannot vote, a United Press International survey shows.

Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and North Carolina between them have produced 496 of the 621 voting complaints filed since the commission's inception in 1957.

On the other hand, Californians have filed 54 voting complaints, more than filed by all but three southern states.

South Carolina and Virginia each list only three complaints of voting irregularity but no claims that any Negro has been denied the right to vote.

The commission's voting breakdown lists sworn and unsworn voting complaints and complaints about irregularities where some restraint or hardship was imposed.

In other phases of discrimination which the commission is investigating, the southern states produced fewer complants than New York and some northern and western states.

New York, with 53, led in the field of administration of justice which includes discrimination in jails, paroles and police brutality. California was second with 38, Ohio third with 33. In all, the commission has received 568 such complaints, second only to voting.

It has received 166 complaints about employment discrimination, with the most, 16, from California. New York had 15, and Michigan 13.

The commission has received relatively few education (38), housing (42), and transportation, (29) complaints.

Georgia had the most education complaints, 6; Alabama the most housing, 9; and Alabama the most transportation, 3.

The commission has received a grand total of 1,246 complaints but these include informational types, anonymous and crank letters, and illegible communications.

The top 10 states in the number of complaints are Louisiana, 236, Alabama, 252, California, 147, New York, 122, Mississippi, 117, Florida, 87, North Carolina 77, Ohio and Illinois, 58, and Texas, 55.

Rep Hebert's Pictures Ire School Heads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Still and motion pictures taken of Negro and white school children for a constituent of Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., have stirred the ire of school officials here.

Hebert said he arranged for the pictures to be taken at the request of a constituent he declined to identify.

School officials said they were told the children were asked by the photographers to fight each other, throw rocks through a car windshield and misbehave generally "if they want to get their pictures taken."

Hebert said his instructions were violated if the cameraman asked the children to misbehave.

A representative of the commercial photography firm engaged by Hebert said the cameramen were told merely to take pictures of the children on their way to and from school. The photographers denied any fakery.

Hebert, whose congressional district includes part of New Orleans, where a school desegregation battle is waging, said he arranged for the picture-taking "just as I do hundreds of things for my constituents if they request it."

Police said their investigation of the incident showed no violation of law.

Pen Wilson, Hebert's top aide, said the photographers had been instructed to take pictures of children attending what had been all-white schools before integration and now are attended mainly by Negro children.

A Washington newspaper, The Evening Star, quoted Emile Wagner Jr., president of the New Orleans Education Foundation and a member of the Orleans Parish school board, as saying in a telephone interview that he had heard "off hand, in a conversation" that a large-scale survey of desegregated schools is being made.

"It might be a very good thing," Wagner was quoted as saying. "I happened to hear someone say something along that line. But I know nothing about it."

The Washington Post quoted Frank Voelker, chairman of the Louisiana Sovereignty Commission, as saying his organization has no present plans to include Washington in a series of films it is preparing. However, such a film is conceivable, he was quoted as saying.

NEW JOINS OLD

BATAVIA, N. Y. (AP) —There soon will be a touch of the 20th Century alongside a Revolutionary War era landmark in this city in western New York. Castro Agrees To Negotiate With U. S. Tractor Team

DETROIT (AP)—The Tractors for Freedom Committee went ahead Saturday with plans to send a four member team of technicians to Cuba Monday.

But whether it would have full power to effect a swap with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro for 1,200 prisoners taken in an April invasion was an unanswered question.

A committee spokesman said Castro's cablegram agreeing to accept the technicians appeared to pose no conditions that could not be met. He declined, however, to amplify if this meant the technicians would be given the full power demanded by Castro.

A source close to the committee said, on the other hand, the technicians would not make any decisions and would report back to the committee on their negotiations to trade 500 tractors for prisoners taken by Castro.

The same source, which declined identification, said the technicians would have authority to alter the "mix of various type tractors" proposed by the committee, subject to its later approval. It also would advise Cuban authorities on what best uses could be made of the various tractors.

A translation of Castro's cablegram was circulated among committee members for confirmation or rejection, or mere acceptance without either.

Even before Castro agreed Friday night to receive the technicians, the committee of private citizens had announced plans for the four men to fly from Miami, Fla., to Havana Monday in anticipation he would confer with them.

The committee, which has pledged to raise $3 to $3.5 million via public subscriptions to provide tractors and agricultural implements to go with them, proposed to give 50 crawler types for land clearing and 450 general purpose farming types.

But Castro's cablegram said in demanding the technician team be given full power to negotiate: "Your committee cannot decide by itself what kind of equipment Cuba is going to accept as compensation for all the material damage done by the aggressive action launched from the United States against our country."

He also renewed a proposition to exchange invasion captives for Cubans held as "political prisoners" in the United States and elsewhere, adding that "in this case, Cuba would be willing to surrender all her claims for material indemnification."

The freedom committee has insisted it has no control over Cubans here or elsewhere. Direct diplomatic relations between governments of the United States and Cuba have been broken off.

Ex-Catholic Priest Quits; Becomes Jew

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

The path taken by Abraham 1. Carmel is unique in modern religious annals. He was a Roman Catholic priest. Today, he is a Jew.

"Nothing can compare with the spiritual peace this return to the mother religion has brought me," he said.

Not for 12 centuries—since 838 A.D.—had there been a known case in which a Roman Catholic priest converted to Judaism until the former Father Kenneth C. Cox took the step, assuming his new Jewish name.

The change was not easy. "For a person to take the step I've taken, he has to be 100 per cent sincere or 100 per cent mad," Carmel said in an interview.

Orthodox Judaism discourages converts, and Carmel was rebuffed for four years before being accepted. Relatives snubbed him. He still respects the church he left, still misses the human service of the priesthood.

"The priest has an opportunity of living 24 hours a day for people," he said. "There is no substitute for that on the human level.

"But the fullness of Jewish life, the complete unity and peace within and the freedom from any internal conflict renders this great loss not only possible, but compensates for it."

Carmel, 50, a genial, scholarly man with dark hair and horn-rimmed spectacles, spent seven years as a priest, mostly at a Stirling, Scotland, parish, before his conversion.

He is now in this country on a lecture tour, before Jewish groups, under auspices of the National Jewish Welfare Board and the private foundation which published his autobiographical account, "So Strange My Path."

Unlike some Catholic priests who have left their church, Carmel has never attacked it. "I will not tolerate anyone pulling the church apart," he said.

"Anyone who comes to me and says that Catholics worship images, I'm the first to set them straight. I defend the church on these points, because I know. I've never criticized the church since my painful wrench from those people to whom I was attached, and for whom I have very personal, very deep affections."

U.S. Needs Time, Money To Match Soviet Efforts

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

But that endless nothingness called space is suddenly a paramount matter of national policy, a vacant arena where we have suffered sharp setbacks, a void the government is worriedly hastening to fill with men, missiles and money.

So are the Russians. And the huzzahs for Cmdr. Sheppard haven't chased away one persistent fact that circles overhead like a buzzard:

The Soviet Union can put far bigger loads in space than the United States can. This is an important head start, a 10-run lead in the first inning.

What does this lead mean militarily? Does it end the space race — and perhaps us — before it has scarcely begun?

How did they get ahead? Can America catch up? Is our space program in wasteful disarray?

UNPROMISING FUTURE

Shortly after the Russian cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin orbited the world April 12, Rep. James Fulton (D-Pa.), a member of the House Committee on Science and Astronautics, issued a disturbing warning. Russia's ability to orbit a man indicates, Fulton said, that in four years time they could ring the world with a system of satellites ready to dart armed destruction on the United States at a button's push.

We would only have two minutes warning, he said. We now count on 15-20 minutes notice of missile attack from our radar network.

A satellite bombardment system would require great booster power to orbit it. That the Russians have. It also would require a high order of stability in space to keep its shooting eye accurate. U. S. experts doubt Russia has such stability — now.

The United States' current Discoverer series employs the same principle as an attack satellite. Both eject an object back to earth. So far the United States has not been able to keep up a satellite longer than three days with the stability to return accurately a capsule. And even though planes have caught several capsules in air, the target area has covered hundreds of square miles, too large for military practicality.

How are the Russians doing in this field? They returned Gagarin but so far as the United States knows, they have no comparable satellite recovery program to the Discoverer series. The Pentagon feels, at worst the United States is no less than even with them on satellite stability.

But Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, retired commander of the Army team that developed the highly successful Redstone missile, while agreeing, notes the larger the booster the greater amount of stabilizing equipment that can be carried aloft.

NO IMMEDIATE THREAT

Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Space and Aeronautics Administration (NASA), testified recently it was debatable whether Russia would risk the great cost and uncertainties at this time of a bombardment satellite system when it's much cheaper and more reliable to use conventional ground - to-ground rockets.

In sum, the Pentagon does not fear satellite attack as an imminent threat.

But there is other military use for a satellite than bombardment.

"In times of total war," says Medaris, "anything can be a military advantage, even the ability to get more bread out of the same amount of wheat."

Accurate weather forecasting is an immense asset to modern warfare. So is air reconaissance and communications. The United States has shot up satellites that can gauge weather, photograph the earth, relay messages.

Have the Russians? The United States doesn't know. Russia hasn't said.

But their big booster advantage means they can put much heavier, detailed and reliable equipment then we can end do it faster — if they have it. And there's no reason to think they don't.

The United States has had to miniaturize its space eyes and ears at a cost of time, money and reliability because of its lack of a big booster.

Russia's booster edge is "just as much a military advantage as being able to look down a cannon at us," Medaris says.

In fact, he added, the sky's the limit on military use of space. It is limited only by "the imagination of the user and the ability of the other side to defend against (them)."

SEEKING A DEFENSE

Can the United States defend against satellites? Some day, quite possibly. Now, no.

The Air Force has under study a project called SAINT. SAINT is a bloodhound of space, a satellite shot up to trail and report on other satellities from a point about 100 feet to the rear.

Also under study is a devastating Air Force project with the kindly name of BAMBI designed to swoop down from orbit on detecting the launching exhaust of an enemy rocket and destroy it.

BAMBI and SAINT, one Pentagon official said, indicate that "the defensive uses of space for the next few years seem to be more attractive than the offensive."

Yet it is from such defensive abilities that the game could be lost.

"The lesson is that through and from space, earth can be dominated," Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert has said.

Uneasy over Russian superiority in manned space flight, Brig. Gen. Don Flickinger, head of the Air Force Life Science program, said the Soviet Union could use it "to deny space to any of our vehicles in the relatively near future."

He gave no details. But if we can develop a BAMBI, there's no reason Russia can't.

WHY GO TO THE MOON?

Medaris feels any space vehicle with "the discriminating capacity" of man aborad will be superior to one that lacks this. Just what value a military man on the moon might have is not yet clear.

"We can see how it could be an advantage to have a man up there," said one Pentagon spokesman, "but we're not too sure just what he could do there. We're studying it."

He added: "Military tactics always stress the value of holding the high ground. Certainly no ground is higher than space."

True. And the Russians have shot a man higher than the United States.

RUSSIA'S FEATS

Whatever the military significance of Russia's stunning space feats, they have certainly given the United States a drubbing in world opinion.

Russia was first in orbit, first in to deep space, first to hit the moon and photograph its far side. The first astronaut is named Yuri.

Indeed, if the space duel were a one-shot fray, the U.S. would have died at dawn.

How did it happen?

Perhaps it began March 16, 1926. That day the world's first liquid - fueled rocket spluttered across the calm of Auburn, Mass. The American visionary who invented the rocket, Dr. Robert H. Goddard, was pleased. America, except for a few startled residents wasn't listening.

Working on his own, however, Goddard by 1941 had produced a rocket that was almost identical to the German V-2 that was to terrorize London in 1944. Those shots, not Goddard's, suddenly made America rocket-conscious.

STALIN PLANS AHEAD

Stalin, meanwhile, was also learning some lessons. As his armies fought into Germany, they were awed by the destruction left by the Allied bombers.

Stalin was more than awed. He was worried. He had no strategic bombers.

Rather than try to make up America's almost insurmountable bomber lead, a former Soviet officer has reported, Stalin ordered as many German rocketeers captured as possible.

In 1947 he reportedly told a meeting of the Politburo he wanted a rocket capable of hitting New York City which "would make it easier to talk with the gentleman shopkeeper Harry Truman and keep him pinned down where we want him."

That same year the Truman administration turned down a military proposal to spend $75 million on development of a super rocket — which eventually became the Atlas. The President's scientific advisors said the cost would be astronomical.

The Navy had already asked $5-$8 million for a satellite program in 1945. The Air Force made a similar proposal a year later. James Forrestal, the first secretary of defense, reported neither plan had shown a military value worth the cost.

"However," he added, "the question . . . deserves further study and examination."

But bombers were our main military strength so that's where the money went.

The assumption was that Russia was concentrating on bombers, too. Then, in the early 1950s, new radar stations on Soviet borders reported the Soviets were firing rockets.

"We found they were going hundreds, even more than hundreds, of miles," said Roy Johnson, vice president of the General Electric Co. which worked on the radar.

Atlas was reactivated and planned to have about 800,000 pounds thrust — the power of the current Soviet boosters.

A TWIST OF FATE

Atlas was to be able to hit Russia with a hydrogen warhead. Then, in 1954, the United States exploded a hydrogen bomb that created the most powerful blast in history—yet was small enough to fit a rocket only half as powerful as the original Atlas. And that's the size rocket the United States worked on.

The Russians didn't have such a small warhead. So they needed larger rockets. And that's what they worked on.

As a result they now have twice the booster power the United States does. The United States plans to start testing Saturn, a 1½-million pound thrust rocket, later this year and hopes it will be operational in 1964.

Presumably the Russians are not standing pat. There are rumors they are working on a 3,000,000 pound booster. The United States is working on a 1,500,600-pound thrust rocket engine that when clustered with similar engines would give gigantic power. It is many years off.

But the United States rocket programs were purely for military uses. Space exploration was literally and figuratively out of this world.

By 1956 it would have taken a highly skilled bird watcher to keep track of the various United States missile programs. Some flew. Some never got off the drawing board. There was confusing and costly duplication and interservice rivalry.

In late 1956, then Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson tried to straighten things out by restricting the Army to missiles of under 200 miles range. Anything over was the Air Force's baby.

Medaris was then in charge of the Army's Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., where ex-German V-2 expert Wernher Von Braun was working. He felt the Army's Redstone missile, a descedant of the U-2, had amply proved the Army's superiority in long range rockets. Variations of the Redstone were later to orbit our first satellite and shoot up Cmdr. Shepard.

Taking long range missiles away from the Army was like telling a jet airplane firm to start making crop dusters, Von Braun said at the time.

Medaris, now president of Lionel Corp., claims indecision by the government during these years cost great amounts of money and an even more precious commodity—time. Decisions were being made, however.

PROPOSALS IGNORED

In 1957 — before any satellite, Russian or American, had been fired, Von Braun proposed Project Adam. For an estimated $9½ million, he said, the United States could shoot a man into suborbital flight by 1959, almost a duplicate of Shepard's ascent two years later.

"We felt it would have been a hell of a propaganda move," Medaris said.

The Army was unable to get the money. Nor could it get the money in 1954 when Von Braun said his team could orbit a 5-pound satellite "fairly soon" with a Redstone.

On Oct. 3, 1957, Russia fired the starting gun in the space race by orbiting Sputnik I.

President Eisenhower said he wasn't worried "one iota" about the shot's military significance. He said the United States could have done it first if the civilian Vanguard satellite project had not been separated from military missile development. A joint effort would have been to "the detriment of scientific goals and military progress," he explained. Missiles for defense came before missiles for space.

CHOICE OF WORDS

A year later NASA was formed and given all "scientific and peaceful" space programs. Roy Johnson, then in charge of the Advance Research Project Agency, recalled recently he argued for weeks with former Budget Director Maurice Stans over wording of the act authorizing NASA. Stans, Johnson said, wanted the bill to state its purpose was to make the United States "a" leading power in space.

"I wanted it to read 'the' leading power, said Johnson. The Bureau of the Budget argued this would cost billions of dollars. Johnson said, and the United States could not afford it. Stans won.

Then, when NASA proposed a $500 million budget for the 1959 fiscal year, Johnson said, Stans "hit the ceiling." The bureau wanted to spend as little as possible."

Commenting on Johnson's remarks, Stans says "it is absurd for any one to indicate I said we shouldn't have any space appropriations. The budgets which were approved were very substantial."

Johnson also said the Eisenhower administration "had no concept of (space) being a propaganda tool. Even as a military man, (Eisenhower) couldn't see the value of space.

"It always made me so frustrated when all the response you got about a (space) program was 'Gee whiz, isn't that something'."

Said Stans: "The space program . . . was designed to recognize both the scientific value and psychological values of space developments even though it may not have met the extreme views of some advocates of unlimited spending."

As for Eisenhower, he had a "full understanding of all aspects of the program," Stans added.

CONGRESS QUESTIONS

Congress has asked some questions about those difficult childhood years of space.

"Isn't it true," inquired Rep. Fulton earlier this year, "that there has been a pattern both in the Truman and Eisenhower administrations that (space research) has been popular and then not so popular?"

Dryden: "There have been fluctuations."

Fulton: "Then you can't point to any one period and say that's where the fault lies?"

Dryden: "No, sir, you do not."

Despite the United States' late start, NASA points out the United States has orbited more than 40 satellites, Russia 13. United States moonlets have brought back pictures of earth, relayed phone messages and begun revolutions in navigation, communications and weather forecasting.

Dryden told Congress he thinks the United States knows more about space than the Soviets, but lack of a big booster has kept it from matching the eye-catching spectaculars of the Russians.

A QUESTION OF TIME

He thinks we may pull even with Russia by 1965 or 1966. Maybe an all-out effort could get us on the moon first, perhaps by 1967, NASA associate director Dr. Robert C. Seamans has estimated. Von Braun said last month "I am convinced we can beat them."

But, NASA chief James Webb reminded Congress "money is not a complete substitute for time." And Gen. Flickinger figured it would take the united States three and a half to four years fully to duplicate "what was done in terms of Gagarin." Where the Russians may be then is anybody's guess.

The cost of landing an American on the moon is as astronomical as the deed itself.

So costly, in fact, that some influential persons are asking "is this trip necessary?"

President Kennedy says it is. The United States must take a "clearly leading role" in space, he told Congress last month, "for while we cannot guarantee that we shall one day be first, we can guarantee any failure to share this (space) effort will make us last."

He called on the nation to make an all-out effort to land a man on the moon by the decade's end. The nation has the talents and resources, he said.

But it will require mobilization of them on broad and long range scale never before practised in the United States, he said.

U. S. Needs Time, Money To Match Soviet Efforts

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

But that endless nothingness called space is suddenly a paramount matter of national policy, a vacant arena where we have suffered sharp setbacks, a void the government is worriedly hastening to fill with men, missiles and money.

So are the Russians. And the huzzahs for Cmdr. Sheppard haven't chased away one persistent fact that circles overhead like a buzzard:

The Soviet Union can put far bigger loads in space than the United States can. This is an important head start, a 10-run lead in the first inning.

What does this lead mean militarily? Does it end the space race — and perhaps us — before it has scarcely begun?

How did they get ahead? Can America catch up? Is our space program in wasteful disarray?

UNPROMISING FUTURE

Shortly after the Russian cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin orbited the world April 12, Rep. James Fulton (D-Pa.), a member of the House Committee on Science and Astronautics, issued a disturbing warning. Russia's ability to orbit a man indicates, Fulton said, that in four years time they could ring the world with a system of satellites ready to dart armed destruction on the United States at a button's push.

We would only have two minutes warning, he said. We now count on 15-20 minutes notice of missile attack from our radar network.

A satellite bombardment system would require great booster power to orbit it. That the Russians have. It also would require a high order of stability in space to keep its shooting eye accurate. U. S. experts doubt Russia has such stability — now.

The United States' current Discoverer series employs the same principle as an attack satellite. Both eject an object back to earth. So far the United States has not been able to keep up a satellite longer than three days with the stability to return accurately a capsule. And even though planes have caught several capsules in air, the target area has covered hundreds of square miles, too large for military practicality.

How are the Russians doing in this field? They returned Gagarin but so far as the United States knows, they have no comparable satellite recovery program to the Discoverer series. The Pentagon feels, at worst the United States is no less than even with them on satellite stability.

But Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, retired commander of the Army team that developed the highly successful Redstone missile, while agreeing, notes the larger the booster the greater amount of stabilizing equipment that can be carried aloft.

NO IMMEDIATE THREAT

Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Space and Aeronautics Administration (NASA), testified recently it was debatable whether Russia would risk the great cost and uncertainties at this time of a bombardment satellite system when it's much cheaper and more reliable to use conventional ground - to-ground rockets.

In sum, the Pentagon does not fear satellite attack as an imminent threat.

But there is other military use for a satellite than bombardment.

"In times of total war," says Medaris, "anything can be a military advantage, even the ability to get more bread out of the same amount of wheat."

Accurate weather forecasting is an immense asset to modern warfare. So is air reconaissance and communications. The United States has shot up satellites that can gauge weather, photograph the earth, relay messages.

'Don't Tread On Me'

Officials of a Protestant denomination at a recent Dallas meeting took a "put up or shut up" position toward individuals and groups who claim some church organizations have been infiltrated by communists.

This is an admirable stand in one sense as it carries on the American tradition of "don't tread on me." Too many accusations without proper evidence have been tossed about in recent years.

But this same assembly came up with a narrow 250-248 vote to table a motion condemning the secular trend of the National Council of Churches. This vote is revealing in that 248 delegates were concerned about the activities and methods of a national organization which claims to represent the views of 34 denominations and 39 million members.

The "put up or shut up" attitude in regard to the communist conspiracy is difficult to nail down. Paraphrased for action it would read: "Name us the communists in our organization so we can clear them out or quit talking about something that doesn't exist."

The issue is not so simple. Part of the whole picture of communist infiltration is to persuade non-party members to carry out party aims. This has evidently happened in the National Council of Churches of Christ in America and in other organizations as well.

One of the most thorough investigations of this particular organization ever made was carried out recently by a committee of the St. Mark's Episcopal Church of Shreveport.

The report of this committee could serve as a model for good wording in such cases. As to the charge of communism within the NCCCA, the report read:

"The Vestry Committee knows of no instance where any responsible person has accused the NCCCA of being Communist, a Communist Front or of having any of its executive or administrative posts manned by a Communist.

"But there is room for discussion of the extent to which activities or pronouncements of the NCCCA or of high officials within it may have paralleled propaganda of the communists."

The list of "parallel opinions" in the report was striking in that they were of a non-religious or secular nature:

The seating of Red China in the United Nations; the abolition of universal military training in the United States; the suspension of atomic weapons testing, unilaterally, if necessary; the abandonment of military alliances such as the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization; the dissolution of the House Committee on Un-American Activities; the promotion of a reading list which tends to undermine public morals; the desire to halt the showing of the film, "Operation Abolition," which shows how communists organized the student riots in San Francisco in 1960, and the repeal of the McCarran immigration act.

The report of the Shreveport church committee does not answer the demand to "put up or shut up." In fact it opens its argument by pointing out no responsible person would accuse the organization in question of being run by members of the Communist Party.

But even more revealing is the list of aims of the National Council of Churches which parallel those of the communists.

If the communists can find cooperation to such an extent in a national church organization, certainly such assistance can be found elsewhere.

It is hoped the United States and its institutions can survive to a point where the unvarnished integrity of "put up or shut up" will be in vogue again. But in the field of subversion, too much devilment is carried out by proxy.

Military Muzzling

Washington these days is watching closely the conflict between Defense Secretary McNamara and the military-industry bloc. McNamara is reported determined to reduce the military influence and has a couple of task forces figuring out ways and means to do it.

Starting phase of the McNamara attack is to establish strong civilian control over the military brass. Pentagon civilians have issued a "Speakers Guide for Service Spokesmen," which has as its principal aim "don't speak." It tells the military men what they can and can't say. Discussion of foreign policy is banned. Military policy differences are to be aired inside the pentagon, with the policy to be set by administration officials. Once a policy is decided, the military must not disagree publicly, even before congressional committees.

For the sake of international relations, there might be some justification in putting a curb on public discussion by military officers of United States policy.

Blocking these officers from testifying before congressional committees, however, is an entriely different matter. What it means, in realty, is that congress is not to be informed on matters in which administration officials and army officials disagree. This is usurping futher the rights of congress, just as the administration plan for letting the department of agriculture draw on the United States treasury for funds, without going through congress, abridges the right of congress to pass on all appropriations. Congress thus is being reprived of its right to help decide military matters.

Aside from an apparent intention to leave congress out, the McNamara practice which will bring loudest objections from congress is that of leaving the military out of policy-making decisions to a greater extent than ever before.

After listening to all military advice on what to do about U. S. limited-war capability, for instance, the civilian chiefs, with far less knowledge and experience, made a decision that none of the military liked. It was a very limited buildup, with increase in quality but not quantity, for reserve stockpiling of weapons and equipment in strategic places, and for reserve forces to be kept in a ready-to-fight state — but with the bulk of the extra money going to building up primary deterrent forces — like nuclear delivery systems.

McNamara apparently is contemptuous of any idea that he or his uniformed underlings should woo the public in any way.

There seems to be little that the ordinary citizen can do to prevent the administrative branch of government from shriveling up the powers of congress. Whatever is to be done along that line must be done by members of congress themselves, if they can only be awakened to the fact that they are being emasculated.

'Are States Necessary?'

Cabinet Urban Affairs Post Would Be Another Example Of Municipalities Leap-Frogging Capitals

"Are States necessary?"

That is not a question raised by this writer. It is the lead paragraph on an article written by a veteran Washington correspondent of an important newspaper in reporting a Congressional hearing on President Kennedy's proposal to create a new Cabinet Department of Urban Affairs and Housing.

Mr. Kennedy sent to Congress the proposal to add an 11th man to his Cabinet on April 18. It was not received with unbounded welcome on Capitol Hill, but the likelihood is that it will eventually be approved by both Senate and House of Representatives.

The article raising the question of whether States are any longer necessary gave the reasons why the new Cabinet post is likely to be created. It said that the steam behind it is being generated by the American Municipal Association, claiming to represent 13,000 ciites, towns and villages, "tired of being stepchildren to unsympathetic states legislatures."

The article went on to say:

"The new department, if created, would be another example of municipalities leap - frogging State capitals to Washington in a tendency that is one of the most significant of modern times."

Representative William B. Widnall, New Jersey, took the floor of the House of Representatives to tell his colleagues:

"For several years the American people have been subjected to a barrage of propaganda from the mayors of our larger cities for a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing in the President's Cabinet. Approval by the Congress of such a Cabinet Department is fraught with dire implications for our constitutional system of Federal - State - local relations."

Governor Stephen L. R. McNichols, Democrat, Colorado filed a memo with the Senate Operations Committee on behalf of the Council of State Governments, predicting the new Department would tend to destroy the existing relations between State governments and their political subdivisions and would focus on Congress considerably greater pressure for new programs of Federal aid.

The argument for the new Cabinet post is that back in 1889, when the nation was 80 per cent rural the Department of Agriculture was created to look after the interest of farmers. The Department of Agriculture, of course, is still around, as witness the bill reported to the House of Representatives this week carrying a total of $5,948,566,000 for agricultural programs in the next fiscal year.

Say proponents of the Urban Affairs Department, 70 per cent of all Americans now live in urban areas. They also put up the argument that great supercities are stretching across State lines, at present 24 of the largest metropolitan areas include territories in two or more States, therefore a Cabinet Department is needed to help coordinate city problems.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards is one of the most active opponents of the new Cabinet Department, saying it would complete the erosion of our Federal system. In a statement it said:

"To the big city mayors the State has become a relic of the 19th century. The cities want a direct pipeline into the Executive Branch and Congress. The cities are impatient with the manner in which the State legislatures handle the demands of the urban areas. They prefer a more benevolent approach from the Federal level."

The Real Estate Boards predicted that the Housing and Urban Affairs Department eventually would have jurisdiction in matters of public health, highways and railroads, airports, water and air pollution, juvenile delinquency, slum clearance, civil defense, fire protection and prevention location and relocation of industry, general public works planning.

That would just about make the new Cabinet officer the mayor of the United States. The new Cabinet official is expected to be Robert C. Weaver, now the Kennedy-appointed Director of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. Weaver is a Negro and the post he now holds is the highest ever held by one of his race.

At the start the Cabinet post would not be much more than the present Housing and Home Finance Agency, elevated to a position of much higher status and given a top eschelon of a Secretary, an Under Secretary, three Assistant Secretaries, an Administrative Assistant Secretary and a General Counsel.

A $6,190,000,000 omnibus housing bill is now being chaperoned through Congress by Administration leaders, its administration to be placed under Weaver's agency, and would go with him into Cabinet Department to which he is slated to be appointed.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Tariff In U.S.

Original Capitalistic Device To Build Infant Industries

The high tariff was a capitalistic device to build the new and infant industries of the United States. It was Alexander Hamilton, back in the days when George Washington was President, who wrote a report on maunufacturers that laid the foundation for our national economic policies. The tariff was not devised only to bring money into the Treasury but even more to protect the industries from being drowned in a sea of imports.

In recent years, American management has sought foreign markets and has even exported capital and machinery aboard. However, the worker cannot export his job. He either works here or he is out of a job. This has given concern to many labor union officers who see their industries destroyed by the course of events. The tariff on the glass industry has since 1948 been cut from 60 per cent to 14.8 per cent with the result that the plate glass in the United States is undersold by European and Japanese producers who have gained about one-third of the domestic market.

Enoch R. Rust, International Second Vice President of the United Glass and Ceramic Workers, quotes the interesting statement of Rene Lambert, a Belgian producer of sheet glass:

"American companies, not knowing when the strikes were going to be settled, placed orders and covered their requirements for an indefinite period with the foreign manufacturers and, consequently, imports continued at higher than normal level during the first nine months of 1960."

From the labor union standpoint this interferes with the union's ability to strike and therefore with its very existence. Of this Rust says:

"When men hit the streets, they hope to win their fight because the struck company or industry can no longer turn out the goods they had been producing. Retail customers can't buy. Industrial customers can't buy and face the possibility of having to shut down their plants. And so they put pressure on the owners to meet workers' demands."

When, however, the goods can be picked up in Belgium or Japan from twelve to nineteen per cent less than the American price, the strike in the United States becomes purposeless because the goods can be obtained elsewhere. From the standpoint of the labor union, the imported goods become a strike breaker.

This raises a great many questions of union membership, the standard of living of American workers, the sociological problems of unemployment or partial unemployment and so on. Some doubt the intensity of unemployment because they discount the factor of partial employment which can disturb the economics of a family as much as full unemployment.

According to Rust:

"Last year, 7,000,000 boxes of sheet glass were imported into the United States. That's the equivalent of 3,700,000 hours of lost work for American glass workers and approximately equal to the annual production of three United States sheet glass plants.

"Or to put it another way, if that sheet glass had been made in the United States, 1,900 sheet glass workers would have been employed to make it."

This is the gist of our present industrial problem. The economist wonders how a creditor nation can limit the import of goods from countries which seek dollars to pay their debts, whereas the American worker is beginning to wonder how he is to hold his job in competition with lower wages. To this query, he must add the factor of taxes.

This question cannot be solved by political argument because in a free country, the unemployed worker has a vote the same as the employed worker. He will not long tolerate conditions which produce unemployment. His family budget is based upon annual employment for at least forty hours a week. In the 1920's Soviet Russia solved such problems by liquidation but in this country it is not possible to liquidate workers because they object to unemployment. In fact, the Soviet labor union is an instrument of the government and the Communist Party, and therefore exists more to discipline the worker rather than to defend him.

This then is our most serious domestic problem we face and it does not seem possible that it can be solved without protecting American prices within the United States. On the other hand, this country has made numerous commitments against a high protective tariff. Here is an obvious conflict between a social and a political solution to a very serious economic problem.

Fears Federal Takeover

To the Editor:

Your paper is known quite widely as often playing up only one side of the news. In short, your choice of news articles is a form of editorializing. This tendency is often noted when the Catholic Church or some of her clergy take a position on some current problem. You seem unable to distinguish their position on a moral issue tied in with some social or political act, as distinct from an act where the moral effects are not certain.

In the former case, when a specific moral question is involved, the Church assumes one unchanging position, regardless of parties or individuals implicated. In the latter case, because there are elements of both good and bad in an act, individuals within the Church may assume varying positions.

For exaple, the Church has condemned Socialism in official pronouncements long before you or I were born. But particular acts of government which some may consider socialistic are not readily condemned unless there is a clearcut moral question involved. In fact, one Bishop's position may be the opposite of another's.

For that reason, I enclose a clipping from a national Catholic weekly, written by one of the associate editors, which should bring out my point quite clearly. Since his position should meet with your approval, I hope you will help promote his letter - writing campaign.

Sincerely yours,
Sam Danna

(Editor's note: The following article written by a Father Ginder in a national Roman Catholic publication titled "Now or Never on School Aid," is the article to which Mr. Danna referred in his letter to the editor).

Now Or Never 'On School Aid'

Many educators have grave fears for the future of our private schools if the Federal government starts pumping billions of dollars into the public school around the corner. It has been said that to have a good school, all you need is a plank with a teacher on one end and a pupil on the other.

Under the present system of local finance and control, in force for well over a century, you and the other taxpayers of your town have been able to keep a watchful eye on things. You probably pass one or two of the local schools every day on your way to and from work. And if the School Board proposes a bond issue to finance a swimming pool or a student parking lot, the people of the town can exercise judgment.

But it won't be that way if Washington takes over. You'll take that swimming pool and pay for it whether you like it or not: "Big Brother knows best." The politicians will have a grand time of it for themselves, appointing commissioners and inspectors by the thousands, and awarding building contracts to their needy relatives.

Federal Aid to Education will be a long stride down the road to the kind of socialism described by George Orwell in his 1984. The takeover of the schools, once the Federal claw has become firm in its grip, will almost be certainly followed by a kind of process which Hitler called Gleichschaltung — a sort of leveling out.

All the students will be taught the same thing from coast to coast - the official version of history written by men on the government payroll, the same ideals in literature from Maine to California, the same interpretation of social problems, etc. The stimulating clash of idea with idea will be all but unknown, because all the American youth will think as Big Brother wants them to think, excepting the very rich, for only they will be able to patronize the few private schools left to compete with the United States Government.

NO NEED FOR AID

Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles has again stated his conviction that there is no need for Federal aid to grade or high schools, either public or private.

"The state and local school programs have been excellent," he said. "There is no need for an outside force such as the Federal government to step in. On the special interests of the National Education Association have urged the bill."

From our point of view, the situation in Washington has deteriorated alarmingly over the past month or so. The National Education Association, along with its state teachers' associations, has teamed up with the Parent - Teachers' Association in trying to persuade some of the "holdouts" in Congress to change their votes.

Human Events reports that "a number of Southern Democrats are caving in because of Administration pressure — the promise of reward to the helpful and the threat of retaliation to those who do not 'go along' with their party."

DO IT NOW

Will you please address a letter to your two Senators and to your Congressman. The only address you need is "Washington, D.C."

Make it short and type it if you can. Tell why you oppose Federal aid to education, and — please— keep religion out of it. We are protesting in this instance not as Catholics but as American citizens. Tell them that we have done well enough with our public schools so far in our history and you don't think it wise to tinker with that formula. What's more, you don't want even the least possibility of politics entering into our American school system. "Let's leave well enough alone."

Do it right now: a letter from every grownup in your family to each of your two Senators and to your Congressman.

Call this article to the attention of the organizations to which you belong and see how big a letter-writing campaign you can whip up in the next few days. Ask all of your friends to write and urge their friends to write.

If Federal aid to educationis to be blocked, there is not a minute to lose.

Kennedy - Khrush Meet

To the Editor:

President Kennedy has met Krushchev in Geneva and, according to reports, Krushchev would not give in on any issue.

How could the president expect him to with the concessions made by him before going to this meeting? Such as lifting the ban on tons of communist literature loaded with propaganda free to the communists but at the taxpayers expense, and at the disarmament conference offer to cut the inspections from 20 to 12 trips even this did not appear to interest the Russians and the Cuban invasion flop now allowing Castro to black us into trading tractors for Cuban prisoners and his cease fire in Laos ignored and praising dictator Sukarno as a world leader.

All this Khrushchev knows and figures that he has the president over a barrel and will continue to use it to the best advantage. While here at home Robert Kennedy of the justice department has asked for a cooling off and is being ignored by CORE, the so-called freedom riders which is in fact, outside agitators. A Negro minister by the name of Wyatt Lee Walker said the attorney general is asking the wrong people to cool off.

I begin to wonder if the Kennedy brothers champions of the so-called civil rights, realize that they are using the same tactics as the Communist use by sending U. S. marshalls to protect these agitators in what they call testing state laws, which I think is misleading. From all indications they are out to crush state laws and are bent on reversing the Constitution and making satellites of the states under the federal government, control.

More About Dogs

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

Thanks for a truly fine article, "Pets Vs Pests" today's issue. The writer must have had the north end of Alabama Street in mind when he wrote the article. After reading the article I counted nine dogs of doubtful lineage roaming this one block. Three others are confined to a pen next door. Every time the roaming nine pass the three that are penned the howling, barking and snarling is intensified. It never stops completely.

Eight of the "roamers" were following a female belonging to another neighbor, who said she didn't know what was the matter with her dog that made the other dogs follow her around. — Well? In a few weeks she will know. Growing flowers and vegetables is out of the question as the dogs keep them scratched up or so well saturated and fertilized that they would smell like a dog kennel. The editor suggested ear plugs — they don't do any good. The dogs howl, bark and snarl in all the scales and some of the noise they make is bound to come through.

The ordinance against roosters crowing does seem kindly silly, when dogs are permitted to howl and bark.

Only a few days ago the postman stopped at my house to deliver mail and a flea bag dog wouldn't let him get to the mail box. We had to go down the street to get the owner to take the dog away. The postman can verify this. What can be done about the situation where dogs are a threat to children as well as the peace of mind to the rest of the community. I don't know — but certainly have some ideas.

The editor suggested getting a pack of dogs to keep the others company or move away, and cited one instance of a man wanting to sell out and move from the bayou area account of the dogs. A suggestion to that man— don't move to Alabama Street— it is as bad or worse.

Yours truly,
R. Smart

'Don't Tread On Me'

Officials of a Protestant denomination at a recent Dallas meeting took a "put up or shut up" position toward individuals and groups who claim some church organizations have been infiltrated by communists.

This is an admirable stand in one sense as it carries on the American tradition of "don't tread on me." Too many accusations without proper evidence have been tossed about in recent years.

But this same assembly came up with a narrow 250-248 vote to table a motion condemning the secular trend of the National Council of Churches. This vote is revealing in that 248 delegates were concerned about the activities and methods of a national organization which claims to represent the views of 34 denominations and 39 million members.

The "put up or shut up" attitude in regard to the communist conspiracy is difficult to nail down. Paraphrased for action it would read: "Name us the communists in our organization so we can clear them out or quit talking about something that doesn't exist."

The issue is not so simple. Part of the whole picture of communist nfiltration is to persuade non-party members to carry out party aims. This has evidently happened in the National Council of Churches of Christ in America and in other organizations as well.

One of the most thorough investigations of this particular organization ever made was carried out recently by a committee of the St. Mark's Episcopal Church of Shreveport.

The report of this committee could serve as a model for good wording in such cases. As to the charge of communism within the NCCCA, the report read:

"The Vestry Committee knows of no instance where any responsible person has accused the NCCCA of being Communist, a Communist Front or of having any of its executive or administrative posts manned by a Communist.

"But there is room for discussion of the extent to which activities or pronouncements of the NCCCA or of high officials within it may have paralleled propaganda of the communists."

The list of "parallel opinions" in the report was striking in that they were of a non-religious or secular nature:

The seating of Red China in the United Nations; the abolition of universal military training in the United States; the suspension of atomic weapons testing, unilaterally, if necessary; the abandonment of military alliances such as the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization; the dissolution of the House Committee on Un-American Activities; the promotion of a reading list which tends to undermine public morals; the desire to halt the showing of the film, "Operation Abolition," which shows how communists organized the student riots in San Francisco in 1960, and the repeal of the McCarran immigration act.

The report of the Shreveport church committee does not answer the demand to "put up or shut up." In fact it opens its argument by pointing out no responsible person would accuse the organization in question of being run by members of the Communist Party.

But even more revealing is the list of aims of the National Council of Churches which parallel those of the communists.

If the communists can find cooperation to such an extent in a national church organization, certainly such assistance can be found elsewhere.

It is hoped the United States and its institutions can survive to a point where the unvarnished integrity of "put up or shut up" will be in vogue again. But in the field of subversion, too much devilment is carried out by proxy.

Military Muzzling

Washington these days is watching closely the conflict between Defense Secretary McNamara and the military-industry bloc. McNamara is reported determined to reduce the military influence and has a couple of task forces figuring out ways and means to do it.

Starting phase of the McNamara attack is to establish strong civilian control over the military brass. Pentagon civilians have issued a "Speakers Guide for Service Spokesmen," which has as its principal aim "don't speak." It tells the military men what they can and can't say. Discussion of foreign policy is banned. Military policy differences are to be aired inside the pentagon, with the policy to be set by administration officials. Once a policy is decided, the military must not disagree publicly, even before congressional committees.

For the sake of international relations, there might be some justification in putting a curb on public discussion by military officers of United States policy.

Blocking these officers from testifying before congressional committees, however, is an entriely different matter. What it means, in realty, is that congress is not to be informed on matters in which administration officials and army officials disagree. This is usurping futher the rights of congress, just as the administration plan for letting the department of agriculture draw on the United States treasury for funds, without going through congress, abridges the right of congress to pass on all appropriations. Sincerely yours,
Sam Danna

(Editor's note: The following article written by a Father Ginder in a national Roman Catholic publication titled "Now or Never on School Aid," is the article to which Mr. Danna referred in his letter to the editor).

Now Or Never 'On School Aid'

Many educators have grave fears for the future of our private schools if the Federal government starts pumping billions of dollars into the public school around the corner. It has been said that to have a good school, all you need is a plank with a teacher on one end and a pupil on the other.

Under the present system of local finance and control, in force for well over a century, you and the other taxpayers of your town have been able to keep a watchful eye on things. You probably pass one or two of the local schools every day on your way to and from work. And if the School Board proposes a bond issue to finance a swimming pool or a student parking lot, the people of the town can exercise judgment.

But it won't be that way if Washington takes over. You'll take that swimming pool and pay for it whether you like it or not: "Big Brother knows best." The politicians will have a grand time of it for themselves, appointing commissioners and inspectors by the thousands, and awarding building contracts to their needy relatives.

Federal Aid to Education will be a long stride down the road to the kind of socialism described by George Orwell in his 1984. The takeover of the schools, once the Federal claw has become firm in its grip, will almost be certainly followed by a kind of process which Hitler called Gleichschaltung — a sort of leveling out.

All the students will be taught the same thing from coast to coast - the official version of history written by men on the government payroll, the same ideals in literature from Maine to California, the same interpretation of social problems, etc. The stimulating clash of idea with idea will be all but unknown, because all the American youth will think as Big Brother wants them to think, excepting the very rich, for only they will be able to patronize the few private schools left to compete with the United States Government.

NO NEED FOR AID

Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles has again stated his conviction that there is no need for Federal aid to grade or high schools, either public or private.

"The state and local school programs have been excellent," he said. "There is no need for an outside force such as the Federal government to step in. On the special interests of the National Education Association have urged the bill."

From our point of view, the situation in Washington has deteriorated alarmingly over the past month or so. The National Education Association, along with its state teachers' associations, has teamed up with the Parent - Teachers' Association in trying to persuade some of the "holdouts" in Congress to change their votes.

Human Events reports that "a number of Southern Democrats are caving in because of Administration pressure — the promise of reward to the helpful and the threat of retaliation to those who do not 'go along' with their party."

DO IT NOW

Will you please address a letter to your two Senators and to your Congressman. The only address you need is "Washington, D.C."

Make it short and type it if you can. Tell why you oppose Federal aid to education, and — please— keep religion out of it. We are protesting in this instance not as Catholics but as American citizens. Tell them that we have done well enough with our public schools so far in our history and you don't think it wise to tinker with that formula. What's more, you don't want even the least possibility of politics entering into our American school system. "Let's leave well enough alone."

Do it right now: a letter from every grownup in your family to each of your two Senators and to your Congressman.

Call this article to the attention of the organizations to which you belong and see how big a letter-writing campaign you can whip up in the next few days. Ask all of your friends to write and urge their friends to write.

If Federal aid to educationis to be blocked, there is not a minute to lose.

Kennedy - Khrush Meet

To the Editor:

President Kennedy has met Krushchev in Geneva and, according to reports, Krushchev would not give in on any issue.

How could the president expect him to with the concessions made by him before going to this meeting? Such as lifting the ban on tons of communist literature loaded with propaganda free to the communists but at the taxpayers expense, and at the disarmament conference offer to cut the inspections from 20 to 12 trips even this did not appear to interest the Russians and the Cuban invasion flop now allowing Castro to black us into trading tractors for Cuban prisoners and his cease fire in Laos ignored and praising dictator Sukarno as a world leader.

All this Khrushchev knows and figures that he has the president over a barrel and will continue to use it to the best advantage. While here at home Robert Kennedy of the justice department has asked for a cooling off and is being ignored by CORE, the so-called freedom riders which is in fact, outside agitators. A Negro minister by the name of Wyatt Lee Walker said the attorney general is asking the wrong people to cool off.

I begin to wonder if the Kennedy brothers champions of the so-called civil rights, realize that they are using the same tactics as the Communist use by sending U. S. marshalls to protect these agitators in what they call testing state laws, which I think is misleading. From all indications they are out to crush state laws and are bent on reversing the Constitution and making satellites of the states under the federal government, control.

More About Dogs

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

Thanks for a truly fine article, "Pets Vs Pests" today's issue. The writer must have had the north end of Alabama Street in mind when he wrote the article. After reading the article I counted nine dogs of doubtful lineage roaming this one block. Three others are confined to a pen next door. Every time the roaming nine pass the three that are penned the howling, barking and snarling is intensified. It never stops completely.

Eight of the "roamers" were following a female belonging to another neighbor, who said she didn't know what was the matter with her dog that made the other dogs follow her around. — Well? In a few weeks she will know. Growing flowers and vegetables is out of the question as the dogs keep them scratched up or so well saturated and fertilized that they would smell like a dog kennel. The editor suggested ear plugs — they don't do any good. The dogs howl, bark and snarl in all the scales and some of the noise they make is bound to come through.

The ordinance against roosters crowing does seem kindly silly, when dogs are permitted to howl and bark.

Only a few days ago the postman stopped at my house to deliver mail and a flea bag dog wouldn't let him get to the mail box. We had to go down the street to get the owner to take the dog away. The postman can verify this. What can be done about the situation where dogs are a threat to children as well as the peace of mind to the rest of the community. I don't know — but certainly have some ideas.

The editor suggested getting a pack of dogs to keep the others company or move away, and cited one instance of a man wanting to sell out and move from the bayou area account of the dogs. A suggestion to that man— don't move to Alabama Street— it is as bad or worse.

Yours truly,
R. Smart

Here And There

Louisiana Jaycees have adopted a project for which they should receive the backing of all loyal Americans. It is known as "Operation Americanism" and according to an announcement from the state office, the project is destined to become one of the most, if not the most, important and effective projects Jaycee chapters of this state have ever conducted. One objective of the operation is to inform, educate and stimulate Jaycees throughout the state concerning the dangers and evils of communism and the methods and tactics by which communistic thought is seeping into our American way of life. And if you don't think the Communists are, just take a quick look around you . . .

By now everyone in this area has already had several swipes at lawn mowing. Even so there are several months of grass cutting ahead. Now that we've cheered you up, we'll proceed to pass along some helpful hints to safer operation of a power mower offered by Dr. J. Earl Smith, St. Louis health and hospital commissioner. He says studies of accidents with power mowers show that injuries to feet are more frequent than to any other part of the body. Next are injuries to hands, followed closely by an eye injury. The mower operator is the chief victim, but children playing nearby have been injured by being struck with stones, glass and metal picked up by the spinning blade. After giving some safety tips such as rake the area to be mowed and keep spectators away, Dr. Smith urges, "don't overdo things. Working out of doors and cutting grass can be dangerous when you're not in shape, so take it easy." No point in straining yourself . . . let the wife do it . . .

This one may surprise you. Who do you think are the best-fed people in the world? Well, despite what you may have been told, it's not the Americans says a United Nation report. According to it, the Irish eat best, followed in order by New Zealanders, Danes, Britons and Americans. Our boasted standard of living also received a few other blows from this report. It notes that Britons read more newspapers than we do, and that Russians publish more books and see more movies. But we excel in owning automobiles, radios and television sets. Perhaps we would have led in a few other categories if they had been added. Surely we listen to more political speeches than any other people—and lend more money to other countries that never pay back . . .

In case you hadn't seen the item, the White House is getting a new bubbletop limousine with an "elevator" back seat. The electrically operated back seat will hoist occupants so they can be seen more plainly on ceremonial occasions. It seems that in the 1-year-old limousine now in use and being replaced that some foreign visitors of short stature have barely been able to peer over the top of the seat . .

There's bad news for the West in some of the recent Italian elections. It seems that the Communists and Socialists showed a sharp vote increase. In 22 of the larger communities, the combined vote of the Communists and Socialists was 13,238 votes higher than their total in the 1960 elections . . .

According to the mail to Congress and some opinion samplings, there's a change in the public's attitude toward President Kennedy; it is becoming increasingly critical. And too, it seems, that public reaction to Robert Kennedy's U. S. marshal army in Alabama and to his comments on race relations hasn't been what was expected . . .

There's a surprising report out. It seems that American ambassadors are being instructed to picture the American Revolution —not the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917—as the "real revolution" of the modern world that opened the way to good things for the common people. Maybe we're really stupid, but we thought our ambassadors had been doing this all along—at any rate they should have been . . .

Here are some tips on how to cut down on the risk of having your home robbed while you are away on vacation. They are offered by the nation's police chiefs. Notify police when you intend to leave and return; leave a key with a neighbor or relative for making periodic checks of the house, and also let the police know who has the key; discontinue any regular deliveries; have mail held for you at the post office or arrange with a neighbor to put it inside often enough to keep the mailbox from becoming overstuffed, and leave a small light burning in a hallway or a room . . .

The First Baptist Church membership of West Monroe will hear the church's new pastor in that capacity for the first time today. He is Dr. Clifton Tennison, who comes here from Houston, Texas where he was the pastor of the Park Memorial Baptist Church. Dr. Tennison is recognized as an outstanding pastor, and will no doubt fit in well in this area — which we believe, has some of the finest church leaders to be found anywhere. Dr. Tennison succeeds Dr. Jaroy Weber, who resigned about nine months ago to accept a position with the Louisiana Baptist Conference with headquarters in Alexandria. Dr. and Mrs. Tennison have two children, Carroll, 15, and Clifton Jr., 12.

Fans Take It Easy

We are sure this is true to a large degree at all youth base ball games — regardless of where the games are played. But we have seen some complaining by parents at some of the Little Boys Baseball games in West Monroe that are disgusting and certainly not conductive to teaching little boys true sportsmanship.

While realizing that most parents don't do this sort of thing, and realizing those who do probably don't stop and think about the effect that it has on others, we would like to see those parents who are shouting out at umpires and coaches as well as some of the boys on the various teams quit it. In a few cases, we have heard actual cussing directed at the umpires by a few parents. This is about as disgusting a scene as possible. Unless the few parents who are doing this quit it, stringent rules will have to be made by the Board of Directors of Little Boys — which, in the long run, might work a hardship on some of the players who are giving it everything they have — win-lose or draw.

Just remember the umpires are doing the best they can. It is true, they are human also and miss some calls. But, we say to the parents who complain the most, could you do any better night in and night out. So why not get behind the program and push it; there's plenty of work for everyone and as most know, the program is enjoying one of its best seasons.

The Record Corner

The nation's favorite women singers have no other choice but to welcome Wanda Stafford into their club.

She definitely establishes herself as a recording star with endless possibilities on "In Love for the First Time" (Roulette R-25140.)

Miss Stafford is young and attractive, but her timing is like that of a veteran. This is especially noticeable on numbers such as "I Only Have Eyes for You" and "Hurray for Love."

This is Miss Stafford's first LP. It is an auspicious debut.

Helen Humes, one of the greatest jazz singers ever, came back from retirement about two years ago to see if she still had the drive and quality that made her a reputation with the bands of Count Basie and Harry James. There was no doubt about it — a dozen years of virtual inactivity had not affected her voice. In fact, it was like aging cognac.

Now Miss Humes comes forth with another great LP, "Songs I Like to Sing" (Contemporary M-3581). Most of the songs are familiar ("If I Could Be With You," "Love Me or Leave Me," etc.) She doesn't need any help but receives enthusiastic backing from famous sidemen, including Barney Kessel, Shelly Manne, Stu Williamson, Leroy Vinnegar and Andrew Previn.

Other distaff discs:

"Songs to a Swinging Band" by Connie Francis (MGM E3893). Miss Francis shows a remarkable change of pace in front of a big band conducted by Richard Wess.

"All Star Hits" by Kay Starr (Capitol T1468). Kay is in fine form in a reprise of some of the songs she has put over, among them "Angry" and "Mississippi."

"The Big 15" by Damita Jo (ABC - Paramount ABC 378). Damita, with the help of Steve Gibson and the Red Caps, gives the listener three bonus songs in a fast - moving program.

"Hear Anita Bryant in Your Home Tonight" (Carlton STLP 12-127). One of the most beautiful women in show business proves in this selection that she is no flash in the pan as a singer.

All Summer Days Is Very Entertaining

ALL THE SUMMER DAYS. By Ned Calmer. Little, Brown. $4.50.

If you were free to choose in what period you would like to be an American in Paris, you might very well select the late 1920's. Reading this novel will take you there, and into the lives of the people who worked on the "Paris American."

This imaginary newspaper was pretty sophomoric, in an age when the Lost Generation thought it was smart to be collegiate exiles. The staff devoted more of its time to wine, women and hedonism that it did to newspapering. It was composed mostly of people who dreamed of becoming famous, whereas in actual fact they couldn't have made the graade on a real newspaper back home.

The story is told by Alex Garnder, who proves to be one of the two people in the book who grow up. One who never grows up is Don Holmes, who drinks even more than the others to conceal the fact he doesn't have what it takes to be a novelist.

Another type is Roger Austin, outwardly the most sophisticated and detached of the lot, who falls in love with Holmes' wife and then fails the test of maturity when it comes. And there is the beautiful, virginal Ware Kendall, who swoons for a British poetaster and is horribly disillusioned.

Calmer, whose career began with actual experience on the Paris editions of two American newspapers, has written a lively novel about a segment of Parisian life, filled with brittle but colorful characters.

He is a fine storyteller and his descriptions of the zany poeple who lived at the Grand Hotel Edmond Rostand et d'Auvergne furnish a wonderful side light to the narrative. In the early pages of the book you may be inclined to feel the whole affair is pretty superficial. But stay with it. It develops depths.

MILA 18. By Leon Uris. Doubleday. $4.95.

When Uris wrote "Exodus," he incorporated a brief episode about the uprising in the Warsaw ghetto during World War II. This novel is a tense narrative of a doomed, desperately heroic group of men and women who fought that battle.

The story begins in August, 1939, on the eve of war. Gradually the terrifying blows of fate fell — the German occupation, the creation of 100 city blocks of walled ghetto, the brutalities, the extortions, starvation, the dumping of uprooted Jews into the ghetto until there were half a million, the shipments to the death camps.

Finally when the gruesome shipments had removed all but a tenth of the ghetto's humanity, the Jewish leaders decided to fight back with smuggled and homemade weapons. About a thousand of them held off Nazi soldiers, bombs, tanks and planes for a month and a half. Only a few score crawled through the sewers for a final escape. The book takes its title from the street address of the bunker that served as headquarters for the revolt.

Uris has made the story memorable because he has succeeded in combining dramatic action with the whole wide gamut of his characters' ideas and emotions. There are two principal heroes, in the individual sense —Adrei Androfski, the Uhlan officer who always demands violent action, and Alex Brandel, the scholar and pacifist.

Brandel eventually agrees to the use of violence, and symbolically hurls the first gasoline bomb at the advancing Germans. Androfski serves as military leader of the doomed battalion. But more important than either of them is the journal which Brandel has been keeping, to be smuggled out later for the world to see.

There are sharp characterizations in this novel, such as the Italian journalist who goes into the ghetto because of another man's wife; the corrupt Nazi officials; and the teenagers who fall in love amid all the horrors.

Dredging Up Old Troubles In New Book

COURT OF CROWS. By Rober A. Knowlton. Harper. $4.

The sene of this novel is an island off the Carolina coast, where the natives make their living off the tourists and summer renters. It is about a murder, but even more than that it is about a woman struck down by tragedy.

The man who gets clobbered fatally with a crowbar is one of the renters, Jay Mowery, an elderly grump. It is understandable that his wife Mercy would look somewhere for love and affection, but she made a blunder in taking up with young Ashley Wister, a native who is handsome, bird-brined and crude.

Is Time Running Out In Vietnam?

EDITOR'S NOTE — For the past 18 months, a tough little war has been raging in Laos' neighbor state, South Viet Nam. Is time running out for the pro-Western government of this important Asian country? A noted AP correspondent reports on the stepped-up Communist drive and weighs the plus and minus factors of the crisis.

By RELMAN MORIN

Time to win the shooting war, time to revamp an army and build an economy, time to give hope for the future to 13 million freedom-loving people.

Everybody here talks of time, and the United States may be forced to use more than dollars to buy it now.

"If they give us six months —" says an American officer, describing plans to reorganize the Vietnamese army. "They" means the Communist Viet Cong.

"In the past month, the Communists have stepped up their attacks," says a Vietnamese defense authority. "We expect more throughout June."

"What this country needs is two decades of peace," says an economic administrator.

"There was a great sense of urgency in Washington," says a diplomat, discussing Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's recent trip to Viet Nam and Southeast Asia.

The clock is ticking fast in this part of the world.

It speeded up early this year, primarily because of Laos. The Communists there — known as the Pathet Lao — fought their way to a dominating military position. Laos has a common border with South Viet Nam. Hence, vast areas of Vietnamese territory are now even more open to Communist penetration than before.

Shortly after these setbacks, Johnson flew to Southeast Asia, promising military aid, and giving assurances that the United States would stand by the anti-Communist nations here.

Long before, however, the Communists were working hard on South Viet Nam, which is bigger and infinitely more important than Laos.

For four years, until the end of 1959, they tried to collapse the country by propaganda, subversion, and other tactics. Then they went over to guerrilla warfare.

For 18 months, a vicious shooting war has been going on. Defense authorities say military and civilian casualties run between 300 and 500 a month. They estimate that the Communist Viet Cong loses about 500 men a month.

The big area of operations is south of Saigon. This is a delta, more water than land, a nightmare of marshes, criss-crossing waterways, thick jungle, few roads—the ideal terrain for guerrillas. They also operate in the mountains in the north.

To counter these operations, a number of new steps are being taken—

1. A shift in trailing and tactics.

Originally, the 150,000-man army was designed to meet an all-out attack from North Viet Nam. Now the emphasis will be on counter-guerrilla training. Eventually, every unit of the army will have ranger-type forces capable of hitting the Viet Cong with its own tactics.

2. Expansion of the army and civil guard.

American assistance will add 20,000 men to the regular army and go into the training and equipping of 60,000 militia-type troops who are supposed to guard the individual village.

3. Coordination of ground, water and air forces.

Using air-ground control teams, plus river boat patrols, army units are beginning to react much more rapidly now to guerrilla hit-and-run attacks.

4. Intensified psychological warfare in the villages.

Until recently, the Communists had almost a copyright on this weapon. With leaflets and personal haranguing, they told the peasants this war is an extension of the war for independence against the French.

Now, Vietnamese are getting psychological warfare training at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., and other American centers.

In South Viet Nam, newly trained officers are now going into villages with movies, lectures, calendars, and an illustrated leaflet that looks like a newspaper. It does contain some current news. Most articles, however, deal with more homely matters.

One article circulated before the presidential election of April 11, is captioned, "What is a ballot?"

In the simplest terms, it explains the importance of elections, and why the peasant should vote.

So the war rages on, fought with many weapons.

Virtually everything else in Viet Nam today—economic, social and political—pivots to some extent on the war. The black shadow of the "security problem" hangs over almost every phase of life.

Is the country making progress economically?

The Far Eastern Economic Review recently reported, "In 1960 almost all economic targets were achieved and there was particularly satisfactory progress in the fields of industrialization and diversification of crops."

A well-informed official said South Viet Nam is "making considerable progress toward a balanced economy." He said, "The thing that surprises me is the number of people who are willing to put money into capital investment."

A Vietnamese businessman complained, however, "Last year, I made money. This year I'm losing my shirt." He attributed this to the "security problem," guerrilla operations in areas where he has his enterprises.

Total American aid to Viet Nam since 1954 has been $1.3 billion.

The war in the countryside cripples progress on many fronts.

For example, in nine years of constant fighting, the communications of Viet Nam were torn to bits. Highways, access roads, and bridges are desperately needed. These are being built. But it is easy to knock down a bridge or damage a road unless it is guarded.

In education, every year sees more students, more teachers, more laboratories and workshops, thousands of new classrooms. But a wooden school house in a remote village burns like a box of matches when the Viet Cong come.

An official who tries to meet the problems of the people is often marked for speedy assassination by the Viet Cong. An inefficient or oppressive official is more likely to survive the night with his throat uncut.

There are many problems for a new, underdeveloped nation. One, in the view of his critics and political opponents, is President Ngo Dinh Diem himself.

His opponents accuse him of being a dictator. They accuse him of curtailing civil liberties, of having people arrested without charge or notification to their families, of being walled off from the mass of Vietnamese, of putting members of his family in positions of power.

Yet most of these accusations were freely voiced during the election campaign. They were contained in speeches given on public platforms.

Diem replies:

1. That he didn't have to grant a presidential election at all. The constitution provides that, during an emergency, elections may be postponed.

2. In the elections, well over 90 per cent of those eligible went to the polls. Diem received 89.7 per cent of the total cast. He says his biggest votes came in areas where the Communists were most active. He interprets the total result as a mandate from the people and an overwhelming expression of confidence.

3. He contrasts his regime, favorably, with those of other Asian governments. He says the National Assembly is anything but a rubber stamp, and that he often has to argue with the opposition on matters of policy.

His opponents, however, say the election was rigged.

Last November 11, some paratroop units surrounded Diem's palace and for 32 hours a Korea-type coup appeared in the making. Loyal troops swiftly quashed it.

Diem says the paratroops were deceived by a few dissident officers, that they were told they were going on an "urgent mission" to "liberate" the president from other army units that had attacked the palace.

When he appeared on the balcony, he says, the paratroops cheered him. He ordered the palace guards to stop shooting.

As for democratization and liberalizing his policies, he says the choice in Asia is not between democracy and dictatorship" but to govern with a system adopted to the conditions of a country which is underdeveloped and under armed attack.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The summer months are ideal for reading and the Ouachita Parish Public Library is equipped to fill your reading needs. The four libraries are air - conditioned and comfortable and the Bookmobile is busy travelling over the areas outside the Twin Cities. Several thousand children are enrolled in summer vacation reading club and all units of the Library are as busy as can be.

New books are constantly being added and there are several titles of great interest this week. In the field of fiction "Mothers and Daughters" by Evan Hunter is certain to be popular. It is a large book, which will appeal especially to women and will hold their interest. It is a book which contains four different love affairs, all of which are interconnected. It is a good book for long summer afternoons and is one you will not want to miss. A rather unpleasant picture of upper - middle - class, statusconscious small town life is portrayed in "Young Men of the Year" by Elizabeth Gray Stewart. It has it's setting in a New England town, where each year a man under forty is singled out for his special contribution to the town and is named Young Man of the Year. This is the story of four candidates for this honor, of their wives and of the effect of this struggle upon their lives. A Double Western, which will interest those readers who find our far west of supreme interest is "Cherokee Outlet" by Dwight Bennett. It is a better than average Western story and should find many interested readers. "Annie's Captian" by Kathryn Hole is based on the lives of her grandmother and grandfather and is the story of a New England sea faring man and the wife who loved him. It is a sweet story, which will appeal especially to women. Two books of fiction especially for teen - agers are "One Small Voice" by Bob and Jan Young and "Mystery Clouds the Canyon" by Annette Turngren. Both will find a ready audience.

A book which will be valuable to many readers is called "Everyone's Legal Adviser" by William Capitman. It contains simple legal advice and tells a person when they need a lawyer. In great demand at all branches of the library are books about speech making. A new one added to the many already in the collection is "Speaker's Encyclopedia of Humor" by Jacob Morton Braude. This book contains humorous selections to fit almost any occasion. Our community is very theatre minded, especially since the opening of the Strauss Memorial Play-House. New plays are always eagerly received. The latest edition to the library collection is "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" written by Meredith Willson.

A very fine publishing venture is being carried on by the University of Michigan Press. They are publishing a series of histories about the modern world. The first two volumes dealt with the United States. One volume took the history of our country up to 1865 and was written by Michael Kraus. The second volume dealt with the United States since 1865 and the author was Foster Rhea Dulles. The third volume was a history of France and the author was Albert Leon Guerard. The fourth volume deal with Canada and its author was J. B. Brebner. Just received this past week was the volume dealing with Germany and written by Marshall Dill, Jr. These books are very scholarly additions to our library collection and we are proud to have them.

An interesting book dealing with a period of American history, about which little has been written is "When they Burned the White House" by Andrew Tulley. This is a book about the War of 1812 and is very well - written. A biography about one of the most interesting literary figures of our time is "The Three Worlds of Boris Pasternak" written by Pierre S. Payne. This is the account of the Russian writer, who was awarded the Nobel prize in Literature, but was unable to accept it.

A perfectly lovely book, which contributes much of an understanding of our region is "Sons of the South" by Clayton Rand. Mr. Rand, a native Mississippian and a true Southerner has given us a profile and protrait of one hundred men, who contributed to the greatness of the nation and the glory of the South. The book is divided into four sections; 1. Founding Fathers, 2. Colonizers and builders of the Republic, 3. The Rise and Fall of the Confederacy and 4. Reconstruction, Reunion and World Power. Reading this book gives one a picture of American History and we realize just how much the South has contributed to the history of our nation. Mr. Rand spoke at the recent meeting of the Police Jury Association in New Orleans. Several people who heard him, asked me immediately for the book. We are happy that the Library has four copies and know that all of you will want to read it.

In addition to the books mentioned above, many new children's books are being added each week in an effort to meet the demands on the Library collection. Are you taking advantage of your resources? If not, we give you a cordial invitation to do so.

Here And There

Louisiana Jaycees have adopted a project for which they should receive the backing of all loyal Americans. It is known as "Operation Americanism" and according to an announcement from the state office, the project is destined to become one of the most, if not the most, important and effective projects Jaycee chapters of this state have ever conducted. One objective of the operation is to inform, educate and stimulate Jaycees throughout the state concerning the dangers and evils of communism and the methods and tactics by which communistic thought is seeping into our American way of life. And if you don't think the Communists are, just take a quick look around you . . .

By now everyone in this area has already had several swipes at lawn mowing. Even so there are several months of grass cutting ahead. Now that we've cheered you up, we'll proceed to pass along some helpful hints to safer operation of a power mower offered by Dr. J. Earl Smith, St. Louis health and hospital commissioner. He says studies of accidents with power mowers show that injuries to feet are more frequent than to any other part of the body. Next are injuries to hands, followed closely by an eye injury. The mower operator is the chief victim, but children playing nearby have been injured by being struck with stones, glass and metal picked up by the spinning blade. After giving some safety tips such as rake the area to be mowed and keep spectators away, Dr. Smith urges, "don't overdo things. Working out of doors and cutting grass can be dangerous when you're not in shape, so take it easy." No point in straining yourself . . . let the wife do it . . .

This one may surprise you. Who do you think are the best-fed people in the world? Well, despite what you may have been told, it's not the Americans says a United Nation report. According to it, the Irish eat best, followed in order by New Zealanders, Danes, Britons and Americans. Our boasted standard of living also received a few other blows from this report. It notes that Britons read more newspapers than we do, and that Russians publish more books and see more movies. But we excel in owning automobiles, radios and television sets. Perhaps we would have led in a few other categories if they had been added. Surely we listen to more political speeches than any other people—and lend more money to other countries that never pay back . . .

In case you hadn't seen the item, the White House is getting a new bubbletop limousine with an "elevator" back seat. The electrically operated back seat will hoist occupants so they can be seen more plainly on ceremonial occasions. It seems that in the 1-year-old limousine now in use and being replaced that some foreign visitors of short stature have barely been able to peer over the top of the seat . .

There's bad news for the West in some of the recent Italian elections. It seems that the Communists and Socialists showed a sharp vote increase. In 22 of the larger communities, the combined vote of the Communists and Socialists was 13,238 votes higher than their total in the 1960 elections . . .

According to the mail to Congress and some opinion samplings, there's a change in the public's attitude toward President Kennedy; it is becoming increasingly critical. And too, it seems, that public reaction to Robert Kennedy's U. S. marshal army in Alabama and to his comments on race relations hasn't been what was expected . . .

There's a surprising report out. It seems that American ambassadors are being instructed to picture the American Revolution —not the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917—as the "real revolution" of the modern world that opened the way to good things for the common people. Maybe we're really stupid, but we thought our ambassadors had been doing this all along—at any rate they should have been . . .

Here are some tips on how to cut down on the risk of having your home robbed while you are away on vacation. They are offered by the nation's police chiefs. Notify police when you intend to leave and return; leave a key with a neighbor or relative for making periodic checks of the house, and also let the police know who has the key; discontinue any regular deliveries; have mail held for you at the post office or arrange with a neighbor to put it inside often enough to keep the mailbox from becoming overstuffed, and leave a small light burning in a hallway or a room . . .

The First Baptist Church membership of West Monroe will hear the church's new pastor in that capacity for the first time today. He is Dr. Clifton Tennison, who comes here from Houston, Texas where he was the pastor of the Park Memorial Baptist Church. Dr. Tennison is recognized as an outstanding pastor, and will no doubt fit in well in this area — which we believe, has some of the finest church leaders to be found anywhere. Dr. Tennison succeeds Dr. Jaroy Weber, who resigned about nine months ago to accept a position with the Louisiana Baptist Conference with headquarters in Alexandria. Dr. and Mrs. Tennison have two children, Carroll, 15, and Clifton Jr., 12.

Fans Take It Easy

We are sure this is true to a large degree at all youth baseball games — regardless of where the games are played. But we have seen some complaining by parents at some of the Little Boys Baseball games in West Monroe that are disgusting and certainly not conductive to teaching little boys true sportsmanship.

While realizing that most parents don't do this sort of thing, and realizing those who do probably don't stop and think about the effect that it has on others, we would like to see those parents who are shouting out at umpires and coaches as well as some of the boys on the various teams quit it. In a few cases, we have heard actual cussing directed at the umpires by a few parents. This is about as disgusting a scene as possible. Unless the few parents who are doing this quit it, stringent rules will have to be made by the Board of Directors of Little Boys — which, in the long run, might work a hardship on some of the players who are giving it everything they have — win-lose or draw.

Just remember the umpires are doing the best they can. It is true, they are human also and miss some calls. But, we say to the parents who complain the most, could you do any better night in and night out. So why not get behind the program and push it; there's plenty of work for everyone and as most know, the program is enjoying one of its best seasons.

The Record Corner

The nation's favorite women singers have no other choice but to welcome Wanda Stafford into their club.

She definitely establishes herself as a recording star with endless possibilities on "In Love for the First Time" (Roulette R-25140.)

Miss Stafford is young and attractive, but her timing is like that of a veteran. This is especially noticeable on numbers such as "I Only Have Eyes for You" and "Hurray for Love."

This is Miss Stafford's first LP. It is an auspicious debut.

Helen Humes, one of the greatest jazz singers ever, came back from retirement about two years ago to see if she still had the drive and quality that made her a reputation with the bands of Count Basie and Harry James. There was no doubt about it — a dozen years of virtual inactivity had not affected her voice. In fact, it was like aging cognac.

Now Miss Humes comes forth with another great LP, "Songs I Like to Sing" (Contemporary M-3581). Most of the songs are familiar ("If I Could Be With You," "Love Me or Leave Me," etc.) She doesn't need any help but receives enthusiastic backing from famous sidemen, including Barney Kessel, Shelly Manne, Stu Williamson, Leroy Vinnegar and Andrew Previn.

"All Star Hits" by Kay Starr (Capitol T1468). Kay is in fine form in a reprise of some of the songs she has put over, among them "Angry" and "Mississippi."

"The Big 15" by Damita Jo (ABC - Paramount ABC 378). Damita, with the help of Steve Gibson and the Red Caps, gives the listener three bonus songs in a fast - moving program.

"Hear Anita Bryant in Your Home Tonight" (Carlton STLP 12-127). One of the most beautiful women in show business proves in this selection that she is no flash in the pan as a singer.

Dredging Up Old Troubles In New Book

COURT OF CROWS. By Rober A. Knowlton. Harper. $4.

The sene of this novel is an island off the Carolina coast, where the natives make their living off the tourists and summer renters. It is about a murder, but even more than that it is about a woman struck down by tragedy.

The man who gets clobbered fatally with a crowbar is one of the renters, Jay Mowery, an elderly grump. It is understandable that his wife Mercy would look somewhere for love and affection, but she made a blunder in taking up with young Ashley Wister, a native who is handsome, bird-brined and crude.

All Summer Days Is Very Entertaining

ALL THE SUMMER DAYS. By Ned Calmer. Little, Brown. $4.50.

If you were free to choose in what period you would like to be an American in Paris, you might very well select the late 1920's. Reading this novel will take you there, and into the lives of the people who worked on the "Paris American."

This imaginary newspaper was pretty sophomoric, in an age when the Lost Generation thought it was smart to be collegiate exiles. The staff devoted more of its time to wine, women and hedonism that it did to newspapering. It was composed mostly of people who dreamed of becoming famous, whereas in actual fact they couldn't have made the graade on a real newspaper back home.

The story is told by Alex Garnder, who proves to be one of the two people in the book who grow up. One who never grows up is Don Holmes, who drinks even more than the others to conceal the fact he doesn't have what it takes to be a novelist.

Another type is Roger Austin, outwardly the most sophisticated and detached of the lot, who falls in love with Holmes' wife and then fails the test of maturity when it comes. And there is the beautiful, virginal Ware Kendall, who swoons for a British poetaster and is horribly disillusioned.

Calmer, whose career began with actual experience on the Paris editions of two American newspapers, has written a lively novel about a segment of Parisian life, filled with brittle but colorful characters.

He is a fine storyteller and his descriptions of the zany poeple who lived at the Grand Hotel Edmond Rostand et d'Auvergne furnish a wonderful side light to the narrative. In the early pages of the book you may be inclined to feel the whole affair is pretty superficial. But stay with it. It develops depths.

MILA 18. By Leon Uris. Doubleday. $4.95.

When Uris wrote "Exodus," he incorporated a brief episode about the uprising in the Warsaw ghetto during World War II. This novel is a tense narrative of a doomed, desperately heroic group of men and women who fought that battle.

The story begins in August, 1939, on the eve of war. Gradually the terrifying blows of fate fell — the German occupation, the creation of 100 city blocks of walled ghetto, the brutalities, the extortions, starvation, the dumping of uprooted Jews into the ghetto until there were half a million, the shipments to the death camps.

Finally when the gruesome shipments had removed all but a tenth of the ghetto's humanity, the Jewish leaders decided to fight back with smuggled and homemade weapons. About a thousand of them held off Nazi soldiers, bombs, tanks and planes for a month and a half. Only a few score crawled through the sewers for a final escape. The book takes its title from the street address of the bunker that served as headquarters for the revolt.

Uris has made the story memorable because he has succeeded in combining dramatic action with the whole wide gamut of his characters' ideas and emotions. There are two principal heroes, in the individual sense —Adrei Androfski, the Uhlan officer who always demands violent action, and Alex Brandel, the scholar and pacifist.

Brandel eventually agrees to the use of violence, and symbolically hurls the first gasoline bomb at the advancing Germans. Androfski serves as military leader of the doomed battalion. But more important than either of them is the journal which Brandel has been keeping, to be smuggled out later for the world to see.

There are sharp characterizations in this novel, such as the Italian journalist who goes into the ghetto because of another man's wife; the corrupt Nazi officials; and the teenagers who fall in love amid all the horrors.

Is Time Running Out In Vietnam?

EDITOR'S NOTE — For the past 18 months, a tough little war has been raging in Laos' neighbor state, South Viet Nam. Is time running out for the pro-Western government of this important Asian country? A noted AP correspondent reports on the stepped-up Communist drive and weighs the plus and minus factors of the crisis.

By RELMAN MORIN

Time to win the shooting war, time to revamp an army and build an economy, time to give hope for the future to 13 million freedom-loving people.

Everybody here talks of time, and the United States may be forced to use more than dollars to buy it now.

"If they give us six months —" says an American officer, describing plans to reorganize the Vietnamese army. "They" means the Communist Viet Cong.

"In the past month, the Communists have stepped up their attacks," says a Vietnamese defense authority. "We expect more throughout June."

"What this country needs is two decades of peace," says an economic administrator.

"There was a great sense of urgency in Washington," says a diplomat, discussing Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's recent trip to Viet Nam and Southeast Asia.

The clock is ticking fast in this part of the world.

It speeded up early this year, primarily because of Laos. The Communists there — known as the Pathet Lao — fought their way to a dominating military position. Laos has a common border with South Viet Nam. Hence, vast areas of Vietnamese territory are now even more open to Communist penetration than before.

Shortly after these setbacks, Johnson flew to Southeast Asia, promising military aid, and giving assurances that the United States would stand by the anti-Communist nations here.

Long before, however, the Communists were working hard on South Viet Nam, which is bigger and infinitely more important than Laos.

For four years, until the end of 1959, they tried to collapse the country by propaganda, subversion, and other tactics. Then they went over to guerrilla warfare.

For 18 months, a vicious shooting war has been going on. Defense authorities say military and civilian casualties run between 300 and 500 a month. They estimate that the Communist Viet Cong loses about 500 men a month.

The big area of operations is south of Saigon. This is a delta, more water than land, a nightmare of marshes, criss-crossing waterways, thick jungle, few roads—the ideal terrain for guerrillas. They also operate in the mountains in the north.

To counter these operations, a number of new steps are being taken—

1. A shift in trailing and tactics.

Originally, the 150,000-man army was designed to meet an all-out attack from North Viet Nam. Now the emphasis will be on counter-guerrilla training. Eventually, every unit of the army will have ranger-type forces capable of hitting the Viet Cong with its own tactics.

2. Expansion of the army and civil guard.

American assistance will add 20,000 men to the regular army and go into the training and equipping of 60,000 militia-type troops who are supposed to guard the individual village.

3. Coordination of ground, water and air forces.

Using air-ground control teams, plus river boat patrols, army units are beginning to react much more rapidly now to guerrilla hit-and-run attacks.

4. Intensified psychological warfare in the villages.

Until recently, the Communists had almost a copyright on this weapon. With leaflets and personal haranguing, they told the peasants this war is an extension of the war for independence against the French.

Now, Vietnamese are getting psychological warfare training at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., and other American centers.

In South Viet Nam, newly trained officers are now going into villages with movies, lectures, calendars, and an illustrated leaflet that looks like a newspaper. It does contain some current news. Most articles, however, deal with more homely matters.

One article circulated before the presidential election of April 11, is captioned, "What is a ballot?"

In the simplest terms, it explains the importance of elections, and why the peasant should vote.

So the war rages on, fought with many weapons.

Virtually everything else in Viet Nam today—economic, social and political—pivots to some extent on the war. The black shadow of the "security problem" hangs over almost every phase of life.

Is the country making progress economically?

The Far Eastern Economic Review recently reported, "In 1960 almost all economic targets were achieved and there was particularly satisfactory progress in the fields of industrialization and diversification of crops."

A well-informed official said South Viet Nam is "making considerable progress toward a balanced economy." He said, "The thing that surprises me is the number of people who are willing to put money into capital investment."

A Vietnamese businessman complained, however, "Last year, I made money. This year I'm losing my shirt." He attributed this to the "security problem," guerrilla operations in areas where he has his enterprises.

Total American aid to Viet Nam since 1954 has been $1.3 billion.

The war in the countryside cripples progress on many fronts.

For example, in nine years of constant fighting, the communications of Viet Nam were torn to bits. Highways, access roads, and bridges are desperately needed. These are being built. But it is easy to knock down a bridge or damage a road unless it is guarded.

In education, every year sees more students, more teachers, more laboratories and workshops, thousands of new classrooms. But a wooden school house in a remote village burns like a box of matches when the Viet Cong come.

An official who tries to meet the problems of the people is often marked for speedy assassination by the Viet Cong. An inefficient or oppressive official is more likely to survive the night with his throat uncut.

There are many problems for a new, underdeveloped nation. One, in the view of his critics and political opponents, is President Ngo Dinh Diem himself.

His opponents accuse him of being a dictator. They accuse him of curtailing civil liberties, of having people arrested without charge or notification to their families, of being walled off from the mass of Vietnamese, of putting members of his family in positions of power.

Yet most of these accusations were freely voiced during the election campaign. They were contained in speeches given on public platforms.

Diem replies:

1. That he didn't have to grant a presidential election at all. The constitution provides that, during an emergency, elections may be postponed.

2. In the elections, well over 90 per cent of those eligible went to the polls. Diem received 89.7 per cent of the total cast. He says his biggest votes came in areas where the Communists were most active. He interprets the total result as a mandate from the people and an overwhelming expression of confidence.

3. He contrasts his regime, favorably, with those of other Asian governments. He says the National Assembly is anything but a rubber stamp, and that he often has to argue with the opposition on matters of policy.

His opponents, however, say the election was rigged.

Last November 11, some paratroop units surrounded Diem's palace and for 32 hours a Korea-type coup appeared in the making. Loyal troops swiftly quashed it.

Diem says the paratroops were deceived by a few dissident officers, that they were told they were going on an "urgent mission" to "liberate" the president from other army units that had attacked the palace.

When he appeared on the balcony, he says, the paratroops cheered him. He ordered the palace guards to stop shooting.

As for democratization and liberalizing his policies, he says the choice in Asia is not between democracy and dictatorship" but to govern with a system adopted to the conditions of a country which is underdeveloped and under armed attack.

Curtain Call

Five stars to the Monroe Little Theatre on the close of its first season in the Strauss Playhouse. "The Diary of Anne Frank" flowered into a thoughtfully produced, hard - hitting show. The simplicity of the interpretation reflected the sensitivity of the cast.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The summer months are ideal for reading and the Ouachita Parish Public Library is equipped to fill your reading needs. The four libraries are air - conditioned and comfortable and the Bookmobile is busy travelling over the areas outside the Twin Cities. Several thousand children are enrolled in summer vacation reading club and all units of the Library are as busy as can be.

New books are constantly being added and there are several titles of great interest this week. In the field of fiction "Mothers and Daughters" by Evan Hunter is certain to be popular. It is a large book, which will appeal especially to women and will hold their interest. It is a book which contains four different love affairs, all of which are interconnected. It is a good book for long summer afternoons and is one you will not want to miss. A rather unpleasant picture of upper - middle - class, statusconscious small town life is portrayed in "Young Men of the Year" by Elizabeth Gray Stewart. It has it's setting in a New England town, where each year a man under forty is singled out for his special contribution to the town and is named Young Man of the Year. This is the story of four candidates for this honor, of their wives and of the effect of this struggle upon their lives. A Double Western, which will interest those readers who find our far west of supreme interest is "Cherokee Outlet" by Dwight Bennett. It is a better than average Western story and should find many interested readers. "Annie's Captian" by Kathryn Hole is based on the lives of her grandmother and grandfather and is the story of a New England sea faring man and the wife who loved him. It is a sweet story, which will appeal especially to women. Two books of fiction especially for teen - agers are "One Small Voice" by Bob and Jan Young and "Mystery Clouds the Canyon" by Annette Turngren. Both will find a ready audience.

A book which will be valuable to many readers is called "Everyone's Legal Adviser" by William Capitman. It contains simple legal advice and tells a person when they need a lawyer. In great demand at all branches of the library are books about speech making. A new one added to the many already in the collection is "Speaker's Encyclopedia of Humor" by Jacob Morton Braude. This book contains humorous selections to fit almost any occasion. Our community is very theatre minded, especially since the opening of the Strauss Memorial Play-House. New plays are always eagerly received. The latest edition to the library collection is "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" written by Meredith Willson.

A very fine publishing venture is being carried on by the University of Michigan Press. They are publishing a series of histories about the modern world. The first two volumes dealt with the United States. One volume took the history of our country up to 1865 and was written by Michael Kraus. The second volume dealt with the United States since 1865 and the author was Foster Rhea Dulles. The third volume was a history of France and the author was Albert Leon Guerard. The fourth volume deal with Canada and its author was J. B. Brebner. Just received this past week was the volume dealing with Germany and written by Marshall Dill, Jr. These books are very scholarly additions to our library collection and we are proud to have them.

An interesting book dealing with a period of American history, about which little has been written is "When they Burned the White House" by Andrew Tulley. This is a book about the War of 1812 and is very well - written. A biography about one of the most interesting literary figures of our time is "The Three Worlds of Boris Pasternak" written by Pierre S. Payne. This is the account of the Russian writer, who was awarded the Nobel prize in Literature, but was unable to accept it.

A perfectly lovely book, which contributes much of an understanding of our region is "Sons of the South" by Clayton Rand. Mr. Rand, a native Mississippian and a true Southerner has given us a profile and protrait of one hundred men, who contributed to the greatness of the nation and the glory of the South. The book is divided into four sections; 1. Founding Fathers, 2. Colonizers and builders of the Republic, 3. The Rise and Fall of the Confederacy and 4, Reconstruction, Reunion and World Power. Reading this book gives one a picture of American History and we realize just how much the South has contributed to the history of our nation. Mr. Rand spoke at the recent meeting of the Police Jury Association in New Orleans. Several people who heard him, asked me immediately for the book. We are happy that the Library has four copies and know that all of you will want to read it.

In addition to the books mentioned above, many new children's books are being added each week in an effort to meet the demands on the Library collection. Are you taking advantage of your resources? If not, we give you a cordial invitation to do so.

Alan Shepard Honored With Stamp Issue

Surinam issued two commemorative stamps — one featuring the Russian Gagarin's space flight and the other Shepard's achievement.

The 15 c shows an astronaut inside a space capsule and a globe. The inscription states USSR April 1961. The 20 c depicts a portrait of Commander Shepard, the Redstone Mercury Rocket and a globe. The inscription reads USA May 5, 1961. Both are airmails.

The U. S. Post Office Department has announced it will revise slightly its present 8 cent Statue of Liberty regular postage stamp to meet the new 11 cent international surface mail rate which becomes effective July 1.

In addition to changing the denomination to 11 cents, the colors will be reversed so that the central subject will be in blue and the frame in red.

This stamp will be placed on first day sale at Washington, D.C. on June 15 to concide with the World Conference of Local Governments.

Collectors may obtain first day cancellations by forwarding addressed envelopes to the Postmaster, Washington, D.C., together with remittance to cover the cost of the satmps to be affixed.

In view of the short period of time elapsing between the announcement of this stamp and the issuing date, the usual five day advance mailing is waived. Requests for first day covers may be postmarked up to midnight June 15.

Austria has honored the 13th Conference of the Ministers of Communications of 16 countries who belong to the European Council of Ministers of Communications by issuing a new 3 schilling stamp, reports Edwin Mueller. The stamp shows street, rail and waterway vehicles plus the coat of arms of the city of Vienna.

The American Air Mail Society and the United Nations Postal Administration held a joint informal ceremony at U. N. Headquarters to observe the issuance of the new 30 cent stamp added to the series of U.N. regular issues.

Tunisia has issued a set of four new stamps honoring "Stamp Day." The new stamps also mark the opening of the First National Exhibition of Postage Stamps to be held in Tunis under the sponsorship of the Secretary of State. The designs show Tunisian peasants receiving mail from a mobile post, a mailman, stamps seen through a magnifying glass and a native dancer.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — From a chair on the eighth floor of the Skelly Oil Co. building in Tulsa, one man can deliver 100,000 barrels of liquefied petroleum gas a day from Conway, Kan., to Pine Bend, Minn., or Janesville, Wis.

He does it by pushing buttons, watching lights and dials and pushing more buttons. This is automation in the pipeline industry.

Not really a new idea, but it is perhaps the first liquefied petroleum products pipeline in the world to be controlled from end to end by one man.

Mid-America is a common carrier, built last year in almost record time by Williams Brothers Co., Tulsa. The firm is connected to 28 gasoline plants in southwestern New Mexico, western Texas and the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles.

GOALS ANNOUNCED

U.S. Plans Several Moon Space Ships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States expects to send several early versions of a preman space ship to the vicinity of the moon by 1965 in preparation for landing men there a year or two later.

The interim goal was stated today in a National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) summary of information concerning its new launching site at Cape Canaveral, Fla., for the super-powerful Saturn rocket.

The $43 million launching complex was built by the Army engineers in two years, and was turned over to NASA in ceremonies at Cape Canaveral early this week.

The civilian agency said the first Saturn, standing 160 feet high and four times more powerful than any rocket yet fired by the United States, will be tested at the 45-acre site later this year.

"A series of large rocket test flights is expected to lead by 1965 to the launching of tons of instruments to the moon and Mars, and to the launching of early versions of the pre - man Apollo (lunar) space craft," the agency said.

The space craft will be unmanned in early flights, a spokesman said, but will "ultimately be used for manned lunar landings." The present target is for a landing in 1967.

The first Saturn will be capable of lifting 10 tons into orbit. Later improvements are expected to double the payload.

President Kennedy said in his message to Congress May 25 that "this nation should commit itself to achieving the goals, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon."

The President set no year for the achievements but added that "no single space project in this period will be more impressive to mankind."

Funeral Rites Conducted For Slain Mother

VALDOSTA, Ga. (UPI)—An attractive young mother, found murdered in Jacksonville, Fla. where she had gone to play a "dream hunch" at the dog track, was buried Saturday on her 26th birthday.

A solemn group of griends and relatives gathered for the simple graveside services for Mrs Patricia Hewitt. Her four children, all under five years of age, did not attend.

The bodies of Mrs. Hewitt and her companion, Mrs. Althea Ottavio, were found last week in a palmetto thicket on the outskirts of Jacksonville.

The two women traveled to the Florida city to play a "2-5 dream hunch combination" at the Orange Park Kennel Club.

Mrs. Hewitt's husband said Mrs. Ottavio, a widow known to bet large sums at the dog races, had dreamed the combination would come in the night of May 29.

It did, and paid $177 for a $2 wager, but police have been unable to determine whether the women got around to betting their hunch.

PLANS RED CHINA VISIT

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno, now in Moscow, will visit Communist China next week, Antara news agency reported Saturday. The agency said he would return to Moscow from Peiping and then go to Yugoslavia.

Officers Elected By Future Farmers

Langley stepped up from first vice president.

Cora Jean Doty, Haughton, Friday night was crowned state FFA sweetheart. She was crowned by Llyle Carpenter, Yuma, Colo., national FFA president.

The runnerup for FFA sweetheart honors was Elizabeth Chapman, Bunkie.

Algerian Peace Talks Continue

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France (AP)—French and Algerian negotiators met for the 12th time Saturday in their efforts to plan for the future of Algeria and informants said afterward the talks are deadlocked. The next meeting will be held Tuesday.

After Saturday's session of representatives of the French government and envoys of the nationalist rebels, the positions of the two delegations remained stiffly apart.

Tough ex-guerrilla Belkacem Krim, who heads the Algerian delegation, once again repeated the original rebel point of view which, according to informants, amounts to a request of recognition by France.

French spokesman Philippe Thibaud, his face grim, told newsmen "The approach to the problem remains far apart." He suggested that not a single point in discussions of the thorny problem thus far has opened a possibility for compromise.

Injured Airman Said Recovering

FERRIDAY (Special) — Airman Donald M. Smith of Natchez, Miss., who was injured last Tuesday when he attempted to rescue a companion who had accidentally fallen into Lake St. John near here, is recovering at the Jefferson Davis Memorial Hospital in Natchez, Miss., where he was taken after being pulled from the lake.

Smith, 21, a Navy reservist on active duty at the Natchez, Miss. Naval Reserve Station, suffered slight concussions and other minor injuries when he struck his head against the boat when he jumped.

New Record May Be Set By Sales

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— The economic recovery rolled on during the week and expectations of more rapid improvement later in the year mounted.

The gross national product (GNP) — total of all goods and services—may be setting a record in the current quarter ending June 30.

Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said the GNP for the quarter might reach an annual rate of nearly $510 billion. It was a little under $500 billion in the previous quarter.

Heller said that by the final quarter the rate may be $530 billion.

The National Association of Purchasing Agents reported that new orders, production and employment kept on increasing in May.

MACHINE TOOLS

Producers of machine tools, construction equipment and other manufacturing machinery equipment predicted a good gain in sales by the fourth quarter. This was despite indications that investment for new plants and equipment is not speeding up.

The National Retail Merchants Association surveyed its membership of 11,500 department, specialty and variety stores and found high optimism about prospects for the second half of the year. The majority of merchants look for a four per cent gain in sales and a five per cent increase in profits.

The First National City Bank of New York commented that the industrial performance in the last two months has "erased any lingering doubts that the economy is in a very encouraging rebound from recession lows." Dr. Marcus Nadler, economic consultant to the Hanover Bank of New York, said he expects a "moderate recovery" but that "no major boom is in the making."

The momentum of recovery has aroused anxiety in the Kennedy administration that it will bring a revival of inflation.

Heller said direct price or wage control is not under consideration, barring a wartime situation.

Presidential assistant Walt Whitman Rostow asserted: "As we go into the new wage negotiations, the question is whether we will negotiate our way into inflation or whether we can exercise discipline without wage and price controls."

With labor contract negotiations nearing in the automobile industry, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler omitted the usual annual raises June 1 for 138,000 salaried employes not covered by union contracts.

Automobile production moved up during the week to an estimated 123,000 passenger cars. This was only 8.7 per cent below the comparable 1960 week, one of the year's slimmest margins.

The industry was particularly happy about sales in May. The 537,825 cars sold was the biggest monthly total of the year. This brought dealers' new car stocks down to about 900,000, lowest since last October.

Harold C. Lumb, vice president of Republic Steel Corp., predicted steel production will increase steadily and should approach record heights in the next year.

The Memorial Day holiday halted the 11-week rise in steel output but the decline was only 1.2 per cent below the previous week.

Prices of stainless steel and oil-country pipe were reduced. The industry publication, Iron Age, considered it a dampening effect on the likelihood of any general price rise in the near future.

Moving against another segment of the electrical equipment industry, the government's Anti-trust Division obtained price-fixing indictments against six companies which produce transmission equipment.

The firms are Oliver Electrical Manufacturing Co., Battle Creek, Mich.; Utilities Service Co., Allentown, Pa.; McGraw - Edison Co., Elgin, Ill.; Joslyn Manufacturing & Supply Co., Chicago; A.B. Chance Co., Centralia, Mo., and Hubbard & Co., Chicago.

R. Sargent Shriver Jr., director of the Peace Corps, called on business and labor to make manpower available to help undeveloped areas of the world.

"I hope American businesses and industries will provide two-year leaves of absence, without pay, but with re-employment benefits for their employes — whether top - level administrators or secretaries — who can meet a critical need abroad," he said.

"I am hopeful that labor, like business, will grant its people who enter the Peace Corps the re - employment rights that have been accorded up to now only to veterans of war."

The immediate general reaction was favorable.

Briefly around the business scene: Martin Co. has developed a radio - telephone it believes is the forerunner of a vest pocket walkie-talkie with unlimited range . . . Boeing Co. expects to sell an additional $60 million worth of jet transports in Europe this year. . . General Precision Equipment Co. announced an electronic data-processing system capable of performing 2.48 million operations a second.

THIRD STRAIGHT TIME

Photographs Get Special Awards At Recent Meeting

For the third time, a carefully screened selection of photographs has been labeled "Fine Art" by a distinguished jury of critics and makes its bow to the public from the eminence of museum walls. And once again it will be the target of appreciation and criticism, of bouquets and brickbats for this is Round Three of an old controversy.

The occasion is the current opening of "Photography in the Fine Arts Exhibit III" at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. There are 140 outstanding contemporary photographs in the exhibition, the work of 122 photographers of whom 19 are amateurs.

It is amazing what a fuss has been raised in photographic circles since the premiere of Exhibit I at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art two years ago. One would think that recognition by one of the world's most respected art museums would be unanimously applauded by photography's who's who.

UNHAPPY

Strangely, along with the plaudits, there arose a chorus of dissatisfaction led by some potent photo personalities. The project was praised and also damned in newspaper and magazine articles and editorials, by round-robin letters and at photographic meetings. The criticism can be summarized in these main points:

1. That final choice as to what constitutes "Fine Art" in photography should be decided only by photographers, not by a jury of art critics, museum directors or any other outsiders.

2. The manner of obtaining nominees for final judging is unsatisfactory.

3. The present director of the PFA project, Ivan Dmitri, is grinding a personal axe.

In rebuttal, the objections are countered with these arguments:

1. Photographers themselves are the primary judges because all of the entries must come from qualified photographic authorities. After careful screening and prior approval by photographic experts, final selection must be made on their aesthetic merits. This can be done best by specialists in the museum's own field of art. The final choices which will be seen by the public bear, therefor, a double stamp of approval: from the worlds of photography experts and of museum art.

2. Sources for entries are fully diversified and representative of every type of photography. Collaboration in the present exhibition came from the leading national press, magazine, professional and amateur photographic societies and associations; from photo agencies, schools, editors and book publishers and from a newly organized regional screening group.

3. Ivan Dmitri, who organized and directed the PFA project from its inception, is uniquely qualified for the role. He is both a successful professional photographer of note and a recognized artist whose etchings (under his real name, Levon West) have been acquired and exhibited by leading museums. He is wholly dedicated to the goal of having photography attain fine art status and has excluded any of his own work from inclusion. He is a tireless traveler and convincing speaker on the subject to any group or individual that might further its progress.

Undoubtedly the controversy around PFA has aroused additional public interest and stimulated attendance. The first two exhibitions have been shown and are scheduled in more than 60 leading museums here and abroad and have been seen by an estimated three million people.

The struggle to gain museum recognition of photography as a fine art is part of a long range dream on Dmitri's part.

"It is designed to lift individual photographers to a recognized plane," he says. "The ultimate goal is to have the public accept the idea of photographs as fine art. Then people will buy photos and display them in their homes as they do now with paintings. But the public looks to the museums for guidance. They are the acknowledged citadels of Art and when they lead the way, the people will follow."

AT STERLINGTON

Progress Reported For Incorporation

Legal counsel is preparing petitions for incorporation of Sterlington and they are near completion, according to C. G. Drennan, chairman of the move.

The petitions will be circulated and available for signature this week, he said Saturday.

"Any qualified voter, whether a property owner or not, is eligible to sign the petition," Drennan explained.

For the petition to become final it is necessary for two - thirds of the qualified voters living within the area to be incorporated to sign, he further commented.

The state statutes say that the maximum millage that can be assessed without a special election in an incorporated area is seven. This means, Drennan said, that on property with an assessed value of $2000, taxes will be $14 per year.

"There are very few homes in this proposed area that have $2000 assessment," he said.

At a recent public meeting held at Sterlington State Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and Mike John spoke in favor of the incorporation and promised full cooperation from them and the legislature.

The move to have Sterlington incorporated started after the town's second large burglary several weeks ago. Spokesmen for incorporation claim that adequate fire and police protection will be available only when incorporation is achieved.

Austria has honored the 13th Conference of the Ministers of Communications of 16 countries who belong to the European Council of Ministers of Communications by issuing a new 3 schilling stamp, reports Edwin Mueller. The stamp shows street, rail and waterway vehicles plus the coat of arms of the city of Vienna.

The American Air Mail Society and the United Nations Postal Administration held a joint informal ceremony at U. N. Headquarters to observe the issuance of the new 30 cent stamp added to the series of U.N. regular issues.

Tunisia has issued a set of four new stamps honoring "Stamp Day." The new stamps also mark the opening of the First National Exhibition of Postage Stamps to be held in Tunis under the sponsorship of the Secretary of State. The designs show Tunisian peasants receiving mail from a mobile post, a mailman, stamps seen through a magnifying glass and a native dancer.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The South Korean ruling junta launched a crackdown Saturday on draft dodgers. A decree ordered all those who have evaded conscription to report to authorities by June 30 and threatened heavy punishment to those who do not.

Funeral Rites Conducted For Slain Mother

VALDOSTA, Ga. (UPI)—An attractive young mother, found murdered in Jacksonville, Fla. where she had gone to play a "dream hunch" at the dog track, was buried Saturday on her 26th birthday.

A solemn group of griends and relatives gathered for the simple graveside services for Mrs Patricia Hewitt. Her four children, all under five years of age, did not attend.

The bodies of Mrs. Hewitt and her companion, Mrs. Althea Ottavio, were found last week in a palmetto thicket on the outskirts of Jacksonville.

The two women traveled to the Florida city to play a "2-5 dream hunch combination" at the Orange Park Kennel Club.

Mrs. Hewitt's husband said Mrs. Ottavio, a widow known to bet large sums at the dog races, had dreamed the combination would come in the night of May 29.

It did, and paid $177 for a $2 wager, but police have been unable to determine whether the women got around to betting their hunch.

PLANS RED CHINA VISIT

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno, now in Moscow, will visit Communist China next week, Antara news agency reported Saturday. The agency said he would return to Moscow from Peiping and then go to Yugoslavia.

Officers Elected By Future Farmers

Langley stepped up from first vice president.

Cora Jean Doty, Haughton, Friday night was crowned state FFA sweetheart. She was crowned by Llyle Carpenter, Yuma, Colo., national FFA president.

The runnerup for FFA sweetheart honors was Elizabeth Chapman, Bunkie.

Algerian Peace Talks Continue

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France (AP)—French and Algerian negotiators met for the 12th time Saturday in their efforts to plan for the future of Algeria and informants said afterward the talks are deadlocked. The next meeting will be held Tuesday.

After Saturday's session of representatives of the French government and envoys of the nationalist rebels, the positions of the two delegations remained stiffly apart.

Tough ex-guerrilla Belkacem Krim, who heads the Algerian delegation, once again repeated the original rebel point of view which, according to informants, amounts to a request of recognition by France.

French spokesman Philippe Thibaud, his face grim, told newsmen "The approach to the problem remains far apart." He suggested that not a single point in discussions of the thorny problem thus far has opened a possibility for compromise.

Injured Airman Said Recovering

FERRIDAY (Special) — Airman Donald M. Smith of Natchez, Miss., who was injured last Tuesday when he attempted to rescue a companion who had accidentally fallen into Lake St. John near here, is recovering at the Jefferson Davis Memorial Hospital in Natchez, Miss., where he was taken after being pulled from the lake.

Smith, 21, a Navy reservist on active duty at the Natchez, Miss. Naval Reserve Station, suffered slight concussions and other minor injuries when he struck his head against the boat when he jumped.

New Record May Be Set By Sales

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— The economic recovery rolled on during the week and expectations of more rapid improvement later in the year mounted.

The gross national product (GNP) — total of all goods and services—may be setting a record in the current quarter ending June 30.

Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said the GNP for the quarter might reach an annual rate of nearly $510 billion. It was a little under $500 billion in the previous quarter.

Heller said that by the final quarter the rate may be $530 billion.

The National Association of Purchasing Agents reported that new orders, production and employment kept on increasing in May.

MACHINE TOOLS

Producers of machine tools, construction equipment and other manufacturing machinery equipment predicted a good gain in sales by the fourth quarter. This was despite indications that investment for new plants and equipment is not speeding up.

The National Retail Merchants Association surveyed its membership of 11,500 department, specialty and variety stores and found high optimism about prospects for the second half of the year. The majority of merchants look for a four per cent gain in sales and a five per cent increase in profits.

The First National City Bank of New York commented that the industrial performance in the last two months has "erased any lingering doubts that the economy is in a very encouraging rebound from recession lows." Dr. Marcus Nadler, economic consultant to the Hanover Bank of New York, said he expects a "moderate recovery" but that "no major boom is in the making."

The momentum of recovery has aroused anxiety in the Kennedy administration that it will bring a revival of inflation.

Heller said direct price or wage control is not under consideration, barring a wartime situation.

Presidential assistant Walt Whitman Rostow asserted: "As we go into the new wage negotiations, the question is whether we will negotiate our way into inflation or whether we can exercise discipline without wage and price controls."

With labor contract negotiations nearing in the automobile industry, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler omitted the usual annual raises June 1 for 138,000 salaried employes not covered by union contracts.

Automobile production moved up during the week to an estimated 128,000 passenger cars. This was only 8.7 per cent below the comparable 1960 week, one of the year's slimmest margins.

The industry was particularly happy about sales in May. The 537,825 cars sold was the biggest monthly total of the year. This brought dealers' new car stocks down to about 900,000, lowest since last October.

Harold C. Lumb, vice president of Republic Steel Corp., predicted steel production will increase steadily and should approach record heights in the next year.

The Memorial Day holiday halted the 11-week rise in steel output but the decline was only 1.2 per cent below the previous week.

Prices of stainless steel and oil-country pipe were reduced. The industry publication, Iron Age, considered it a dampening effect on the likelihood of any general price rise in the near future.

Moving against another segment of the electrical equipment industry, the government's Anti-trust Division obtained price-fixing indictments against six companies which produce transmission equipment.

The firms are Oliver Electrical Manufacturing Co., Battle Creek, Mich.; Utilities Service Co., Allentown, Pa.; McGraw - Edison Co., Elgin, Ill.; Joslyn Manufacturing & Supply Co., Chicago; A.B. Chance Co., Centralia, Mo., and Hubbard & Co., Chicago.

R. Sargent Shriver Jr., director of the Peace Corps, called on business and labor to make manpower available to help undeveloped areas of the world.

"I hope American businesses and industries will provide two-year leaves of absence, without pay, but with re-employment benefits for their employes — whether top - level administrators or secretaries — who can meet a critical need abroad," he said.

"I am hopeful that labor, like business, will grant its people who enter the Peace Corps the re - employment rights that have been accorded up to now only to veterans of war."

The immediate general reaction was favorable.

Briefly around the business scene: Martin Co. has developed a radio - telephone it believes is the forerunner of a vest pocket walkie-talkie with unlimited range . . . Boeing Co. expects to sell an additional $60 million worth of jet transports in Europe this year. . . General Precision Equipment Co. announced an electronic data-processing system capable of performing 2.48 million operations a second.

THIRD STRAIGHT TIME

Photographs Get Special Awards At Recent Meeting

For the third time, a carefully screened selection of photographs has been labeled "Fine Art" by a distinguished jury of critics and makes its bow to the public from the eminence of museum walls. And once again it will be the target of appreciation and criticism, of bouquets and brickbats for this is Round Three of an old controversy.

The occasion is the current opening of "Photography in the Fine Arts Exhibit III" at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. There are 140 outstanding contemporary photographs in the exhibition, the work of 122 photographers of whom 19 are amateurs.

It is amazing what a fuss has been raised in photographic circles since the premiere of Exhibit I at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art two years ago. One would think that recognition by one of the world's most respected art museums would be unanimously applauded by photography's who's who.

UNHAPPY

Strangely, along with the plaudits, there arose a chorus of dissatisfaction led by some potent photo personalities. The project was praised and also damned in newspaper and magazine articles and editorials, by round-robin letters and at photographic meetings. The criticism can be summarized in these main points:

1. That final choice as to what constitutes "Fine Art" in photography should be decided only by photographers, not by a jury of art critics, museum directors or any other outsiders.

2. The manner of obtaining nominees for final judging is unsatisfactory.

3. The present director of the PFA project, Ivan Dmitri, is grinding a personal axe.

In rebuttal, the objections are countered with these arguments:

1. Photographers themselves are the primary judges because all of the entries must come from qualified photographic authorities. After careful screening and prior approval by photographic experts, final selection must be made on their aesthetic merits. This can be done best by specialists in the museum's own field of art. The final choices which will be seen by the public bear, therefor, a double stamp of approval: from the worlds of photography experts and of museum art.

2. Sources for entries are fully diversified and representative of every type of photography. Collaboration in the present exhibition came from the leading national press, magazine, professional and amateur photographic societies and associations; from photo agencies, schools, editors and book publishers and from a newly organized regional screening group.

3. Ivan Dmitri, who organized and directed the PFA project from its inception, is uniquely qualified for the role. He is both a successful professional photographer of note and a recognized artist whose etchings (under his real name, Levon West) have been acquired and exhibited by leading museums. He is wholly dedicated to the goal of having photography attain fine art status and has excluded any of his own work from inclusion. He is a tireless traveler and convincing speaker on the subject to any group or individual that might further its progress.

Undoubtedly the controversy around PFA has aroused additional public interest and stimulated attendance. The first two exhibitions have been shown or are scheduled in more than 60 leading museums here and abroad and have been seen by an estimated three million people.

The struggle to gain museum recognition of photography as a fine art is part of a long range dream on Dmitri's part.

"It is designed to lift individual photographers to a recognized plane," he says. "The ultimate goal is to have the public accept the idea of photographs as fine art. Then people will buy photos and display them in their homes as they do now with paintings. But the public looks to the museums for guidance. They are the acknowledged citadels of Art and when they lead the way, the people will follow."

AT STERLINGTON

Progress Reported For Incorporation

Legal counsel is preparing petitions for incorporation of Sterlington and they are near completion, according to C. G. Drennan, chairman of the move.

The petitions will be circulated and available for signature this week, he said Saturday.

"Any qualified voter, whether a property owner or not, is eligible to sign the petition," Drennan explained.

For the petition to become final it is necessary for two - thirds of the qualified voters living within the area to be incorporated to sign, he further commented.

The state statutes say that the maximum millage that can be assessed without a special election in an incorporated area is seven. This means, Drennan said, that on property with an assessed value of $2000, taxes will be $14 per year.

"There are very few homes in this proposed area that have $2000 assessment," he said.

At a recent public meeting held at Sterlington State Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and Mike John spoke in favor of the incorporation and promised full cooperation from them and the legislature.

The move to have Sterlington incorporated started after the town's second large burglary several weeks ago. Spokesmen for incorporation claim that adequate fire and police protection will be available only when incorporation is achieved.

SEVENTH STRAIGHT WIN

Jay Leads Reds By St. Louis, 4-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joey Jay rang up his seventh consecutive victory Saturday, pitching the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals with some ninth-inning relief help from Bill Henry.

Former Redbird Don Blasingame led the Reds' attack with four hits, including a two-run single which put Cincinnati ahead for good in the fifth inning. Wally Post weighed in with his fifth homer in the sixth.

Jay, a big, 25-year-old right-hander who lost his first three starts this season and then launched his current streak, sailed along smoothly with a four-hitter going into the ninth.

The Cards, who had won four straight, got a run in a ninth-inning uprising on a single by Joe Cunningham, a fielder's choice and a single by Jim Schaffer before Henry put out the fire. Henry gave up a single to pinch-swinger Curt Flood, but then struck out pinch-hitter Don Taussig and got Red Schoendienst to hit into a forceout.

MCCORMICK WINNER

Giants Hold Bucs Runless; Win 5-0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mike McCormick blanked Pittsburgh 5-0 on five hits Saturday in the first complete San Francisco pitching victory since May 16.

Matty Alou followed with a bunt which third baseman Don Hoak threw wild into center field. Joe Amalfitano scored and Willie Mays' single sent Hiller home.

Wield action on a bunt developed in th Giants' sixth. Matty Aloeu reached first under Dick Stuart's tag and Stuart collided with Umpire Dusty Boggess. Both fell on the turf.

The Giants scored two more runs in the seventh off Clem Labine, who relieved Mizell. Hiller and Alou singled with two out, advanced on Labine's wild pitch and scored on Cepeda's sharp single to center.

McCormick struck out five and walked two. Mizell struck out five Giants in six innings but four Pirate errors put him in trouble. Labine struck out three and walked one.

Senators Nip Chicago 4-3 On Home-Run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marty Keough, a .232 batter with only one previous home run this year, rapped his second over the right field wall to give the Washington Senators a 15-inning, 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

The Sox led 3-2 going into the last of the ninth, but Willie Tasby poked a homer into the left field bleachers off Warren Hacker to send the game into overtime.

It was the third straight for the Senators over the Sox with last-minute heroics. They took a twi-night double-header Friday night 1-0 in 10 innings and 10-9 with a four-run rally in the ninth.

Juan Pizarro, starting his first American League game, held the Senators to two unearned runs and four hits in the seven innings he worked.

The Senators scored two runs in the first. Keough singled, Chuck Hinton walked and Dale Long tripled. The runs were unearned because catcher Camilo Carreon dropped a foul pop that would have retired Long.

The Sox scored in the fifth on successive singles by Floyd Robinson, Nellie Fox and Jim Landis and twice more in the sixth on singles by Smith and J. C. Martin and a double by Carreon.

Braves Pelt Chicago With Homers, 9-5

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves belted four home-runs Saturday to beat the Chicago Cubs, 9-5, and bring their home run total to a record-matching 14 in the last three games.

Ken Burdette, Frank Bolling, Lee Maye and Eddie Mathews each homered to give the Braves a 7-5 lead in the fifth inning and Don McMahon pitched scoreless relief ball for 4 2-3 innings to gain the victory.

Ironically, it was the Braves first win in their three day homer spree. They whacked six against the Cincinnati Reds Thursday and four against the Cubs Friday while losing both games.

Ancient Archie Keeps Crown

Batters Plucky, But Inept Rinaldi

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Ancient Archie Moore battered Italy's Giulio Rinaldi, a courageous but inept challenger, Saturday night and held tight to his share of the world light heavyweight boxing title on a unanimous decision after 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden.

Moore, showing his age, never was able to drop the young Italian although he cut him around both eyes and bloodied his nose.

Moore weighed 174½, Rinaldi 173¾.

Rinaldi's face was a bloody mess as the battle ended with Moore slamming away. But Rinaldi was still on his feet.

This was not one of the better fights by Moore, who admits to 44 although his mother claims he is 47. Slow to get started while he let the 26-year-old Italian show what he had, the old man closed strong and won going away.

Referee Ruby Goldstein, who tried to get the fighters to step up the pace when action sagged in the middle rounds, scored it 11-3-1 for Moore. Judge Artie Aidala had it 11-4 and Judge Tony Castellano 9-5-1. The AP card said it was 11-3-1 for Moore.

Age and the weight-making ordeal of paring down from 201 pounds to make the 175-pound class limit appeared to have taken some of the zip from Archie.

Rinaldi, who beat Moore in a non-title bout in Rome last Oct. 29, never was in it here after the first few rounds. He was strong and took a good punch but was crude and missed wildly with his looping punches.

Time after time, the wily Moore conned Rinaldi into a wild surge, only to run into a short right hand by Moore that chopped hard on the side of his face.

Rinaldi was staggered as early as the fourth and again in the seventh.

The 10th was Moore's biggest round as he pegged away with both hands, forcing Rinaldi to back off and cover his face with both hands. At the end of the round, Rinaldi settled, oh, so slowly on his stool.

But this handsome young man from Anzio did not come across the sea to quit without trying. Until the very end he kept pegging away and landed two heavy blows in the last two rounds.

This was the ninth defense for Moore, whose reign since 1952 is the longest of any light heavy champ. Of Course, Archie was stripped of his title by the National Boxing Association last October but he still is recognized in New York, Massachusetts, California and Europe.

Moore hadn't defended in almost 22 months. His last previous was a third round knockout of Yvon Durelle in Montreal, Aug. 12, 1959.

Rinaldi was a 2-1 underdog, in this most important battle of his life. He got $25,000 to Moore's $100,000 guarantee from the $150,000 television money and the gate.

One of the largest boxing crowds in Madison Square Garden in many a moon, turned out on a hot, humid night. It was announced that 9,500 fans paid $46,269.

Rinaldi won some distinction. He was the first challenger who hadn't been knocked out by Moore in the last seven years. If the determined Italian had a solid punch, he might have been able to cash in on the big prize for Moore started so slowly.

At the end of the first four rounds, Rinaldi was way out front. He led 4-0 on Castellano's card, 3-1 on Aidala's and 2-1-1 on Goldstein's at that stage. Once Moore started to unlimber his heavy guns in the fifth, the pattern changed.

Rinaldi had been bowling along, flicking a jab, then rolling in with a hook and then throwing a long-bow-and-arrow right hand punch while flatfooted. When he came rolling in with one of those hooks in the fifth, Moore stepped inside and dropped in as neat a right to the jaw as you would want to see. From that moment on, Rinaldi was the catcher.

There was a half-inch cut under the left eye of Rinaldi in the third round. In the seventh blood dripped from his nose. In the ninth there was a cut over his right eye. In the 10th the left eye was gashed again.

At the end his mouth was a bloody blob but he still was in there pegging away with his earnest but inaccurate punches.

It was the 213th fight of record for Moore, the ring gypsy of many cities who now has settled down in San Diego, Calif. He has won 182, lost 25 and fought 6 draws. This was Rinaldi's 31st bout. His record is 25-6.

In the last round, Rinaldi appeared to have twisted his ankle as he moved in to throw a punch. Moore didn't press the attack for a few seconds, letting his opponent recover.

There were times when Rinaldi tried to rough up the champ, charging into him, pushing him away and bulling him to the ropes. Most of the time Archie blocked all punches in those rushes and, when he recovered his balance, cut loose with one of his better punches.

Moore said in the dressing room that he hurt the metacarpals of both hands in the fourth roupd.

Asked if he was satisfied with his fight, he said, "for an old man of 40—and up, I did all right."

As for the future, Moore said he would like to fight Ingemar Johansson the ex-heavy champ, as soon as possible. And he would like to take on Floyd Patterson, the heavy champ once more, in due time.

Rinaldi said his ankle had pained him from the ninth round on. He explained he broke a blister in the ninth when he jumped. He said he agreed that he had lost the decision.

Athletics And Chisox Swap Four Players

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Chicago White Sox Saturday night completed a major 4-for-4 player swap with the Kansas City Athletics.

The White Sox acquired pitchers Ray Herbert and Don Larsen, third baseman Andy Carey and outfielder Al Pilarcik in exchange for pitchers Bob Shaw and Gerry Staley and outfielders Les Covington and Stan Johnson.

Johnson was on option to San Diego.

The White Sox said the deal was closed in New York by General Manager Hank Greenberg with Kansas City General Manager Frank Lane and owner Charles Finley.

A spokesman said "this may be the forerunner of a number of transactions involving the White Sox.

No cash was involved in the trade.

Wesley Garners Semi-Finals In Amateur Golf

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—Harold Wesley plodded through fiery heat on slow greens for six extra holes Saturday to cop a semi-finals match from favored Cobby Ware of Augusta, Ga., and Atlanta, in the Southeastern Amateur Golf Tournament here.

Wesley, of Greenville, Ala., will enter finals competition Sunday against Howell Frazer, of Panama City, Fla., a 1960 finalist who won Saturday's semi-finals round over Bill Zimmerman of Columbus, 2 and 1.

Wesley had been forced into two extra holes to win his quarter-finals match from Eddie Sams of Athens, Ga. Earlier he defeated medalist Sonny Swift of Columbus, 2 and 1.

Frazer, 21, who was runnerup to Tommy Aaron last year, scored a 5 and 4 quarterfinals win over Gene Dahlbender of Atlanta and, earlier, a 4 and 3 verdict over George Lanning of Warner Robins, Ga.

Tigers Cut Indian Margin To Half-Game On 2-0 Win

DETROIT (AP) — Jim Bunning pitched a five-hitter Saturday and long ball specialists Rocky Colavito and Norm Cash gave the Detroit right hander late home run support as the Tigers blanked Cleveland 2-0.

The victory gave the Tigers a split in the 4-game series and narrowed Cleveland's first place margin to one-half game.

Jim Piersall had three of the hits off Bunning and raised his average to .367. His third single came with two out in the ninth, and when Tito Francona lined a single to center, Tiger Manager Bob Scheffing called in Bill Fischer, who retired Vic Power for the final out.

Bunning struck out five in the squaring his record at 5-5. Bell, losing his fifth game against four triumphs, allowed the Tigers only four hits.

Colavito hit Bell's first pitch of the seventh inning for the first run, and after Bell threw two pitches wide to Cash, Bell's next pitch went into the stands on the other side of the outfield.

Dupas Choice Over Sumling Monday Night

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Hometown favorite Ralph Dupas rules a solid choice to defeat Guy Sumling of Prichard, Ala., in a scheduled 12-round bout Monday night for the Southern welterweight crown.

Dupas, ranked fourth nationally, gets the favorite's role despite claims from Sumlin's handlers that the Alabaman has a new secret weapon.

Sumlin is No. 7 in the current National Boxing Association rankings.

It will be the third meeting between the speedy, dancing Dupas and Sumlin.

Dupas took a close decision from Sumlin in 1958. Sumlin won the other earlier this year in a disputed decision at Mobile.

Promoter Joe Jurisich and matchmaker Bonny Geigerman of the sponsoring Magnolia Boxing Club have forecast a full house for the bout.

Sumlin's manager Scotty Alsup insists on 6-punce gloves, threatening to pull out of the fight if they're not used. Dupas wants 8-ounce mitts.

It will be Dupas' 77th appearance before hometown fans. He has lost only four fights in New Orleans. Overall, the veteran fighter has 87 victories, 15 defeats and six draws.

Sumlin, 22, is 27-2-1.

Both boxers held public workouts during the past week and observers could see no apparent change in Sumlin's style despite the ballyhooed secret weapon.

FORD PITCHES 5-HITTER

Yanks Rebound To Down A's, 5-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Skowron's clutch triple in the sixth inning and shortstop Tony Kubek's fielding gem in the eighth supported Whitey Ford's 5-hit pitching Saturday as the New York Yankees defeated the Kansas City Athletics 5-3.

Mickey Mantle shared hitting honors with Skowron, slamming a triple in a two-run second inning off loser Joe Nuxhall, and finishing with a home run in the eighth, his 17th of the season.

Skowron, emerging from a two-week batting slump, rapped three hits, including his 407 foot three-bagger, which scored Mantle with the tying run. The big first baseman scored a moment later on Bob Cerv's infield single to put the Yankees in front 4-3.

Ford fanned six and walked two as he registered his ninth victory against two defeats. Three double plays helped him.

The A's scored all their runs off the veteran left-hander in the third inning. Nuxhall, a good hitting pitcher, slammed his first homer of the season with two out. Dick Howser walked and scored on Hank Bauer's tremendous inside-the-park homer, the ball bouncing behind the monuments in the deepest part of center field.

Ford pitched himself out of a serious jam in the eighth. Reno Bertoia and Andy Carey singled with nobody out. Don Larsen batted for Nuxhall and struck out. After the runners had advanced to second and third on Howser's infield out, Bauer slammed a sharp grounder over second. Kubek raced over for a fine gloved hand stop of the hard smash and threw out Bauer on a very close play.

Ruston Tops Bernice 7-3 In Legion

BERNICE, La. (Special)—Ruston upped its Legion mark to 4-1 here last night, grinding out runs in all but two innings, while holding Bernice to a single hit for an easy 7-3 win.

Big Jerry Hood, the All-State cager for Ruston High last winter went the route on the mound. Bernice started off with Ronnie Fitzgerald. He was relieved after four by John Jeffcoat, the fabulous Dubach High hurler.

Ruston scored single runs in the first, sixth and seventh and two runs apiece in the third and fourth. Jeffcoat got Bernice's lone hit.

Dodgers Come From Behind For 5-4 Win

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers came from behind on Daryl Spencer's two-run homer in the ninth inning and held on to first place by defeating Philadelphia 5-4 Saturday night.

It wast he seventh victory for the Dodgers in eight games with Philadelphia this season and it kept them a half-game ahead of the second-place Cincinnati Reds.

Wally Moon slammed two homers for the Dodgers—his 12th and 13th of the season—the first one an inside-the-park shot to center.

Right-hander John Buzhardt, who came on the ninth to pitch to Spencer after Johnny Roseboro led off with a double, took the loss. He is 2-6. Larry Sherry, the third of three Los Angeles pitchers, shut out the Phils the last two innings and got his second victory in four decisions.

Bobby DelGreco put the Phils ahead 1-0 in the second with his first homer of the season and ex-Dodger Don Demeter made it 3-0 with a two-run triple off Johnny

SEVENTH STRAIGHT WIN

Jay Leads Reds By St. Louis, 4-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joey Jay rang up his seventh consecutive victory Saturday, pitching the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals with some ninth-inning relief help from Bill Henry.

Former Redbird Don Blasingame led the Reds' attack with four hits, including a two-run single which put Cincinnati ahead for good in the fifth inning. Wally Post weighed in with his fifth homer in the sixth.

Jay, a big, 25-year-old right-hander who lost his first three starts this season and then launched his current streak, sailed along smoothly with a four-hitter going into the ninth.

The Cards, who had won four straight, got a run in a ninth-inning uprising on a single by Joe Cunningham, a fielder's choice and a single by Jim Schaffer before Henry put out the fire. Henry gave up a single to pinch-swinger Curt Flood, but then struck out pinch-hitter Don Taussig and got Red Schoendienst to hit into a forceout.

MCCORMICK WINNER

Giants Hold Bucs Runless; Win 5-0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mike McCormick blanked Pittsburgh 5-0 on five hits Saturday in the first complete San Francisco pitching victory since May 16.

Matty Alou followed with a bunt which third baseman Don Hoak threw wild into center field. Joe Amalfitano scored and Willie Mays' single sent Hiller home.

Wield action on a bunt developed in th Giants' sixth. Matty Aloeu reached first under Dick Stuart's tag and Stuart collided with Umpire Dusty Boggess. Both fell on the turf.

Pirates Manager Danny Murtaugh protested unavailingly that Alou ran out of the base line. Alou scored on Ed Bressoud's sacrifice fly after he and Mays worked a double steal.

The Giants scored two more runs in the seventh off Clem Labine, who relieved Mizell. Hiller and Alou singled with two out, advanced on Labine's wild pitch and scored on Cepeda's sharp single to center.

McCormick struck out five and walked two. Mizell struck out five Giants in six innings but four Pirate errors put him in trouble. Labine struck out three and walked one.

Senators Nip Chicago 4-3 On Home-Run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marty Keough, a .232 batter with only one previous home run this year, rapped his second over the right field wall to give the Washington Senators a 15-inning, 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

The Sox led 3-2 going into the last of the ninth, but Willie Tasby poked a homer into the left field bleachers off Warren Hacker to send the game into overtime.

It was the third straight for the Senators over the Sox with last-minute heroics. They took a twi-night double-header Friday night 1-0 in 10 innings and 10-9 with a four-run rally in the ninth.

Juan Pizarro, starting his first American League game, held the Senators to two unearned runs and four hits in the seven innings he worked.

The Senators scored two runs in the first. Keough singled, Chuck Hinton walked and Dale Long tripled. The runs were unearned because catcher Camilo Carreon dropped a foul pop that would have retired Long.

The Sox scored in the fifth on successive singles by Floyd Robinson, Nellie Fox and Jim Landis and twice more in the sixth on singles by Smith and J. C. Martin and a double by Carreon.

Braves Pelt Chicago With Homers, 9-5

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves belted four home-runs Saturday to beat the Chicago Cubs, 9-5, and bring their home run total to a record-matching 14 in the last three games.

Ken Burdette, Frank Bolling, Lee Maye and Eddie Mathews each homered to give the Braves a 7-5 lead in the fifth inning and Don McMahon pitched scoreless relief ball for 4 2-3 innings to gain the victory.

Ironically, it was the Braves first win in their three day homer spree. They whacked six against the Cincinnati Reds Thursday and four against the Cubs Friday while losing both games.

Athletics And Chisox Swap Four Players

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Chicago White Sox Saturday night completed a major 4-for-4 player swap with the Kansas City Athletics.

The White Sox acquired pitchers Ray Herbert and Don Larsen, third baseman Andy Carey and outfielder Al Pilarcik in exchange for pitchers Bob Shaw and Gerry Staley and outfielders Les Covington and Stan Johnson.

Johnson was on option to San Diego.

The White Sox said the deal was closed in New York by General Manager Hank Greenberg with Kansas City General Manager Frank Lane and owner Charles Finley.

A spokesman said "this may be the forerunner of a number of transactions involving the White Sox.

No cash was involved in the trade.

Wesley Garners Semi-Finals In Amateur Golf

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—Harold Wesley plodded through fiery heat on slow greens for six extra holes Saturday to cop a semi-finals match from favored Cobby Ware of Augusta, Ga., and Atlanta, in the Southeastern Amateur Golf Tournament here.

Wesley, of Greenville, Ala., will enter finals competition Sunday against Howell Frazer, of Panama City, Fla., a 1960 finalist who won Saturday's semi-finals round over Bill Zimmerman of Columbus, 2 and 1.

Wesley had been forced into two extra holes to win his quarter-finals match from Eddie Sams of Athens, Ga. Earlier he defeated medalist Sonny Swift of Columbus, 2 and 1.

Frazer, 21, who was runnerup to Tommy Aaron last year, scored a 5 and 4 quarterfinals win over Gene Dahlbender of Atlanta and, earlier, a 4 and 3 verdict over George Lanning of Warner Robins, Ga.

Batters Plucky, But Inept Rinaldi

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Ancient Archie Moore battered Italy's Giulio Rinaldi, a courageous but inept challenger, Saturday night and held tight to his share of the world light heavyweight boxing title on a unanimous decision after 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden.

Moore, showing his age, never was able to drop the young Italian although he cut him around both eyes and bloodied his nose.

Moore weighed 174½, Rinaldi 173¾.

Rinaldi's face was a bloody mess as the battle ended with Moore slamming away. But Rinaldi was still on his feet.

This was not one of the better fights by Moore, who admits to 44 although his mother claims he is 47. Slow to get started while he let the 26-year-old Italian show what he had, the old man closed strong and won going away.

Referee Ruby Goldstein, who tried to get the fighters to step up the pace when action sagged in the middle rounds, scored it 11-3-1 for Moore. Judge Artie Aidala had it 11-4 and Judge Tony Castellano 9-5-1. The AP card said it was 11-3-1 for Moore.

Age and the weight-making ordeal of paring down from 201 pounds to make the 175-pound class limit appeared to have taken some of the zip from Archie.

Rinaldi, who beat Moore in a non-title bout in Rome last Oct. 29, never was in it here after the first few rounds. He was strong and took a good punch but was crude and missed wildly with his looping punches.

Time after time, the wily Moore conned Rinaldi into a wild surge, only to run into a short right hand by Moore that chopped hard on the side of his face.

Rinaldi was staggered as early as the fourth and again in the seventh.

The 10th was Moore's biggest round as he pegged away with both hands, forcing Rinaldi to back off and cover his face with both hands. At the end of the round, Rinaldi settled, oh, so slowly on his stool.

But this handsome young man from Anzio did not come across the sea to quit without trying. Until the very end he kept pegging away and landed two heavy blows in the last two rounds.

This was the ninth defense for Moore, whose reign since 1952 is the longest of any light heavy champ. Of Course, Archie was stripped of his title by the National Boxing Association last October but he still is recognized in New York, Massachusetts, California and Europe.

Moore hadn't defended in almost 22 months. His last previous was a third round knockout of Yvon Durelle in Montreal, Aug. 12, 1959.

Rinaldi was a 2-1 underdog, in this most important battle of his life. He got $25,000 to Moore's $100,000 guarantee from the $150,000 television money and the gate.

One of the largest boxing crowds in Madison Square Garden in many a moon, turned out on a hot, humid night. It was announced that 9,500 fans paid $46,269.

Rinaldi won some distinction. He was the first challenger who hadn't been knocked out by Moore in the last seven years. If the determined Italian had a solid punch, he might have been able to cash in on the big prize for Moore started so slowly.

At the end of the first four rounds, Rinaldi was way out front. He led 4-0 on Castellano's card, 3-1 on Aidala's and 2-1-1 on Goldstein's at that stage. Once Moore started to unlimber his heavy guns in the fifth, the pattern changed.

Rinaldi had been bowling along, flicking a jab, then rolling in with a hook and then throwing a long-bow-and-arrow right hand punch while flatfooted. When he came rolling in with one of those hooks in the fifth, Moore stepped inside and dropped in as neat a right to the jaw as you would want to see. From that moment on, Rinaldi was the catcher.

There was a half-inch cut under the left eye of Rinaldi in the third round. In the seventh blood dripped from his nose. In the ninth there was a cut over his right eye. In the 10th the left eye was gashed again.

At the end his mouth was a bloody blob but he still was in there pegging away with his earnest but inaccurate punches.

It was the 213th fight of record for Moore, the ring gypsy of many cities who now has settled down in San Diego, Calif. He has won 182, lost 25 and fought 6 draws. This was Rinaldi's 31st bout. His record is 25-6.

In the last round, Rinaldi appeared to have twisted his ankle as he moved in to throw a punch. Moore didn't press the attack for a few seconds, letting his opponent recover.

There were times when Rinaldi tried to rough up the champ, charging into him, pushing him away and bulling him to the ropes. Most of the time Archie blocked all punches in those rushes and, when he recovered his balance, cut loose with one of his better punches.

Moore said in the dressing room that he hurt the metacarpals of both hands in the fourth roupd.

Asked if he was satisfied with his fight, he said, "for an old man of 40—and up, I did all right."

As for the future, Moore said he would like to fight Ingemar Johansson the ex-heavy champ, as soon as possible. And he would like to take on Floyd Patterson, the heavy champ once more, in due time.

Rinaldi said his ankle had pained him from the ninth round on. He explained he broke a blister in the ninth when he jumped. He said he agreed that he had lost the decision.

Tigers Cut Indian Margin To Half-Game On 2-0 Win

DETROIT (AP) — Jim Bunning pitched a five-hitter Saturday and long ball specialists Rocky Colavito and Norm Cash gave the Detroit right hander late home run support as the Tigers blanked Cleveland 2-0.

Colavito settled a scoreless duel when he led off the seventh inning with his 16th home run. Cash followed with his 14th. Both blows came off loser Gary Bell.

The victory gave the Tigers a split in the 4-game series and narrowed Cleveland's first place margin to one-half game.

Jim Piersall had three of the hits off Bunning and raised his average to .367. His third single came with two out in the ninth, and when Tito Francona lined a single to center, Tiger Manager Bob Scheffing called in Bill Fischer, who retired Vic Power for the final out.

Bunning struck out five in the squaring his record at 5-5. Bell, losing his fifth game against four triumphs, allowed the Tigers only four hits.

Colavito hit Bell's first pitch of the seventh inning for the first run, and after Bell threw two pitches wide to Cash, Bell's next pitch went into the stands on the other side of the outfield.

FORD PITCHES 5-HITTER

Yanks Rebound To Down A's, 5-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Skowron's clutch triple in the sixth inning and shortstop Tony Kubek's fielding gem in the eighth supported Whitey Ford's 5-hit pitching Saturday as the New York Yankees defeated the Kansas City Athletics 5-3.

Mickey Mantle shared hitting honors with Skowron, slamming a triple in a two-run second inning off loser Joe Nuxhall, and finishing with a home run in the eighth, his 17th of the season.

Skowron, emerging from a two-week batting slump, rapped three hits, including his 407 foot three-bagger, which scored Mantle with the tying run. The big first baseman scored a moment later on Bob Cerv's infield single to put the Yankees in front 4-3.

Ford fanned six and walked two as he registered his ninth victory against two defeats. Three double plays helped him.

The A's scored all their runs off the veteran left-hander in the third inning. Nuxhall, a good hitting pitcher, slammed his first homer of the season with two out. Dick Howser walked and scored on Hank Bauer's tremendous inside-the-park homer, the ball bouncing behind the monuments in the deepest part of center field.

Ford pitched himself out of a serious jam in the eighth. Reno Bertoia and Andy Carey singled with nobody out. Don Larsen batted for Nuxhall and struck out. After the runners had advanced to second and third on Howser's infield out, Bauer slammed a sharp grounder over second. Kubek raced over for a fine gloved hand stop of the hard smash and threw out Bauer on a very close play.

Dupas Choice Over Sumling Monday Night

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Hometown favorite Ralph Dupas rules a solid choice to defeat Guy Sumling of Prichard, Ala., in a scheduled 12-round bout Monday night for the Southern welterweight crown.

Dupas, ranked fourth nationally, gets the favorite's role despite claims from Sumlin's handlers that the Alabaman has a new secret weapon.

Sumlin is No. 7 in the current National Boxing Association rankings.

It will be the third meeting between the speedy, dancing Dupas and Sumlin.

Dupas took a close decision from Sumlin in 1953. Sumlin won the other earlier this year in a disputed decision at Mobile.

Sumlin's manager Scotty Alsup insists on 6-punce gloves, threatening to pull out of the fight if they're not used. Dupas wants 8-ounce mitts.

It will be Dupas' 77th appearance before hometown fans. He has lost only four fights in New Orleans. Overall, the veteran fighter has 87 victories, 15 defeats and six draws.

Sumlin, 22, is 27-2-1.

Ruston Tops Bernice 7-3 In Legion

BERNICE, La. (Special)—Ruston upped its Legion mark to 4-1 here last night, grinding out runs in all but two innings, while holding Bernice to a single hit for an easy 7-3 win.

Big Jerry Hood, the All-State cager for Ruston High last winter went the route on the mound. Bernice started off with Ronnie Fitzgerald. He was relieved after four by John Jeffcoat, the fabulous Dubach High hurler.

Ruston scored single runs in the first, sixth and seventh and two runs apiece in the third and fourth. Jeffcoat got Bernice's lone hit.

Styron Twins Overshadow Olympic Vets

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)—Two brothers from Southern Illinois University overshadowed a contingent of Olympic veterans by spurring their school to a National AAU record of 3:12.6 in the mile relay Saturday night.

Southern Illinois' performance in the Midwest Open track and field meet bettered the previous mark shared by the University of Illinois and the New York Pioneer Club by four-tenths of a second.

Don Styron, who ran the anchor leg, also captured the 400-meter hurdles. His brother, Dave, ran the third leg on the relay team, set a meet record of :09.4 in the 100-yard dash, and was voted outstanding athlete among the 210 participants.

Ralph Boston, world record-holder in the broad jump, was the only double winner with a first place in the hop, step and jump in addition to his specialty.

Olympic champion Hayes Jones added another of the seven meet records established with a :13.7 clocking in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Allyn Buys Out Partners; Assumes Control Of Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Arthur C. Allyn Saturday announced he had bought out his two partners, Bill Veeck and Hank Greenberg, in the 54 per cent majority holdings of the Chicago White Sox. No consideration was mentioned by Allyn who announced his purchase.

Allyn said the move was necessitated mainly by the illness of Veeck, the White Sox president, who in March, 1959 led a syndicate purchase of the 54 per cent stock. The minority stockholder is Chuck Comiskey, who owns 46 per cent.

Only Tuesday, Greenberg, Sox vice president, announced he was authorized to represent both Veeck and Allyn in direction of the club and he rejected a reported $4.8 million offer by a group headed by entertainer Danny Thomas.

Allyn, 48, said Greenberg would remain as a salaried executive vice president and general manager. Veeck, who has had numerous amputations on his right leg, has been sidelined by illness of an undisclosed nature since late April this year.

Allyn said the purchase of the 54 per cent stock owned by the CBC (Chicago Baseball Company) was purchased officially by Artnell Co., a holding firm with which his brother, John W. Allyn, is connected.

Allyn said, in response to a question whether this move presaged a sale of majority holdings, "I have no plans along that line and I intend to keep the club in Chicago."

Allyn said he hopes Veeck, who is scheduled to return to Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., June 15 for another examination, could recover sufficiently from his illness to rejoin the White Sox.

"As of now," said Allyn, "Bill is required to get a maximum of rest."

JOE MARTIN (12), of the Chicago White Sox goes into second with one leg high, but Chuck Cottier, Washington second baseman, leaps clear to fire the ball to first for a double play in the second inning at Washington yesterday. Camilo Carreon, Sox catcher, started the play with a grounder to short. (AP Wirephoto)

Sentiment, Logic Vie For Backing

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — The cold, hard logic rides with Arnold Palmer and Gary Player but strong sentimental backing has built up for aging Ben Hogan and Sam Snead in the 61st U. S. Open Golf Championship starting Thursday.

Palmer, the defending champion from Latrobe, Pa., and Player the 25-year-old Masters champion and leading money winner from South Africa, head the field of 127 professionals and 23 amateurs who make the assault on the formidable Oakland Hills Country Club course, a notorious wrecker of dreams.

But no one is under-estimating the dramatic possibilities of an historic triumph by either Hogan, who will be seeking an unprecedented fifth open title, or Snead, who is still gunning for his first.

It was on this course—a tight monster with wasp-waisted fairways and fiendishly guarded greens—that the great Hogan won the third of his four opens in 1951, finishing with a 3-under-par 67.

It was here also that Snead, playing in his first open 24 years ago, experienced the first of his long series of open frustrations, losing the title by two strokes to late-charging Ralph Guldahl.

Today Snead, at 49, is playing what he calls the finest golf of his career and mechanically appears set for one of the strongest charges he ever has made at the elusive title. Recent winner of the Canada Cup individual crown, he has played ten of his last 11 rounds in 70 strokes or better. He has won the last three tournaments he has entered.

Hogan, 48, and semi-retired, is a strong threat because the course seems ideally suited to his type of precision, placement golf. He was in the running last year at Denver until the 71st hole.

Oakland Hills is a 6,907-yard layout which has been dotted with fairway traps which catch tee shots of 225 to 250 yards—the target area of most hitters. Par is 35-35—70.

At some points, its fairways are so narrow golfers complain they and their caddies must edge through them single file, Indian fashion. And spectators have to applaud with their hands moving up and down, instead of sideways.

The tournament affords a renewal of the two-man rivalry which has grown up between the muscled, gambling Palmer and the meticulous, herb-eating Player.

AFTER FOUR ROUNDS

Four Challenge Wright For Title

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Four players moved up to challenge Mickey Wright for the lead after four rounds in the 90-hole Women's Round Robin Golf Tournament Saturday as none broke par on a steamy day.

Miss Wright, shooting a 76 over the hilly, 6,293-yard Wykagyl course, added two points for a total of plus 24. But as far as medal scoring went, her 4-over-par 37-35—72 left her in fifth place with a total of 297 for 72 holes.

Kathy Cornelius holed a 15-foot birdie putt on the 18th, picking up three points there and 10 for the round to grab undisputed second place with 22 points. Then came Louise Suggs and Patty Berg with plus 19 totals and Mary Lena Faulk with plus 17.

Any one of the five could win out in Sunday's final round of this swift changing event. In the round robin scoring, points are added to or subtracted from the total according to the difference between each player's score and those of the others in the same foursome. During the five rounds each player goes against all 15 others in the tournament. But the winner isn't necessarily the one who shoots the best golf.

At the stage, Mrs. Cornelius is the low scorer with 292. Miss Faulk, whose par-matching 36-36—72 was the best of the day, is one stroke behind, Mickey in the point standings.

Miss Wright started the day with a plus 22 count and increased it at the expense of Miss Whitworth and Ruthie Jessen while losing a point to Marilynn Smith's 75.

Miss Berg, the stocky, straight-shooting veteran, had a 77 but gained three points and left the 18th green muttering:

"That putt I missed there really hurt me."

Where Patty missed one and lost some points, Mrs. Cornelius hit her 15-footer straight at the cup and it just trickled in to win three points for her.

She gained a total of 10 points on the round, playing against Betsy Rawls and Murle MacKenzie, both of who shot 78s and Bev Hanson, who had 79.

"If I could have played any good I really would have gained some points," Mrs. Cornelius, a Phoenix, Ariz., housewife commented.

The leaders:

Mickey Wright, plus 24	75-71-74-75—297
Kathy Cornelius, plus 22	71-72-74-75—292

HALF WEIGH 230 AND UP

Collegiates Named For August 4, All-Star Tilt

CHICAGO (AP) — A select 55-player collegiate squad, half jammed with bruisers weighing 230 or more pounds, Saturday was named by Coach Otto Graham to face the Philadelphia Eagles in the 28th All-Star football game Aug. 4 in Soldier Field.

Most of the players, screened from the nation's crop of 1960 gridiron seniors, will play professional football this year.

Graham, former standout Northwestern University and Cleveland Brown quarterback, will be directing his fourth college All-Star squad. His 1958 All-Stars upset the Detroit Lions 35-19. In the past two games, the Baltimore Colts posted triumphs in this colorful series sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

In seeking to whip the current National Football League champion Eagles, Graham and his staff scouted for size as well as speed and skill. No fewer than 25 of his handpicked players range from 230 to 285 pounds. These dreadnoughts include:

Center — Tom Goode (250) of Mississippi State; Roland Lakes (245) of Wichita; and Mike Pyle (230) of Yale; and Greg Larson (225) of Minnesota.

Ends — Marlin McKeever (235) of Southern California; Earl Faison (235) of Indiana; Harold Beaty (235) of Oklahoma State; John Brewer (230) of Mississippi; and Mike Ditka (225) of Pittsburgh.

The All-Star ground attack will be hubbed around such fine ball carriers as Navy's Joe Bellino; Tommy Mason of Tulane; George Fleming of Washington; Bob Crespino and George Blair from Mississippi; and Ohio State's Tom Matte, quarterback.

GREENBERG STAYS AS V. P.

Allyn Buys Out Partners; Assumes Control Of Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Arthur C. Allyn Saturday announced he had bought out his two partners, Bill Veeck and Hank Greenberg, in the 54 per cent majority holdings of the Chicago White Sox. No consideration was mentioned by Allyn who announced his purchase.

Allyn said the move was necessitated mainly by the illness of Veeck, the White Sox president, who in March, 1959 led a syndicate purchase of the 54 per cent stock. The minority stockholder is Chuck Comiskey, who owns 46 per cent.

Only Tuesday, Greenberg, Sox vice president, announced he was authorized to represent both Veeck and Allyn in direction of the club and he rejected a reported $4.8 million offer by a group headed by entertainer Danny Thomas.

Allyn, 48, said Greenberg would remain as a salaried executive vice president and general manager. Veeck, who has had numerous amputations on his right leg, has been sidelined by illness of an undisclosed nature since late April this year.

Allyn said the purchase of the 54 per cent stock owned by the CBC (Chicago Baseball Company) was purchased officially by Artnell Co., a holding firm with which his brother, John W. Allyn, is connected.

Allyn said, in response to a question whether this move presaged a sale of majority holdings, "I have no plans along that line and I intend to keep the club in Chicago."

Allyn said he hopes Veeck, who is scheduled to return to Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., June 15 for another examination, could recover sufficiently from his illness to rejoin the White Sox.

"As of now," said Allyn, "Bill is required to get a maximum of rest."

AFTER FOUR ROUNDS

Four Challenge Wright For Title

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Four players moved up to challenge Mickey Wright for the lead after four rounds in the 90-hole Women's Round Robin Golf Tournament Saturday as none broke par on a steamy day.

Miss Wright, shooting a 76 over the hilly, 6,293-yard Wykagyl course, added two points for a total of plus 24. But as far as medal scoring went, her 4-over-par 37-35—72 left her in fifth place with a total of 297 for 72 holes.

Kathy Cornelius holed a 15-foot birdie putt on the 18th, picking up three points there and 10 for the round to grab undisputed second place with 22 points. Then came Louise Suggs and Patty Berg with plus 19 totals and Mary Lena Faulk with plus 17.

Any one of the five could win out in Sunday's final round of this swift changing event. In the round robin scoring, points are added to or subtracted from the total according to the difference between each player's score and those of the others in the same foursome. During the five rounds each player goes against all 15 others in the tournament. But the winner isn't necessarily the one who shoots the best golf.

At the stage, Mrs. Cornelius is the low scorer with 292. Miss Faulk, whose par-matching 36-36—72 was the best of the day, is one stroke behind, Mickey in the point standings.

Miss Wright started the day with a plus 22 count and increased it at the expense of Miss Whitworth and Ruthie Jessen while losing a point to Marilynn Smith's 75.

Miss Berg, the stocky, straight-shooting veteran, had a 77 but gained three points and left the 18th green muttering:

"That putt I missed there really hurt me."

Where Patty missed one and lost some points, Mrs. Cornelius hit her 15-footer straight at the cup and it just trickled in to win three points for her.

She gained a total of 10 points on the round, playing against Betsy Rawls and Murle MacKenzie, both of who shot 78s and Bev Hanson, who had 79.

"If I could have played any good I really would have gained some points," Mrs. Cornelius, a Phoenix, Ariz., housewife commented.

HALF WEIGH 230 AND UP

Collegiates Named For August 4, All-Star Tilt

CHICAGO (AP) — A select 55-player collegiate squad, half jammed with bruisers weighing 230 or more pounds, Saturday was named by Coach Otto Graham to face the Philadelphia Eagles in the 28th All-Star football game Aug. 4 in Soldier Field.

Most of the players, screened from the nation's crop of 1960 gridiron seniors, will play professional football this year.

Graham, former standout Northwestern University and Cleveland Brown quarterback, will be directing his fourth college All-Star squad. His 1958 All-Stars upset the Detroit Lions 35-19. In the past two games, the Baltimore Colts posted triumphs in this colorful series sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

In seeking to whip the current National Football League champion Eagles, Graham and his staff scouted for size as well as speed and skill. No fewer than 25 of his handpicked players range from 230 to 285 pounds. These dreadnoughts include:

Center — Tom Goode (250) of Mississippi State; Roland Lakes (245) of Wichita; and Mike Pyle (230) of Yale; and Greg Larson (225) of Minnesota.

Ends — Marlin McKeever (235) of Southern California; Earl Faison (235) of Indiana; Harold Beaty (235) of Oklahoma State; John Brewer (230) of Mississippi; and Mike Ditka (225) of Pittsburgh.

The All-Star ground attack will be hubbed around such fine ball carriers as Navy's Joe Bellino; Tommy Mason of Tulane; George Fleming of Washington; Bob Crespino and George Blair from Mississippi; and Ohio State's Tom Matte, quarterback.

Love Getting Stronger In Amateur Meet

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Getting stronger as he goes, defending champion Sam Love, Jr., moved two giant steps closer to a repeat as the Louisiana State Amateur golf king Saturday.

Love will play pre-tournament favorite Bert Burdick of Baton Rouge in a 36-hole final match Sunday.

Love, of Shreveport, dumped two opponents in Saturday's match play action in the 29th annual tournament. Russ Gaudin, former Baton Rouge junior links star, fell 2 up, in a Saturday morning round.

Then Love stopped Art Hannaman of Denham Springs, 4 and 3, in the afternoon.

Burdick tumbled medalist Bill Scruggs of Baton Rouge with a smashing 7 and 5 victory Saturday morning.

Burdick then ousted D. P. Majors of New Orleans 5 and 4.

The Love-Burdick final match Sunday will be almost exactly as pre-tournament dope predicted. They'll play the first 18-hole round beginning at 8 a.m. and will start the last half at noon.

Sentiment, Logic Vie For Backing

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — The cold, hard logic rides with Arnold Palmer and Gary Player but strong sentimental backing has built up for aging Ben Hogan and Sam Snead in the 61st U. S. Open Golf Championship starting Thursday.

Palmer, the defending champion from Latrobe, Pa., and Player the 25-year-old Masters champion and leading money winner from South Africa, head the field of 127 professionals and 23 amateurs who make the assault on the formidable Oakland Hills Country Club course, a notorious wrecker of dreams.

But no one is under-estimating the dramatic possibilities of an historic triumph by either Hogan, who will be seeking an unprecedented fifth open title, or Snead, who is still gunning for his first.

It was on this course—a tight monster with wasp-waisted fairways and fiendishly guarded greens—that the great Hogan won the third of his four opens in 1951, finishing with a 3-under-par 67.

It was here also that Snead, playing in his first open 24 years ago, experienced the first of his long series of open frustrations, losing the title by two strokes to late-charging Ralph Guldahl.

Today Snead, at 49, is playing what he calls the finest golf of his career and mechanically appears set for one of the strongest charges he ever has made at the elusive title. Recent winner of the Canada Cup individual crown, he has played ten of his last 11 rounds in 70 strokes or better. He has won the last three tournaments he has entered.

Hogan, 48, and semi-retired, is a strong threat because the course seems ideally suited to his type of precision, placement golf. He was in the running last year at Denver until the 71st hole.

Oakland Hills is a 6,907-yard layout which has been dotted with fairway traps which catch tee shots of 225 to 250 yards—the target area of most hitters. Par is 35-35—70.

At some points, its fairways are so narrow golfers complain they and their caddies must edge through them single file, Indian fashion. And spectators have to applaud with their hands moving up and down, instead of sideways.

The tournament affords a renewal of the two-man rivalry which has grown up between the muscled, gambling Palmer and the meticulous, herb-eating Player.

Orioles Edge Twins 4-3 On 2-Run Homer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Reliever Hoyt Wilhelm checked a ninth inning rally by Minnesota Saturday as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Twins 4-3 on a two-run homer by Ron Hansen.

With the Orioles leading 4-2 in the final inning, Bob Allison doubled with one out. Dan Dobbeck, batting for Earl Battey, singled, scoring Allison. But Jim Lemon, pinchhitting for Bill Tuttle, forced Dobbek and Brooks Robinson threw out Zoilo Versalles, ending the game.

Baltimore starter Hal Brown pitched three-hit ball for seven innings, but rain delayed the game for more than an hour in that frame. Wilhelm took the mound when play resumed.

Funloving Is Winner Of Mother Goose

NEW YORK (AP) — Ogden Phipps' Funloving barely held off the late come-from-behind rush of the favored Brookmeade Stable's Bowl of Flowers and won the $87,375 Mother Goose Stakes by a head Saturday at Belmont Park. Andy Crevolin's Mighty Fair was third.

Bowl of Flowers, 1960 champion 2-year-old filly, had won six-in-a-row while Funloving now has put together five straight victories.

State-Times Says Board Breaks Rules

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The 6-5 vote to oust Supt. Lloyd V. Funchess by the East Baton Rouge Parish school board failed to meet requirements of the board's own rules, the State-Times said Saturday.

The newspaper gave as its authority Dr. Giles Gray, retired professor of speech who taught parliamentary procedure at Louisiana State University 28 years and authored nationally published articles on the subject.

Funchess in January was elected by the board to a four-year term beginning July 1, but the board rescinded the January action and decided to hire a new superintendent June 22 after taking applications.

Funchess' attorney has promised to contest the move in court and assert the superintendent's contractual rights to pay for the four-year period. Several taxpayers' suits have been promised.

The six-man majority which voted to rescind the January election of Funchess and oust him was made up of two elected board members and four appointed by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis.

The governor packed the board with strong segregationist members after the legislature last winter passed a new law to authorize expanding it from seven to 11 members.

The new majority criticized Funchess for what they called refusal to cooperate on fiscal matters and to operate the schools within the board's budget.

East Baton Rouge Parish, although not given an exact date, has been ordered to end segregation in its public schools.

Gray told the State-Times the action to end Funchess' employment is invalid under Roberts' rules of order. The board operates under a new code of procedure, which incorporates Roberts' rules.

The expert on parliamentary procedure said Roberts' rules and another publication on the subject clearly state "matters of a contractual nature involving an individual cannot be rescinded if that individual has taken any action involving the fulfillment of any part of that contract."

Father Collapses At Wedding, Dies

CANTERBURY, England (AP) —A father collapsed while escorting his daughter down the aisle in Canterbury cathedral Saturday for her wedding. William Brett was taken to hospital but was dead on arrival.

Two Suspects In Several Slayings Captured

GRANTSVILLE, Utah (AP) — Utah law officers Saturday captured two teenagers wanted for questioning about several killings in Illinois, Tennessee, and Kansas.

Sheriff Fay Gillette identified them as George Ronald York, 18, Jacksonville, Fla., and James Douglas Latham, 19, Mauriceville, Tex. Gillette said they were being held in jail at Tooele, Utah, south of here. FBI agents had them picked up on a federal stolen-car warrant and also planned to question them about the killings.

Sheriff Gillette said the car they were driving belonged to a murder victim in Illinois. The car had been missing since Thursday near Granite City, Ill., scene of two murders.

The victims were Martin Drenovac, 69, of Granite City, who was beaten to death at a service station he operated, and Albert E. Reed, 35, of Litchfield, Ill., whose body was found about seven miles from the Drenovac service station in a creek. Reed, who had been shot in the head, owned the 1960 red Dodge Dart that officers said the two suspects were driving.

Gillette said officers found two loaded guns, a copper-jacketed .38-caliber revolver and a .22-caliber revolver.

The Utah Highway Patrol said the stolen-car warrant was based on a vehicle stolen from a 71-year-old man shot to death near Knoxville, Tenn.

The FBI in Knoxville said the warrant, on which the youths were arrested, involved a truck stolen from Baton Rouge, La. and recovered at Shelbyville, Tenn. A Negro man, John A. Whitacher, was found dead near the stolen truck, the FBI said.

Hostesses of Monroe delight in visitors from out of town. This week the calendar has been filled with parties honoring several different groups of guests, including some former residents now living away.

True Southern hospitality was reflected in open house Monday night at the CORBIN TURPINS home on Point drive. The party served as a welcome-home for daughter Lucylu and her fiance, CHUCK CAMPBELL, who have been at school in Virginia. Chuck's parents, the WALLACE CAMPBELLS of Hartford, Connecticut, were unable to make the trip at the last minute.

In our poetry corner today, three short poems treating with some of the problems of summer housekeeping. They put us in mind of Bill Vaughan's remark: "It makes a man sort of humble to have been a kid when everything was the kids' fault and a parent at a time when everything is the parents' fault."

First, "Field Day" by Margaret Fishback:

He's home — vacation days are here!
He permeates the atmosphere.
Doors slam. His cronies, by the score,
Assault the icebox, as of yore.
Beneath the dining table sprawl
His shoes, akimbo. In the hall,
Assorted coats and sweaters, too,
Lie inside out with sleeves askew.
A demon decorator might
Assert the household is a fright;
But though my home's no picture book,
I revel in that "lived-in" look.
Anonymous comment:
No dampened garment have I missed;
The finished pile has soared.
But judging by my aching wrist,
I'm getting ironing bored.

By Leila Payton:

Daughter's my size now,
Which leaves just one hurdle:
I could start wearing her dresses
If she'd give back my girdle.

Peggy Bayles Becomes Bride Of Ralph G. Parks

Vows uniting Miss Peggy Joy Bayles and Ralph Gordon Parks were solemnized June 4 at Fairpark Baptist church with Rev. Robert Charles Bayles of Arnett, Oklahoma, brother of the bride, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Bayles of West Monroe, and Mr. Parks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy E. Parks of Farmerville.

Pedestal baskets of pink and white gladioli, flanked by white tapers in wrought iron candelabra against a background of greenery formed the setting for the exchange of vows. A program of nuptial music was presented by Ronnie Brothers, organist and Miss Jane McComb, who sang "Still as the Night." Following the service Miss Myra McComb sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Candles were lighted by Miss Joyce McComb and Miss Marijen Jones, who wore identical pink organza frocks with matching accessories and corsages of pink roses.

Mrs. Elton Blackmon, matron of honor and Mrs. Don Nolan, sister of the bride, bridesmaid, wore identical dresses of pink silk organza over cotton satin, styled with basque bodices and full skirts. They wore matching slippers and picture hats of pink silk organza and carried baskets of pink roses with pink satin streamers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of antique satin with fitted elongated bodice and round neckline of net, appliqued with lace flowers. The full skirt was accented by wide panels of Chantilly lace which terminated in a chapel train and her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a tiara of pearls. She wore elbow length lace gloves and carried a white Bible surmounted with a cascade arrangement of feathered chrysanthemums centered with a white orchid.

Presley Parks, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and groomsmen-ushers were Don Nolan and Billy Howell.

Mrs. Bayles chose for her daughter's wedding a pink linen sheath dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Parks, mother of the bridegroom, wore mauve linen with matching accessories and a corsage of orchid chrysanthemums.

A reception was held in the church following the ceremony. The serving table, covered with an embroidered linen cloth was centered with a silver bowl of pink and white chrysanthemums and fern. The pink and white theme was carried out in all appointments. Presiding at the crystal punch bowl was Mrs. Irvin Bayles, sister-in-law of the bride and the cake at opposite end of the table, was served by another sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Charles Bayles. Miss Phyllis Boughton, cousin of the bridegroom, had charge of the bride's book and others assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Ted Bayles, sister-in-law of the bride and Mrs. Presley Parks, sister-in-law of the groom.

When the couple left for an extended trip to the mountains, the bride was wearing an ensemble of beige linen with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Parks will establish a home on Hudson Lane in Monroe.

Miss Pat Beam, Becomes Bride

Miss Pat Beam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beam of Epps, became the bride of James B. McPherson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. McPherson of Lake Providence, in a candlelight ceremony held May 27 in the Herringville Baptist church, at 2 p.m.

The double ring service was performed by Rev. E. L. Warren of Harrisville, Miss., against a background of floor baskets of white gladioli interlaced with greenery. The branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, were entwined with smilax, which was also used to construct an arch, beneath which the couple stood for the exchange of vows.

Sammy Donaldson and Billy Beam served as candlelighters. Mrs. Gene Simpkins presented a program of nuptial music at the piano and also accompanied Mrs. Johnnie Burgess, who sang "I Love You Truly," and "Whither Thou Goest."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white satin and lace, featuring a scalloped neckline and long sleeves tapered to petal points over the hands. The bouffant skirt was fashioned in tiers of tulle and lace over satin. Her elbow length veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis, centered with a purple orchid.

Miss Joyce Stephens served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Nona Murphy, Miss Jeanette Craswell and Noreen Donaldson. Rhonda Seymore acted as flower girl. They wore gowns of pink and blue organza and carried bouquets of white pompons with white satin leaves and tulle.

Mr. McPherson attended his son as best man. Groomsmen-ushers were Marlin McPherson and Joe Mack O'Neal.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the new home of the young couple, which was decorated with arrangements of yellow gladioli and blue iris. Miss Derona Burgess presided over the guest book. The bridesmaid's bouquets formed the centerpiece for the refreshment table which was covered with a beige lace cloth over pink. Mrs. C. E. Rhodes served the wedding cake and Mrs. J. B. Donaldson presided at the punch bowl.

For a wedding trip to Tennessee the bride changed into a pink cotton and lace dress with white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home in Monticello community where the bridegroom is engaged in farming.

Fashion Calls For Accessories

In a coined word, "accessorize" describes the fashion step which will lead to the summer's cool, easy understated look.

To achieve it, fashion authorities choose the dress of the season, with a half dozen plus one beautifully assorted ways to wear it. The dress: A "paled-gray linen shape," scarcely defining the figure and flaring well below the hipline. Designed by Jeanne Campbell, it's the Paris rave silhouette, translated for budget-conscious Americans and calls for slender shoes with little heels.

Glamour-ize yourself and the same dress, for any summer occasion on the agenda, with a wardrobe of bright, summer-wise accessories.

Let's talk about Maternity Fashions

LITTLE BLACK DRESS

That little black or navy blue dress is just as important in the wardrobe of the mother-to-be as it is in the wardrobe of any other member of the female populace. Aside from the versatility of this important item on your list of maternity clothing, you will find that darker colors tend to minimize the maximum . . . seem to focus attention toward your face instead of your more expanded middle. This season's darker fashions are making their appearance in our shop in the transitional versions. Next time you are in our shop, ask to see what has happened to this perennial favorite.

THE WAITING GAME

This season's maternity fashions have been carefully designed to help you play the waiting game beautifully. No mother-to-be has any excuse for sitting home "marking time." With the right wardrobe suited especially to your figure and personality, you'll find that you can be just as active now as you have been at any other time in your life. It's all a matter of proper selection and correct fit.

SHOPPING SPREE

Lillian's Maternity invites you to come in and go on a shopping spree . . . right here in our shop. Bring a pair of dressy shoes and try on some of our beautiful summer outfits. MR. AND MRS. JIMMY H. ALLEN

MR. AND MRS. LIONEL EDWARD LEVEE of Tallulah, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Connie Elizabeth, above, to Robert Wray Speed, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Graham Speed, also of Tallulah. The wedding will be solemnized June 25 at 5 p.m. in the First Baptist church in Tallulah. Miss Levee and Mr. Speed are students at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, where both are majoring in education.

Summer Care

There's no point in feeding the summer moth population your fur-trimmed winter coats, suits and other cold-season clothing. Before storage, have everything cleaned, since even a small spot attracts moths. In the case of cherished fur, cold storage at the cleaner's or a furrier's is best—even for fur trims. If you keep furs at home and use moth crystals, keep them away from direct contact. Moth balls or crystals that touch fur may turn the color and a small cloth bag of them hanging in the storage closet is recommended.

Miss Rockett Is Wed In Home Ceremony

A double ring ceremony solemnized June 2 united in marriage Miss Joanna Rockett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Rockett and Jimmy H. Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Allen, all of Marion. The vows were read by Rev. W. S. Cullin at 7 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents.

The fireplace mantel, banked with white gladioli, shasta daisies and fern, flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra, formed an improvised altar setting.

Yellow roses in a silver footed crystal bowl centered the table which was covered in yellow, overlaid with a white cutwork cloth. Mrs. Spencer Allen, cousin of the bride, served the wedding cake and Miss Melba Allen presided at the punch bowl at opposite ends of the table. Stephanie Donnell and Carol Ann Lankford assisted as tea girls and distributed yellow organza rice bags. Miss Betty Lou Arnett presided at the guest book.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jack P. Dean, New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn, Bridge City, Tex., Mrs. James Piker, James Lloyd Piker, Texas City, Tex., Mrs. Lloyd Skaggs, Houston, Tex., Mrs. Verna Coburn, Gilbert H. Wade III, Ponchatoula, Miss Elaine Jarmon, Lake Charles; Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Lankford, Carol Ann, David, Miss Carol McKinley, Shreveport; Mrs. John Lee Turnage, Mrs. Spencer Allen, Farmerville; James Rockett, Miss Judy Harrison, Monroe; Miss Betty Lou Arnett, Bastrop and Billy Gardner, Haile.

Rugs Show New Shapes

Planning to use an area rug in your home? You'll be especially pleased with the many style developments which are evident in this form of soft floor covering, and you'll find these rugs useful in several rooms of your home.

Try this checklist to make sure that you are using these colorful rugs most effectively:

Are your floors in good condition? An area rug — especially current styles which are especially interesting in design — draw the eye to the floor, so make sure that the appearance of the surrounding floor area is all you want it to be.

Is your room large enough? Remember that an area rug, as its name suggests, divides a room into areas, so choose one for a larger room where space is no problem.

Choose one which is large enough to contain a furniture grouping or small enough to frame one particular piece of furniture, such as a coffee table. Small rugs which are simply placed in the midst of a furniture grouping result in a skimpy, "postage - stamp" appearance.

Among current styles, look, too for interesting shapes. Rectangles and squares are familiar friends.

Miss Lynnda Neal Gerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Gerson of New Orleans, and Louis Levy Lowentritt Jr., son of Mrs. Louis Levy Lowentritt Sr., of Winnsboro, were united in marriage on Sunday, June 4 in New Orleans.

The 7 p.m. ceremony was performed by Rabbi Israel H. Weisfeld, PHd, of Beth Israel Congregation, beneath a canopy of yellow chrysanthemums attached in clusters to huge branches. Single cathedral candles entwined with smilax and yellow carnations formed a formal aisle and candelabra also formed a background.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full length sheath gown of Chantilly lace and pure silk organza, to which was attached a court length train of silk organza accented with appliques of lace. The moulded bodice featured a square neckline, outlined in lace and long tapered sleeves. The bride's mother was wearing a shocking pink chiffon gown, with a large white cabbage rose at the waist. Mrs. Lowentritt, mother of the groom, wore a pink silk linen sheath with a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Paradise palms and columned urns of yellow spring flowers formed a background for the reception. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of yellow flowers surrounding large pineapples in golden foliage and centerpieces for the guests' tables were of pineapples, golden foliage and white candles.

MRS. LOUIS LEVY LOWENTRITT JR.

Mr. Lowentritt, Bride On Trip To Pennsylvania

Miss Lynnda Neal Gerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Gerson of New Orleans, and Louis Levy Lowentritt Jr., son of Mrs. Louis Levy Lowentritt Sr., of Winnsboro, were united in marriage on Sunday, June 4 in New Orleans.

The 7 p.m. ceremony was performed by Rabbi Israel H. Weisfeld, PHd, of Beth Israel Congregation, beneath a canopy of yellow chrysanthemums attached in clusters to huge branches. Single cathedral candles entwined with smilax and yellow carnations formed a formal aisle and candelabra also formed a background.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full length sheath gown of Chantilly lace and pure silk organza, to which was attached a court length train of silk organza accented with appliques of lace. The moulded bodice featured a square neckline, outlined in lace and long tapered sleeves. Her bouffant veil of imported illusion was held in place by a lace trimmed rosette headpiece of silk organza and she also wore a diamond pendant, a family heirloom. The bride carried a Bible, topped with yellow cymbidium orchids and garlands of yellow lily of the valley.

Miss Brenda Faye Mattes was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Joan Marshall, Ruth Joel Rosen and Leslie Kay Zelman. They wore identical gowns of maize silk organza with tiered overskirts and their headpieces were yellow satin bandeaux with brief veils. The attendants carried cascade bouquets of pale yellow stock, yellow sweetheart roses and bronze chrysanthemums, centered with birds of paradise.

Phillips Lowentritt of Winnsboro, served as best man for his brother and groomsmen were Marshall Fred Gerson and Alan Abram Gerson, brothers of the bride; Leo Levy Lowentritt Jr., Winnsboro and Jack Wertheimer Jr., Dallas, Texas, cousins of the groom. Ushers were Orin Levy, Edward Lobman, Jerrold Packler, Marvin Smith, of New Orleans and Henry Lowentritt, Winnsboro.

The bride's mother was wearing a shocking pink chiffon gown, with a large white cabbage rose at the waist. Mrs. Lowentritt, mother of the groom, wore a pink silk linen sheath with a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Paradise palms and columned urns of yellow spring flowers formed a background for the reception. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of yellow flowers surrounding large pineapples in golden foliage and centerpieces for the guests' tables were of pineapples, golden foliage and white candles.

For a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania, the bride was wearing a taupe silk suit with matching hat and black patent accessories and an orchid tinted to match her costume.

They will be at home in Winnsboro.

MISS BETTY JO Call and Peter Paul Battaglia were united in marriage Friday, June 2 in a ceremony performed in the home of the officiating minister, Rev. James Thorn. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bernice Dover of Monroe, and Harold Call, Pampa, Texas. The couple has established a home in Monroe, where the bridegroom is employed.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE MCCLENDON

M. Albritton of Downsville, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McClendon, West Monroe.

The Rev. F. D. Wall performed the double ring ceremony before an arch entwined with gardenias and ivy, flanked by four baskets of pink gladioli and branched candelabra, holding white tapers.

Mrs. Al Newton, organist, accompanied Mrs. David Mahoney and Mrs. Jerry Hibbard, as they sang "Whither Thou Goest," and "The Lord's Prayer," and also played traditional wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of lace and nylon net over taffeta,, styled with scalloped neckline and three-quarter sleeves. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a pearl-trimmed cap and she wore short white gloves and carried a bouquet of featured chrysanthemums circling a lavender orchid.

Miss Sally Albritton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a frock of orchid organdy over taffeta with matching veil headdress and carried a shower bouquet of pink pompons. Junior bridesmaids, Misses Linda and Dora Albritton and bridesmaids, Miss Ola Mae Bryan and Miss Betty Albritton, were dressed in frocks of pink organdy over matching taffeta with nylon net flower bandeaux and matching veils. They carried bouquets of orchid pompon chrysanthemums garlanded with clusters of the blossoms.

Miss Debbie Albritton, flower girl, was dressed identically to the honor attendant and carried a nosegay of pink feathered chrysanthemums, centered with a pink pompon.

Candlelighters were Miss Renee Wall and Miss Billie Davis, dressed in pink and lavender organdy respectively.

Gene Brown attended the bridegroom as best man and groomsmen were Elgin Albritton and Gary Wall. Robert Hearne and Melvin Albritton served as ushers and George Davis was ring bearer.

The bride's mother was dressed in a blue summer cotton with white accessories and the bridegroom's mother also wore a blue cotton frock with matching accessories. Both had corsages of pink flowers..

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social hall of the church, where the bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with the bride's bouquet encircled with ivy. White candles completed the setting. Mrs. Marlene Thornhill served the wedding cake and Miss Judy Mahoney presided at the punch bowl with Miss Peggy Mahoney at the bride's book.

For a wedding trip to Vicksburg, Miss., the bride was wearing a pink and white cotton suit. Upon their return they will be at home at 413 Cyress.

Vows were exchanged in the home of the bridegroom's mother, with Rev. Devere Sanson of DeRidder, performing the double ring service. An arrangement of white stock and carnations centered the mantel of the fireplace which was flanked by lighted tapers, to form an improvised altar for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by D. M. Vickery of Metairie. She wore a beige silk suit with matching straw pillbox hat and other accessories in olive green and an orchid corsage. She also wore a gold brooch, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Newman chose for her daughter's wedding a beige linen frock and the bridegroom's mother wore a pink lace dress. Both wore corsages of white glamelias.

For a reception following the ceremony the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of stock and wedding bells with the tiered cake and punch bowl at opposite ends. DELTA THEATRE

'Exodus' To Open In Monroe June 29

Production of the Otto Premniger film, "Exodus," started on the streets of Haifa on a Sunday . . . but it was a working day in Israel where Saturday is the Sabbath. A little more than three months later, on a barge anchored next to the ship Exodus in the middle of Famagusta harbor on Cyprus, Mr. Preminger called "Cut! Print!" for the last time and photography of the picture was completed. It will open June 29 at the Delta Theatre.

"Exodus" is the first major American film to be produced in Israel. Part of it also was shot on the island of Cyprus and its dramatic story, based on the Leon Uris best - selling novel, plays against the colorful backgrounds of these two countries with their vivid reminders of ancient and modern history. Dalton Trumbo wrote the screenplay for the epic film which was photographed in Technicolor and Super Panavision, with Academy Award winning Sam Leavitt behind the cameras.

The plot covers the period from May, 1947, through December of the same year, a month after the United Nations General Assembly adopted a resolution calling for the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine.

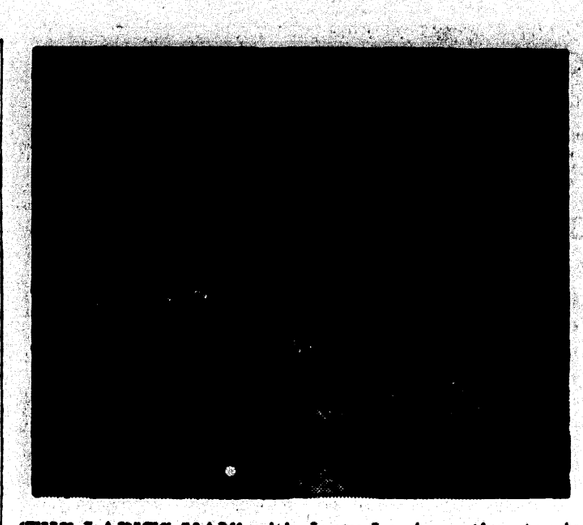
Preminger's cameras converted Israel, and particularly the Galilee area, into a huge movie set, with famous landmarks playing a prominent part in the action and adding to the authenticity of the film. The brooding towers of the crusader fortress at Acre, the busy harbor of Haifa, the picturesque ruins at Caesarea where Rome emperors once held court, the divided city of Jerusalem and the bare-walled simplicity of Kafr Kana, the Arab village where Christ performed his first miracle 2,000 years ago — they all became part of this saga of the men and women who fought and died for the right to build a new country to call their own.

On Cyprus, the capital city of Nicosia and the town of Famagust with its old harbor provided locations for "Exodus." Cameras also moved high into the Kyrenian mountain range to capture a scene against the romantic background of time-worn St. Hilarion Castle.

The main parts in "Exodus" are being played by Paul Newman (Ari Ben Canaan), Eva Marie Saint (Kitty Fremont), Ralph Richardson (General Sutherland), Peter Lawford (Caldwell), Lee J. Cobb (Barak), Sal Mineo (Dov Landau), John Derek (Taha), Hugh Griffith (Mandria), Gregory Ratoff (Lakavitch), Felix Sylmer (Dr. Lieberman), David Opatoshu (Akiva) and Jill Haworth (Karen).

Newman and Miss Saint were Preminger's original choices for their respective roles and accepted them without even seeing the script. Miss Haworth, bond, blue-eyed and 14½ years old, was discovered by Preminger at the Corona Stage School in London where she was studying drama and the dance. Alexandra Stewart, a Canadian girl who plays Jordana, will be seen for the first time by American audiences.

When shooting got under way in the streets of Haifa, thousands of curious onlookers gathered to watch the production in the making and saw the clock being turned back to 1947. Once again, the atmosphere was tense, British and Palestine Police patrols dominated the scene and British armored cars and trucks rumbled over rough pavement. For many Israelis appearing in the cast it was less like acting than remembering.



'THE LADIES MAN' with Jerry Lewis as the star is now showing at the Jim Theatre. The picture also stars Helen Traubel, Shary Layne, Ann McCrea, Patricia Olson and Gloria Tracey. The Paramount release is in Technicolor.

'Ladies Man' Now Showing At The Jim

A new Jerry Lewis fun-for-all, "The Ladies Man," is now showing at the Jim Theatre, bringing the comedian in the title role with assistance from Helen Traubel, newcomers Pat Stanley, Kathleen Freeman, Hope Holiday and Lynn Ross, and guest stars Buddy Lester, George Raft and Harry James.

Filmed in Technicolor, the Paramount release was produced, directed and written by Jerry, the latter chore in collaboration with Bill Richmond. The story, punctuated with songs, dances and lots of entertainment surprises concerns the misadventures of a bashful young woman - hater who finds he has taken the job of houseboy in a Hollywood boarding house occupied exclusively by career-seeking, man-hungry blondes, brunettes and redheads. By the time the film and Jerry's "education" are over, he has developed a whole new attitude toward the female of the species.

About 100 watchmakers and their wives attended the banquet and dance of the Louisiana Horological Association at the Penn Hotel Saturday night.

Monroe Commissioner of Finance H. W. McSherry will give the welcome address Sunday morning at 9:30. Other highlights of the program will include an Accutron Film and a lecture on the process of gold - gilling by a representative from Southwest Smelting which will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The business session will begin at 4 p.m. and will include committee reports, the election of 1962 officers and the locating of next year's convention city.

Doctors Say JFK's Back Ails Better

Kennedy still is on crutches. He still is swimming and taking gentle exercises, in a heated pool. And he is putting off his return to Washington until Monday, partly to prolong the rest and recuperation he is getting here in the balmy South.

The presidential physician, Dr. Janet Travell, saw Kennedy several times Saturday. And the word from Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, was:

"Dr. Travell states that by all signs, the President's condition is improving. The President stated to her, and I quote: 'I had a much better day yesterday.' "

Kennedy strained his back when he scooped up several shovelfuls of dirt at a ceremonial tree planting in Ottawa, Canada, May 16. Dr. Travell lists the ailment as far less serious than previous back injuries Kennedy has suffered.

Originally the President had intended to fly back to Washington late Sunday. Now the take-off time has been set for 9:15 a.m. Monday, with arrival at Andrews Air Force Base outside the capital two hours later.

Kennedy got about 10 hours sleep Friday night. He was up at 8:15. He took his first dip around noon, in the outdoor salt water pool at the ocean front villa he is borrowing from old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman.

The President put in some time reading and had a brief work session with his naval aide, Cmdr. Tazewell T. Shepard. This took care of some of the more important communications from Washington, Hatcher said.

While he was at it, Kennedy made a couple of appointments and sent a birthday greeting to Queen Elizabeth II of England, who is celebrating her 35th anniversary officially.

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, June 11, the 162nd day of the year with 203 more to follow in 1961.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter, Venus and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1859, Henry Tompkins Paige Comstock laid claim to a silver deposit in Nevada. He later sold his rights for $11,000, unaware that the Comstock Lode was to be the greatest silver bonanza discovered by man.

In 1920, Senator Warren Harding was summoned to a smoke filled room in Chicago's Hotel Blackstone and told he would be the GOP presidential nominee.

In 1950, Ben Hogan won the U.S. Open golf championship in a miraculous comeback. He suffered near fatal injuries in an auto accident 16 months earlier.

Thought for today: American inventor Thomas Edison said: "There is no substitute for hard work."

Elvis Presley Picture Opens At Paramount

Jerry Wald's production of "Wild in the Country" brings Elvis Presley back to the screen in a drama of the rehabilitation of a gifted rural boy from delinquency to the promise of a young writer.

The picture opens Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre.

Based on the novel by J. R. Salamanca, with a screenplay by Clifford Odets, this is the story of a Shenandoah Valley farm boy named Glenn (ELVIS PRESLEY) whose endless collisions with the law have brought him to the point where he must go either to reform school or into the permanent custody of a probation officer appointed by the court. It is Hope Lange, playing the part of Irene, the psychiatric social worker who shifts the balance of the court's opinion and becomes the influence for good in the boy's life.

The weekly meetings between Irene and Glenn begin as professional interviews and slowly shape into analytic sessions in which this older woman's intuitive genius for understanding the problems of rebellious adolescence come into real focus. Glenn has a native ability to write beautiful prose, but his lack of self - confidence and of formal education are overwhelming and frustrating. How Irene steers him toward assurance, how she encourages his writing, how she brings him to the university and succeeds in making him want, for himself, the kind of career she envisions for him, are the crux of a relationship that match anything in the drama of the current film season.

Elvis Presley turns in a dynamic performance as the wayward Glenn, torn between his habit of rebelliousness and his inner dreams of decency. The growing tie between him and his patient counselor is a subtle passion which comes as close to actual love as anything in the boy's experience. Hope Lange's interpretation of her own conflict, are handled with taste and a fine feeling for the nuances of a romance between an older woman and an inexperienced boy.

Excellent performances are turned in by Tuesday Weld and Millie Perkins, as two young contemporaries of Glenn's, one an unwed mother trying to trap Glenn into a defensive marriage, the other a gentle country girl sufficiently in love to give him up to the career he wants. "Wild In The Country" is a convincing and powerful screen vehicle that will commend itself to audiences seeking meaning and first - rate entertainment in one package.

'Exodus' To Open In Monroe June 29

Production of the Otto Premniger film, "Exodus," started on the streets of Haifa on a Sunday . . . but it was a working day in Israel where Saturday is the Sabbath. A little more than three months later, on a barge anchored next to the ship Exodus in the middle of Famagusta harbor on Cyprus, Mr. Preminger called "Cut! Print!" for the last time and photography of the picture was completed. It will open June 29 at the Delta Theatre.

"Exodus" is the first major American film to be produced in Israel. Part of it also was shot on the island of Cyprus and its dramatic story, based on the Leon Uris best - selling novel, plays against the colorful backgrounds of these two countries with their vivid reminders of ancient and modern history. Dalton Trumbo wrote the screenplay for the epic film which was photographed in Technicolor and Super Panavision, with Academy Award winning Sam Leavitt behind the cameras.

The plot covers the period from May, 1947, through December of the same year, a month after the United Nations General Assembly adopted a resolution calling for the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine.

Preminger's cameras converted Israel, and particularly the Galilee area, into a huge movie set, with famous landmarks playing a prominent part in the action and adding to the authenticity of the film. The brooding towers of the crusader fortreess at Acre, the busy harbor of Haifa, the picturesque ruins at Caesarea where Rome emperors once held court, the divided city of Jerusalem and the bare-walled simplicity of Kafr Kana, the Arab village where Christ performed his first miracle 2,000 years ago — they all became part of this saga of the men and women who fought and died for the right to build a new country to call their own.

On Cyprus, the capital city of Nicosia and the town of Famagust with its old harbor provided locations for "Exodus." Cameras also moved high into the Kyrenian mountain range to capture a scene against the romantic background of time-worn St. Hilarion Castle.

The main parts in "Exodus" are being played by Paul Newman (Ari Ben Canaan), Eva Marie Saint (Kitty Fremont), Ralph Richardson (General Sutherland), Peter Lawford (Caldwell), Lee J. Cobb (Barak), Sal Mineo (Dov Landau), John Derek (Taha), Hugh Griffith (Mandria), Gregory Ratoff (Lakavitch), Felix Sylmer (Dr. Lieberman), David Opatoshu (Akiva) and Jill Haworth (Karen).

Newman and Miss Saint were Preminger's original choices for their respective roles and accepted them without even seeing the script. Miss Haworth, bond, blueeyed and 14½ years old, was discovered by Preminger at the Corona Stage School in London where she was studying drama and the dance. Alexandra Stewart, a Canadian girl who plays Jordana, will be seen for the first time by American audiences.

When shooting got under way in the streets of Haifa, thousands of curious onlookers gathered to watch the production in the making and saw the clock being turned back to 1947. Once again, the atmosphere was tense, British and Palestine Police patrols dominated the scene and British armored cars and trucks rumbled over rough pavement. For many Israelis appearing in the cast it was less like acting than remembering.

'THE LADIES MAN' with Jerry Lewis as the star is now showing at the Jim Theatre. The picture also stars Helen Traubel, Shary Layne, Ann McCrea, Patricia Olson and Gloria Tracey. The Paramount release is in Technicolor.

'Ladies Man' Now Showing At The Jim

A new Jerry Lewis fun-for-all, "The Ladies Man," is now showing at the Jim Theatre, bringing the comedian in the title role with assistance from Helen Traubel, newcomers Pat Stanley, Kathleen Freeman, Hope Holiday and Lynn Ross, and guest stars Buddy Lester, George Raft and Harry James.

Filmed in Technicolor, the Paramount release was produced, directed and written by Jerry, the latter chore in collaboration with Bill Richmond. The story, punctuated with songs, dances and lots of entertainment surprises concerns the misadventures of a bashful young woman - hater who finds he has taken the job of houseboy in a Hollywood boarding house occupied exclusively by career-seeking, man-hungry blondes, brunettes and redheads. By the time the film and Jerry's "education" are over, he has developed a whole new attitude toward the female of the species.

Free World Aid Coordinator Is Named By JFK

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Career Ambassador James W. Riddleberger will head a key group for coordinating free world aid to underdeveloped countries, President Kennedy announced Saturday.

Kennedy said members of the Development Assistance Group had approved his nomination of Riddleberger. During its meeting on London in March DAG adopted a resolution asking an American be named chairman.

DAG, established in January 1960, includes, the United States, Belgium, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Portugal, the United Kingdom and the commission of the European Economic Community.

When the Organization for European Cooperation and Development becomes fully operative, DAG will become the Development Assistance Committee, of which Riddleberger will be chairman. This committee will serve as a major arm of OECD in funneling aid to underdeveloped countries.

Watchmakers In Convention; To Be Over Today

About 100 watchmakers and their wives attended the banquet and dance of the Louisiana Horological Association at the Penn Hotel Saturday night.

Monroe Commissioner of Finance H. W. McSherry will give the welcome address Sunday morning at 9:30. Other highlights of the program will include an Accutron Film and a lecture on the process of gold - gilling by a representative from Southwest Smelting which will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The business session will begin at 4 p.m. and will include committee reports, the election of 1962 officers and the locating of next year's convention city.

Doctors Say JFK's Back Ails Better

Kennedy still is on crutches. He still is swimming and taking gentle exercises, in a heated pool. And he is putting off his return to Washington until Monday, partly to prolong the rest and recuperation he is getting here in the balmy South.

The presidential physician, Dr. Janet Travell, saw Kennedy several times Saturday. And the word from Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, was:

"Dr. Travell states that by all signs, the President's condition is improving. The President stated to her, and I quote: 'I had a much better day yesterday.' "

Kennedy strained his back when he scooped up several shovelfuls of dirt at a ceremonial tree planting in Ottawa, Canada, May 16. Dr. Travell lists the ailment as far less serious than previous back injuries Kennedy has suffered.

Originally the President had intended to fly back to Washington late Sunday. Now the take-off time has been set for 9:15 a.m. Monday, with arrival at Andrews Air Force Base outside the capital two hours later.

Kennedy got about 10 hours sleep Friday night. He was up at 8:15. He took his first dip around noon, in the outdoor salt water pool at the ocean front villa he is borrowing from old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman.

The President put in some time reading and had a brief work session with his naval aide, Cmdr. Tazewell T. Shepard. This took care of some of the more important communications from Washington, Hatcher said.

While he was at it, Kennedy made a couple of appointments and sent a birthday greeting to Queen Elizabeth II of England, who is celebrating her 35th anniversary officially.

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, June 11, the 162nd day of the year with 203 more to follow in 1961.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter, Venus and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1859, Henry Tompkins Paige Comstock laid claim to a silver deposit in Nevada. He later sold his rights for $11,000, unaware that the Comstock Lode was to be the greatest silver bonanza discovered by man.

In 1920, Senator Warren Harding was summoned to a smoke filled room in Chicago's Hotel Blackstone and told he would be the GOP presidential nominee.

In 1950, Ben Hogan won the U.S. Open golf championship in a miraculous comeback. He suffered near fatal injuries in an auto accident 16 months earlier.

Thought for today: American inventor Thomas Edison said: "There is no substitute for hard work."

Elvis Presley Picture Opens At Paramount

Jerry Wald's production of "Wild in the Country" brings Elvis Presley back to the screen in a drama of the rehabilitation of a gifted rural boy from delinquency to the promise of a young writer.

The picture opens Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre.

Based on the novel by J. R. Salamanca, with a screenplay by Clifford Odets, this is the story of a Shenandoah Valley farm boy named Glenn (ELVIS PRESLEY) whose endless collisions with the law have brought him to the point where he must go either to reform school or into the permanent custody of a probation officer appointed by the court. It is Hope Lange, playing the part of Irene, the psychiatric social worker who shifts the balance of the court's opinion and becomes the influence for good in the boy's life.

The weekly meetings between Irene and Glenn begin as professional interviews and slowly shape into analytic sessions in which this older woman's intuitive genius for understanding the problems of rebellious adolescence come into real focus. Glenn has a native ability to write beautiful prose, but his lack of self - confidence and of formal education are overwhelming and frustrating. How Irene steers him toward assurance, how she encourages his writing, how she brings him to the university and succeeds in making him want, for himself, the kind of career she envisions for him, are the crux of a relationship that match anything in the drama of the current film season.

Elvis Presley turns in a dynamic performance as the wayward Glenn, torn between his habit of rebelliousness and his inner dreams of decency. The growing tie between him and his patient counselor is a subtle passion which comes as close to actual love as anything in the boy's experience. Hope Lange's interpretation of her own conflict, are handled with taste and a fine feeling for the nuances of a romance between an older woman and an inexperienced boy.

Excellent performances are turned in by Tuesday Weld and Millie Perkins, as two young contemporaries of Glenn's, one an unwed mother trying to trap Glenn into a defensive marriage, the other a gentle country girl sufficiently in love to give him up to the career he wants. "Wild In The Country" is a convincing and powerful screen vehicle that will commend itself to audiences seeking meaning and first - rate entertainment in one package.

Most Church Members Not For A Unity

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The biggest obstacle to Christian unity is the fact that a great many church members don't really want it.

They are perfectly happy with the present denominational set-up, and reluctant to consider any merger which might lead to changes in religious customs for which they have a strong sentimental attachment.

Their attitude was succinctly expressed the other day by a Washington, D. C., woman who told her pastor:

"I LIKE being an Episcopalian. I can't see why we should change our way of doing things in order to merge with the Presbyterians and the Methodists and all those other people."

This contentment with the status quo is distressing to leaders of the ecumenical movement, which seeks to heal Christian divisions.

Blocks Real Progress

They know that reunion of the fragmented Christian family will be hard enough to achieve with everyone working and praying for it. Real progress will be virtually impossible as long as millions of church members are satisfied to continue living in separate denominational compartments.

But they also know that you can't change anyone's attitude merely by dèploring it. If the ecumenical movement is to receive the strong popular support it requires, its leaders must somehow communicate to rank-and-file church members their own understanding of the compelling motives behind it. Efforts to do this are now being undertaken.

At least four different reasons are given by ecumenical leaders for their belief that the most urgent necessity confronting Christians in this era is the achievement of visible, effective unity.

Three of these reasons are practical — and secondary. The fourth is theological — and primary.

Gives Reasons

Let's begin with the secondary reasons:

1. Denominationalism is wasteful of money and manpower. This is perhaps the least important of the arguments

OUTBREAKS AHEAD

Polio Shots Help To Protect Family

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thanks to the Salk vaccine, polio has been knocked down — but it's not counted out. The deadly virus still is prowling, ready to strike the unprotected. On the eve of a new polio season, here's a report on the nation's preparedness.

By FRANK CAREY
AP SCIENCE WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — You'd better hurry, but there's still time to get some "quickie" shots of Salk polio vaccine to help protect you and your family before the polio season begins in earnest.

If you begin Monday, June 12, you and your children could get in the basic three shots by July 10, figuring an interval of two weeks each between the first and second and third shots. Meantime, you'd all be building up some degree of immunity.

And, don't put it off because of any idea that the newer and quicker-acting oral poliovirus vaccine will be available in large quantities this summer.

Except for limited amounts that may become available during the summer for use in fighting epidemics, there just won't be any large quantity until the fall, says the U.S. Public Health Service.

The "quickie" course with Salk vaccine, which cuts to two weeks the usual interval of one month between the first two shots and seven months between the second and third, does not afford ideal protection. But both the Public Health Service and the vaccine-developer, Dr. Jonas E. Salk, says it's certainly better than no protection at all.

The incidence of paralytic polio has been running behind last year, which was a record low year. It's still too early to say but authorities say it's possible the unusually cool spring may have delayed the onset of the real polio season.

Here, in question and answer form, is the situation for this year's polio season.

Q. How many Americans have been vaccinated against polio?

A. As of last fall approximately 93 million, representing 60 per cent of the population under 60, had received at least one dose of Salk vaccine. This means that another 85 million still needed vaccination.

Q. Which age group is the most susceptible to polio?

A. Children aged five years and under. They account for about 43 per cent of all paralytic cases. And, about 20 per cent of such youngsters have received no vaccine at all.

Q. Are unvaccinated children in this group a danger to others?

A. They are. In addition to being the most susceptible to polio, these children are the worst spreaders of the virus.

Q. Just what are the two types of vaccine?

A. The first is the Salk vaccine —made of the three types of poliovirus. But the viruses are first killed by formaldehyde before being used in the vaccine. This type of vaccine must be given by injection — either with a needle or with thenewhypo- a needle or with the new hypospray that forces the vaccine through the skin by pressure. All three types of virus are contained in each shot.

The second type of vaccine is made of living, but toned-down virus. It is taken by mouth, usually as a syrup dropped in water or chocolate milk. Infants can suck the vaccine from the tip of a syringe. Three or four doses are required, each about six weeks apart.

Q. How many Americans have been immunized with oral vaccine?

A. More than half a million, in experimental programs conducted last year in Dade County, Fla., Cincinnati, and Rochester and Ithaca, N.Y.

Q. What about use this year of the oral vaccine?

A. Approximately 95,000 people in Harrisburg, Pa., and Boston received experimental doses.

Q. Who developed the live, oral vaccine?

A. Three different scientists in this country developed such vaccines: Dr. Albert Sabin of the University of Cincinnati Medical School; Dr. Herald Cox of the Lederle Laboratories, Pearl River, N.Y.; and Dr. Hilary Koprowski of the Wistar Institute, Philadelphia.

47 Governors Expected At Convention

HONOLULU (AP) — It's called a work session. But the social calendar will be the big thing at the 53rd annual National Governors' Conference June 24 - 30 at Waikiki Beach.

That is, unless work is defined as champagne luncheons in the sky and aboard catamarans, Hawaiian feasts and island tours.

Business sessions are programmed for the first three days. Each session ends at noon. Then the fun begins.

Forty-seven of the 54 eligible state and territorial governors are expected. Forty have sent reservations.

Each arriving governor will be greeted by hula girls, an orchestra and his own official automobile. The cars will be white with the governor's name emblazoned on red, white and gold license plates. Each will be chauffeured by a Honolulu police officer. A total of 150 cars have been shipped to Hawaii for the conference.

Each governor's hotel suite will have a stocked bar, two aloha shirts, two shapeless muumuus for his wife and two pairs of slippers.

Governors will have courtesy membership cards in golf clubs, yacht clubs and other social organizations.

Official entertainment includes an air tour of the Hawaiian islands, complete with champagne lunch; a catamaran ride off Waikiki, also with champagne; a luau — roast pig dinner; an afternoon on a private island; a governors' golf tournament and a six-day post-conference visit to neighboring islands.

Of course there will be special programs for the wives, including fashion shows. For the youngsters there will be babysitters and playgrounds. And for teen-agers their own meeting place with juke box and soft drinks.

The first governor is expected June 18. Twenty arriving on a chartered flight will be greeted by "the most elaborate aloha ever," convention planners said.

The state of Hawaii will pick up the room and board bill for each governor and others in his party June 24-30. The legislature appropriated $87,500, exactly $539.15 more than requested.

With such detailed planning the one thing left to speculation was whether President Kennedy would be here — he said he would, barring a last minute emergency — and where he would stay. Three hotels have reserved entire floors for the President, "just in case."

THE HOME SHIFT

Many Shades Of Mimosas

By MILDRED SWIFT

The mimosas are beautiful now. Notice the different shades of pink, some deep, some with a yellowish cast. This tree drops dead limbs all year. If these appear in your trees, but won't fall, prune and seal the area with tree seal.

This is supposed to prolong the life of the trees whose life apan is from 10 to 18 years. The average life is 12 years. Feeding in January or February will also help the tree to live longer.

But I can tell you one thing and for sure you can do all of that, but when they get ready to die they die, any time after eight years. We have one tree in our garden now 21 years old. Another one planted the same day, treated in the same manner died after eight years.

The lovely limbs, their coloring and the shape of the mimosa makes it a beautiful tree in winter when the foliage is done.

GARDEN WORK

First, if any of you have a desert willow or chilopsis, please call me when it blooms. There are only a few of these growing in this area. It's such a satisfactory summer blooming tree. It grows not quite so large as the mimosa, it's neat growing with foliage like a willow. The flowers are about two inches long and orchid shape. The different colors are red, pink, white, orchid. The tree is evergreen.

Watch roses sending up shoots from the understock. These shoots usually have seven leaflets instead of five. Cut these off close to the bark where they leave the main roots or they'll take over your plant completely.

It is not too late to plant dahlia tubers if you can find them. Dahlias, as they cease blooming, now can be cut almost to the ground. They'll sprout again putting on new growth in the fall. Drainage is very important in dahlia culture. The fleshy potatoes are quite susceptible to rot, if the soil is too wet.

When about three sets of leaves appear on dahlia plants, pinch out the top. This produces bushiness, giving more stems and more flowers. Dahlias should be planted no closer than three or four feet apart. If your drainage is good and soil average, plant four inches deep. The plant is subject to mildew, use sulphur.

This is the time to cut back wisteria shoots to two or three buds. This encourages formation of flowers for next year. Of course if you have a very large vine, this is impossible, because you can't reach that high. If you have a bush or tree wisteria, be sure to do this pruning.

CUTTING ROSES

When cutting blooms from roses, use a sharp knife or garden scissors to avoid injuring the bush. Too much cutting can starve the bush, stunt its growth and future blooms. The love of long stem roses has caused many gardeners to weaken their bushes by removing too many leaves. This is especially hard on plants during their first season of bloom. However, this is also true of well established plants.

A general rule for cutting is: Leave at least two leaves between the cut and the main stem. Hybrid tea roses usually have three leaflets at the top of the rose stem, and below that a spray of five leaflets. When cutting blooms, make the cut just above the topmost spray of five leaflets, if the stem is weak. If the stem is pencil thick, the cut may be made longer.

OLEANDERS

Oleanders are in the height of glory now. We don't have as many whites here as they have in Baton Rouge, but three are lots of pinks and reds in bloom. This plant grows very large so probably wouldn't be a good choice for small gardens. It is a particularly good for street planting.

Oleander is a good summer blooming shrub and we don't have too much color in the warm months. It is a beautiful evergreen having a tropical look. In very cold weather they're often burned and in extreme cold they are killed. This has happened once or twice in the last 25 years in north Louisiana.

They require little care or maintenance. The plant will attain a height of 15 to 20 feet and the spread will be about the same. So in planting be sure to space them at least 20 feet apart.

Oleanders are about the easiest of all shrubs to propagate. When rooting, use hard wood, not the soft new shoots. The cutting should be one foot long. Place this in a container of water and it will put on roots. After the cutting has rooted, place it in the ground where you have spaded and pulverized the soil well. For the first year this should be a fairly shady place.

Oleanders can be rooted by placing the cuttings directly in the ground, but you'd need to water them every day unless it rained.

LAYER

Also, you can layer the oleander as you do your azaleas. Bend a stem down to the ground and place part of it beneath the soil, with the end of the shrub out. Anchor this firmly. I use a brick. This too, must be kept watered. The layering has advantages because the rooting system is still attached to the mother plant and can derive needed nourishment from it until its own roots can sustain it.

Caution! Oleanders are poisonous. But - you have to eat them in order to be affected. Also, never burn any of the oleander in a trash fire. The fumes are also said to be poisonous.

The oleander is a beautiful shrub because you have not only one stem coming out of the ground, but many.

In south Louisiana the oleanders are pruned in the spring, flowers being formed on new growth. I've not been successful with this spring pruning, or at least my plants bloom very little. I do get complete coverage of blooms when I prune immediately after the plant ceases blooming in the summer. This allows new growth to put out and harden before the frosts come. Later summer blooming is to be discouraged.

Oleander flowers come in colors of palest of pink, rose, cream, white, copper tones, crimson, purple, and variegated. There is a type with variegated foliage. Some flowers are single some double.

The bontanical name is nerium oleander.

EXTRA

Ever so often we're puzzled to know whether it's considered bad taste to wear jewelry over gloves. Well, most authorities say "never," though a few don't frown on bracelets. But rings, they'll tell you are never worn over gloves.

It is never too early to start your war on moths. One way is to see to it that all winter clothes are dry cleaned even if no stains are apparent.

No matter what the favorite "high fashion" color happens to be, make sure it's becoming to you before you decide to wear it, so we are told by the fashion makers. Even though certain hues each season rate fashion's approval as "newest," the smartest choice still is the one that is most flattering to you as an individual. If it seems to do nice things for your complexion, hair, eyes, and figure, then you're making a wise choice.

Take extra safety measures if there are children in your home. Keep cosmetics, drugs, medicines, moth balls and crystals in locked drawers. Check on paint, particularly in child's sleeping quarters and inside the entire house. Make sure all painted objects are done with paint containing less than one per cent lead.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for the week are: Monday, Mrs. Clark will show us how to make a beach bag; Tuesday, Mr. McIntyre will demonstrate selection and use of household tools; Wednesday, Dr. John Wright, from Louisiana Tech, Ruston, will make flower arrangements; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

Arson Suspected By Fire Chief In Fatal Blaze

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (UPI) — Fire Chief L. F. McDarris said Saturday arson may have been involved in a fire at the Prater Hotel Tuesday in which four persons burned to death.

He quoted a tenant who escaped the fire as saying, "'It burned so fast it had to have had some help.'"

McDarris said Chattanooga Fire Marshal Raymond Hixon would conduct an investigation beginning Monday.

"Everyone in the building feels that the fire had to have had some help, McDarris said. "A fire truck only half a block away came and the building was almost gone when it got there. The fire was so hot the men couldn't go in to save the people who got burned."

Police Chief Luther Goodwin indicated he doubted the possibility of arson. "That building was just a big fire trap," he said.

Rarick Winner In Judge Race

In the runoff primary to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Woodrow Overton, complete returns gave Rarick 1,730 votes to 1,366 for W. T. Bennett of Clinton.

In the first primary on May 6, Rarick received 1,187 votes and Bennett had 913.

A general election will be held June 27 if there is any opposition to Rarick.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,

"Whenever I gather a full skirt, my threads break when I am half way through. Just about that time, I am ready to give up sewing for good. There must be an easier way."

Mrs. K.M.

Dear Mrs. K.M.:

Fill a bobbin with either silk or nylon thread. Mark this bobbin with nail polish so you will know what it is. Keep this handy for use when gathering. These two types of thread are stronger than mercerized thread.

Gathered skirts should always be cut on the lengthwise grain of your fabric (this does not apply to border prints or embroidered fabrics which are finished at the hemline). Determine the correct length of finished skirt, add the additional length needed for hems. Now seam all sections together, leaving one seam open for zipper closing.

If the skirt is 3 or 4 yards wide, it is a good idea to divide your skirt in 2 or 3 places, instead of using one long continuous stitching for entire skirt.

Pull the bobbin threads together, for nice even gathering. The overlapping of stitches will give you a nice continuous look to the gathers. You must fit your waist band on you for the correct size, now adjust gathers to fit waistband or dress bodice.

Next week we shall talk about gathering a skirt out of a border print.

EXTRA WIDTH

"Dear Eunice,

"Please tell me how to add extra width to the back of a dress with raglan sleeves?"

Mrs. L. O.

Dear Mrs. L. O.:

This is a rather easy adjustment to make. Slash your pattern from shoulder to hem, as illustrated. Now spread the pattern ½- to 1-inch depending on how much too tight it is. In order to make the shoulder in the back coincide

FRENCH SEAM ORGANZA

"Dear Eunice,

"I would like to make a short evening coat out of silk organza for my daughter. Because this material is so thin, I am not sure just how to finish the seams. Please help me soon, she must have the coat for graduation."

Mrs. D.E.P.

Dear Mrs. D.E.P.:

Silk organza is often used with no seam finishing. Never use your pinking shears because of the transparency of the fabric. Seams may also be finished in a narrow French seam.

Do not grade your faced edges, clip, or notch, them. Instead cut the two layers of fabric evenly about ⅛ inch beyond stitching line.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Hollies Get Early Start

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The hollies are beating the merchants to it: they are getting ready for Christmas in the spring.

Cold spring apparently does not prevent good pollination, because almost all of the different kinds of holly seem to be sticking full of fruit.

Anyone who has even one bush of Chinese or Burford can safely steal a few branches of the green berries for the house or for the flower show.

MATURE FIRST

Chinese holly and its variety, Buford, mature their berries first. American holly and its many varieties follow closely, and then the native dahoon from our coasts and many of Dr. Hume's varieties like East Palatka, Hume No. 2 and Taber grow to their full size. Even in the northern parts of the Southern States, most holly berries are grown by June.

Plants that set a large crop of fruit need a great deal of fertilizer, so do not neglect your hollies. Fertilize them with a complete fertilizer immediately. If they have not already been fed once, then feed them again in about a month. Leaves and berries should be mostly mature by the 4th of July, and it is not wise to feed woody plants much later than July 15th.

SAPPY

Sappy growths produced in late summer will not survive the kind of winters we seem to be having.

Do not be surprised if a great many berries fall off your trees in late summer or early autumn. In years when there are tremendous berry crops, a good percentage of fruits may drop. This does not seem to happen as drastically on well fed trees as it does on under-nourished ones, but some dropping may occur even on these.

Leaf miners sometimes disfigure the foliage of hollies. It is too late to control these pests with DDT because they have already laid their eggs inside the new leaves, and tiny worms are ready to crawl about in there, eating their way in little channels which so disfigure holly leaves.

As with all pests, it is a case of spraying with the right thing at exactly the right time—something hard for most of us to do.

DDT will kill the little flies of leaf miners if it is sprayed on just when the flies are laying their eggs, usually in late April or early May on hollies. DDT has the disadvantage of encouraging red mites on hollies, and gardeners who are clever at handling poisonous sprays are now using one to two teaspoonfuls of a 15 per cent emulsion of dieldrin on hollies infested with leaf miners.

This chemical kills the mites even when they are inside the leaves. Dieldrin is poisonous, however, if you touch plants that have been sprayed with it, so wear gloves in handling it and also in touching hollies that have been sprayed with it.

Perhaps you will think all this worth doing to get rid of leaf miners on your choice hollies.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

The Third Dimension

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR
Guest Writer

A beautiful show was staged at the Garden Center this past week by individuals from College Heights and Welcome Garden Clubs.

Mrs. M. H. Kulcke created a lovely line arrangement using lavender into blue Hydrangea and lavender garlic blossoms. Using a low green and tan ceramic container she first placed the lavender into blue Hydrangea to form the diagonal line, bringing the larger blue blossoms to the center for the focal area. She next placed a vertical line from the center and high using the lavender garlic blossoms in a zig-zag line creating rhythm. These blended perfectly in color with the lavender into blue Hydrangea. The natural foliage of the Hydrangea was used to strengthen the line and accent the flowers. This would be very suitable for the living room.

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery designed a long - lasting arrangement inspired by a lovely piece of driftwood — triangular in form. She placed the wood upright on a natural log-round base. The lines of the wood were accented by the use of barberry branches, and strengthened by placing two large reddish green canna leaves upright to the back of the vertical wood line and one low to the right to complete the triangle. Canna buds were placed high and near the center of the wood line for interest and the focal area was created by using a cluster of Fatshedera Ivy leaves centered with a smaller cluster of variegated pittesporum. An ideal arrangement for the summer patio.

Mrs. K. R. Young displayed two lovely mass design arrangements. For the first she used a dark red bottle-type container into which she laced a large cluster of deep rose - pink daisy Rudbeckia. To this she added low in placement the deep red Coleus (chicken-gizzard). A perfect blend with the daisies and the container. The monotony was broken by the bright orange into bronze centers of the daisies. This would be lovely for the hall table. For her second arrangement Mrs. Young used Vitex in a soft green jar-type container. For filler flowers she placed lavender Stokesia and orange "black-eyed Susans. This would be very appropriate for the informal luncheon table.

Mrs. Louise Tolar used a large white into tan color sea shell for her container. This she placed on a natural wood base — irregular in design. One slender orange colored gladioli centered with yellow was placed into the left high side of the shell in a diagonal line — following the natural line of the shell. To the right and low was placed a long cluster of green grapes tinged with bronze near the center placement. These were flowing from the shell and partly resting on the base. For the focal area Mrs. Tolar used one large peach-yellow into red-orange color; and two lemons. Another lemon was placed on the base near the center area. Mrs. Tolar had the patio coffee table in mind when she designed this arrangement — also, reminiscing the vacation on the seashore.

The daylilies have been and still are so beautiful that many of us who have not had them in our own yards are inspired to place them there after seeing the gardens at this time in full bloom. If this is your plan it may be helpful to know some of the companion plants that may be used with the laylilies. The background the foreground or border, and the "associate plants" to be used in the same beds or borders are important to know when planning that new bed.

The National Gardener Magazine (May-June Issue) gives a list of these plants. Some of these are listed as follows: Border or Foreground Plants — Pygmy Japanese Barberry, Truedwarf Box (trimmed), Creeping Gardenia arborescent Ivy, Heller Japanese Holly, Shore Juniper, Lirope, and Dwarf Lilytuft.

The background plants: Wintergreen Barberry, Common Box, Sasanqua Camellia, Scotch Broom, Elaeagnus (trimmed), winged Euonymus, Chinese Holly and Burford Chinese Holly, Pineapple Guava, Youpon, Viburnum and Sweet Osmanthus (Teaolive).

Some tried and true "associate plants" to be used in the same bed with daylilies are: Orange-eye Butterfly bush, Admiral Bird (Chrysanthemum), Foxglove (Digitalis), Gerbera Daisies, Large leaf Hydrangea, Japanese Iris, Alpine Forget - me not, Stokesia Daisies, Tritonia and Ligustrum. These are just a few suggested plants. Many other woody and herbaceous perennials as well as annual flowering plants may be used.

Legion Plans New Rocket Mail Flight

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP)—The McAllen American Legion post plans to conduct another international mail-carrying rocket flight across the Rio Grande this month and officials hope things go smoother than the one 25 years ago.

On July 2, 1936, the legion fired six rockets carrying about 2,000 letters across the river. The stunt gained international publicity for the area.

The improvised wooden rockets with homemade "firecracker" fuel were fired at a spot on the river bank near here. Some misfired, some fell in the river and one struck a saloon in Reynosa, Mexico, across the river from McAllen. One was reported to have set a corn field on fire. There were no injuries. Covers from the flight now are collector's items.

The rockets fired in 1936 were made by Keith Rumbel, 15, a Sharyland, Tex., school boy. Rumbel now is a rocket scientist with Atlantic Research Corp.

Legion officials said the rockets will be fired at a narrow point on the river where there are no buildings. Plans call for the firing of 10 to 12 rockets in clusters from both sides of the river. The rockets are scheduled to strike the banks of the river.

They will be fired electrically with instant fuses and powered by powder used in making fireworks. The rockets are expected to be wooden and about three feet long.

Legion officials said orders for about $6,000 worth of covers and stamps have been received by the post.

OUTBREAKS AHEAD

Polio Shots Help To Protect Family

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thanks to the Salk vaccine, polio has been knocked down — but it's not counted out. The deadly virus still is prowling, ready to strike the unprotected. On the eve of a new polio season, here's a report on the nation's preparedness.

By FRANK CAREY
AP SCIENCE WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — You'd better hurry, but there's still time to get some "quickie" shots of Salk polio vaccine to help protect you and your family before the polio season begins in earnest.

If you begin Monday, June 12, you and your children could get in the basic three shots by July 10, figuring an interval of two weeks each between the first and second and third shots. Meantime, you'd all be building up some degree of immunity.

And, don't put it off because of any idea that the newer and quicker-acting oral poliovirus vaccine will be available in large quantities this summer.

Except for limited amounts that may become available during the summer for use in fighting epidemics, there just won't be any large quantity until the fall, says the U.S. Public Health Service.

The "quickie" course with Salk vaccine, which cuts to two weeks the usual interval of one month between the first two shots and seven months between the second and third, does not afford ideal protection. But both the Public Health Service and the vaccine-developer, Dr. Jonas E. Salk, says it's certainly better than no protection at all.

The incidence of paralytic polio has been running behind last year, which was a record low year. It's still too early to say but authorities say it's possible the unusually cool spring may have delayed the onset of the real polio season.

Here, in question and answer form, is the situation for this year's polio season.

Q. How many Americans have been vaccinated against polio?

A. As of last fall approximately 93 million, representing 60 per cent of the population under 60, had received at least one dose of Salk vaccine. This means that another 85 million still needed vaccination.

Q. Which age group is the most susceptible to polio?

A. Children aged five years and under. They account for about 43 per cent of all paralytic cases. And, about 20 per cent of such youngsters have received no vaccine at all.

Q. Are unvaccinated children in this group a danger to others?

A. They are. In addition to being the most susceptible to polio, these children are the worst spreaders of the virus.

Q. Just what are the two types of vaccine?

A. The first is the Salk vaccine —made of the three types of poliovirus. But the viruses are first killed by formaldehyde before being used in the vaccine. This type of vaccine must be given by injection — either with a needle or with thenewhypo-a needle or with the new hypo-spray that forces the vaccine through the skin by pressure. All three types of virus are contained in each shot.

The second type of vaccine is made of living, but toned-down virus. It is taken by mouth, usually as a syrup dropped in water or chocolate milk. Infants can suck the vaccine from the tip of a syringe. Three or four doses are required, each about six weeks apart.

Q. How many Americans have been immunized with oral vaccine?

A. More than half a million, in experimental programs conducted last year in Dade County, Fla., Cincinnati, and Rochester and Ithaca, N.Y.

Q. What about use this year of the oral vaccine?

A. Approximately 95,000 people in Harrisburg, Pa., and Boston received experimental doses.

Q. Who developed the live, oral vaccine?

A. Three different scientists in this country developed such vaccines: Dr. Albert Sabin of the University of Cincinnati Medical School; Dr. Herald Cox of the Lederle Laboratories, Pearl River, N.Y.; and Dr. Hilary Koprowski of the Wistar Institute, Philadelphia.

47 Governors Expected At Convention

HONOLULU (AP) — It's called a work session. But the social calendar will be the big thing at the 53rd annual National Governors' Conference June 24 - 30 at Waikiki Beach.

That is, unless work is defined as champagne luncheons in the sky and aboard catamarans, Hawaiian feasts and island tours.

Business sessions are programmed for the first three days. Each session ends at noon. Then the fun begins.

Forty-seven of the 54 eligible state and territorial governors are expected. Forty have sent reservations.

Each arriving governor will be greeted by hula girls, an orchestra and his own official automobile. The cars will be white with the governor's name emblazoned on red, white and gold license plates. Each will be chauffeured by a Honolulu police officer. A total of 150 cars have been shipped to Hawaii for the conference.

Each governor's hotel suite will have a stocked bar, two aloha shirts, two shapeless muumuus for his wife and two pairs of slippers.

Governors will have courtesy membership cards in golf clubs, yacht clubs and other social organizations.

Official entertainment includes an air tour of the Hawaiian islands, complete with champagne lunch; a catamaran ride off Waikiki, also with champagne; a luau — roast pig dinner; an afternoon on a private island; a governors' golf tournament and a six-day post-conference visit to neighboring islands.

Of course there will be special programs for the wives, including fashion shows. For the youngsters there will be babysitters and playgrounds. And for teen-agers their own meeting place with juke box and soft drinks.

The first governor is expected June 18. Twenty arriving on a chartered flight will be greeted by "the most elaborate aloha ever," convention planners said.

The state of Hawaii will pick up the room and board bill for each governor and others in his party June 24-30. The legislature appropriated $87,500, exactly $539.15 more than requested.

With such detailed planning the one thing left to speculation was whether President Kennedy would be here — he said he would, barring a last minute emergency — and where he would stay. Three hotels have reserved entire floors for the President, "just in case."

THE HOME SHIFT

Many Shades Of Mimosas

By MILDRED SWIFT

The mimosas are beautiful, now. Notice the different shades of pink, some deep, some with a yellowish cast. This tree drops dead limbs all year. If these appear in your trees, but won't fall, prune and seal the area with tree seal.

This is supposed to prolong the life of the trees whose life span is from 10 to 18 years. The average life is 12 years. Feeding in January or February will also help the tree to live longer.

But I can tell you one thing and for sure you can do all of that, but when they get ready to die they die, any time after eight years. We have one tree in our garden now 21 years old. Another one planted the same day, treated in the same manner died after eight years.

The lovely limbs, their coloring and the shape of the mimosa makes it a beautiful tree in winter when the foliage is done.

GARDEN WORK

First, if any of you have a dessert willow or chilopsis, please call me when it blooms. There are only a few of these growing in this area. It's such a satisfactory summer blooming tree. It grows not quite so large as the mimosa, it's neat growing with foliage like a willow. The flowers are about two inches long and orchid shape. The different colors are red, pink, white, orchid. The tree is evergreen.

Watch roses sending up shoots from the understock. These shoots usually have seven leaflets instead of five. Cut these off close to the bark where they leave the main roots or they'll take over your plant completely.

It is not too late to plant dahlia tubers if you can find them. Dahlias, as they cease blooming, now can be cut almost to the ground. They'll sprout again putting on new growth in the fall. Drainage is very important in dahlia culture. The fleshy potatoes are quite susceptible to rot, if the soil is too wet.

When about three sets of leaves appear on dahlia plants, pinch out the top. This produces bushiness, giving more stems and more flowers. Dahlias should be planted no closer than three or four feet apart. If your drainage is good and soil average, plant four inches deep. The plant is subject to mildew, use sulphur.

This is the time to cut back wisteria shoots to two or three buds. This encourages formation of flowers for next year. Of course if you have a very large vine, this is impossible, because you can't reach that high. If you have a bush or tree wisteria, be sure to do this pruning.

CUTTING ROSES

When cutting blooms from roses, use a sharp knife or garden scissors to avoid injuring the bush. Too much cutting can starve the bush, stunt its growth and future blooms. The love of long stem roses has caused many gardeners to weaken their bushes by removing too many leaves. This is especially hard on plants during their first season of bloom. However, this is also true of well established plants.

A general rule for cutting is: Leave at least two leaves between the cut and the main stem. Hybrid tea roses usually have three leaflets at the top of the rose stem, and below that a spray of five leaflets. When cutting blooms, make the cut just above the topmost spray of five leaflets, if the stem is weak. If the stem is pencil thick, the cut may be made longer.

OLEANDERS

Oleanders are in the height of glory now. We don't have as many whites here as they have in Baton Rouge, but three are lots of pinks and reds in bloom. This plant grows very large so probably wouldn't be a good choice for small gardens. It is a particularly good for street planting.

Oleander is a good summer blooming shrub and we don't have too much color in the warm months. It is a beautiful evergreen having a tropical look. In very cold weather they're often burned and in extreme cold they are killed. This has happened once or twice in the last 25 years in north Louisiana.

They require little care or maintenance. The plant will attain a height of 15 to 20 feet and the spread will be about the same. So in planting be sure to space them at least 20 feet apart.

Oleanders are about the easiest of all shrubs to propagate. When rooting, use hard wood, not the soft new shoots. The cutting should be one foot long. Place this in a container of water and it will put on roots. After the cutting has rooted, place it in the ground where you have spaded and pulverized the soil well. For the first year this should be a fairly shady place.

Oleanders can be rooted by placing the cuttings directly in the ground, but you'd need to water them every day unless it rained.

LAYER

Also, you can layer the oleander as you do your azaleas. Bend a stem down to the ground and place part of it beneath the soil, with the end of the shrub out. Anchor this firmly. I use a brick. This too, must be kept watered. The layering has advantages because the rooting system is still attached to the mother plant and can derive needed nourishment from it until its own roots can sustain it.

Caution! Oleanders are poisonous. But - you have to eat them in order to be affected. Also, never burn any of the oleander in a trash fire. The fumes are also said to be poisonous.

The oleander is a beautiful shrub because you have not only one stem coming out of the ground, but many.

In south Louisiana the oleanders are pruned in the spring, flowers being formed on new growth. I've not been successful with this spring pruning, or at least my plants bloom very little. I do get complete coverage of blooms when I prune immediately after the plant ceases blooming in the summer. This allows new growth to put out and harden before the frosts come. Later summer blooming is to be discouraged.

Oleander flowers come in colors of palest of pink, rose, cream, white, copper tones, crimson, purple, and variegated. There is a type with variegated foliage. Some flowers are single some double.

The bontanical name is nerium oleander.

EXTRA

Ever so often we're puzzled to know whether it's considered bad taste to wear jewelry over gloves. Well, most authorities say "never," though a few don't frown on bracelets. But rings, they'll tell you are never worn over gloves.

It is never too early to start your war on moths. One way is to see to it that all winter clothes are dry cleaned even if no stains are apparent.

No matter what the favorite "high fashion" color happens to be, make sure it's becoming to you before you decide to wear it, so we are told by the fashion makers. Even though certain hues each season rate fashion's approval as "newest," the smartest choice still is the one that is most flattering to you as an individual. If it seems to do nice things for your complexion, hair, eyes, and figure, then you're making a wise choice.

Take extra safety measures if there are children in your home. Keep cosmetics, drugs, medicines, moth balls and crystals in locked drawers. Check on paint, particularly in child's sleeping quarters and inside the entire house. Make sure all painted objects are done with paint containing less than one per cent lead.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for the week are: Monday, Mrs. Clark will show us how to make a beach bag; Tuesday, Mr. McIntyre will demonstrate selection and use of household tools; Wednesday, Dr. John Wright, from Louisiana Tech, Ruston, will make flower arrangements; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

Arson Suspected By Fire Chief In Fatal Blaze

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (UPI) — Fire Chief L. F. McDarris said Saturday arson may have been involved in a fire at the Prater Hotel Tuesday in which four persons burned to death.

He quoted a tenant who escaped the fire as saying, " 'It burned so fast it had to have had some help.' "

McDarris said Chattanooga Fire Marshal Raymond Hixon would conduct an investigation beginning Monday.

"Everyone in the building feels that the fire had to have had some help, McDarris said. "A fire truck only half a block away came and the building was almost gone when it got there. The fire was so hot the men couldn't go in to save the people who got burned."

Police Chief Luther Goodwin indicated he doubted the possibility of arson. "That building was just a big fire trap," he said.

Rarick Winner In Judge Race

In the runoff primary to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Woodrow Overton, complete returns gave Rarick 1,730 votes to 1,366 for W. T. Bennett of Clinton.

In the first primary on May 6, Rarick received 1,187 votes and Bennett had 913.

A general election will be held June 27 if there is any opposition to Rarick.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,

"Whenever I gather a full skirt, my threads break when I am half way through. Just about that time, I am ready to give up sewing for good. There must be an easier way."

Mrs. K.M.

Dear Mrs. K.M.:

Fill a bobbin with either silk or nylon thread. Mark this bobbin with nail polish so you will know what it is. Keep this handy for use when gathering. These two types of thread are stronger than mercerized thread.

Gathered skirts should always be cut on the lengthwise grain of your fabric (this does not apply to border prints or embroidered fabrics which are finished at the hemline). Determine the correct length of finished skirt, add the additional length needed for hems. Now seam all sections together, leaving one seam open for zipper closing.

If the skirt is 3 or 4 yards wide, it is a good idea to divide your skirt in 2 or 3 places, instead of using one long continuous - stitching for entire skirt.

First row of machine stitching should be made on the RIGHT side of your fabric, ⅝ inch from cut edge, using about 10 stitches per inch. Second row of stitching should be ¼ inch from cut edge.

Pull the bobbin threads together, for nice even gathering. The overlapping of stitches will give you a nice continuous look to the gathers. You must fit your waist band on you for the correct size, now adjust gathers to fit waistband or dress bodice.

Next week we shall talk about gathering a skirt out of a border print.

EXTRA WIDTH

"Dear Eunice,

"Please tell me how to add extra width to the back of a dress with raglan sleeves?"

Mrs. L. O.

Dear Mrs. L. O.:

This is a rather easy adjustment to make. Slash your pattern from shoulder to hem, as illustrated. Now spread the pattern ½- to 1-inch depending on how much too tight it is. In order to make the shoulder in the back coincide with the shoulder in front, take a small dart at back of shoulder, about 2 inches from neck edge.

FRENCH SEAM ORGANZA

"Dear Eunice,

"I would like to make a short evening coat out of silk organza for my daughter. Because this material is so thin, I am not sure just how to finish the seams. Please help me soon, she must have the coat for graduation."

Mrs. D.E.P.

Dear Mrs. D.E.P.:

Silk organza is often used with no seam finishing. Never use your pinking shears because of the transparency of the fabric. Seams may also be finished in a narrow French seam.

Do not grade your faced edges, clip, or notch, them. Instead cut the two layers of fabric evenly about ⅛ inch beyond stitching line.

Canna buds were placed high and near the center of the wood line for interest and the focal area was created by using a cluster of Fatshedera Ivy leaves centered with a smaller cluster of variegated pittesporum. An ideal arrangement for the summer patio.

Mrs. K. R. Young displayed two lovely mass design arrangements. For the first she used a dark red bottle-type container into which she laced a large cluster of deep rose - pink daisy Rudbeckia. To this she added low in placement the deep red Coleus (chicken-gizzard). A perfect blend with the daisies and the container. The monotony was broken by the bright orange into bronze centers of the daisies. This would be lovely for the hall table. For her second arrangement Mrs. Young used Vitex in a soft green jar-type container. For filler flowers she placed lavender Stokesia and orange "black-eyed Susans. This would be very appropriate for the informal luncheon table.

Mrs. Louise Tolar used a large white into tan color sea shell for her container. This she placed on a natural wood base — irregular in design. One slender orange colored gladioli centered with yellow was placed into the left high side of the shell in a diagonal line — following the natural line of the shell. To the right and low was placed a long cluster of green grapes tinged with bronze near the center placement. These were flowing from the shell and partly resting on the base. For the focal area Mrs. Tolar used one large peach-yellow into red-orange color; and two lemons. Another lemon was placed on the base near the center area. Mrs. Tolar had the patio coffee table in mind when she designed this arrangement — also, reminiscing the vacation on the seashore.

The daylilies have been and still are so beautiful that many of us who have not had them in our own yards are inspired to place them there after seeing the gardens at this time in full bloom. If this is your plan it may be helpful to know some of the companion plants that may be used with the laylilies. The background the foreground or border, and the "associate plants" to be used in the same beds or borders are important to know when planning that new bed.

The National Gardener Magazine (May-June Issue) gives a list of these plants. Some of these are listed as follows: Border or Foreground Plants — Pygmy Japanese Barberry, Truedwarf Box (trimmed), Creeping Gardenia arborescent Ivy, Heller Japanese Holly, Shore Juniper, Lirope, and Dwarf Lilytuft.

The background plants: Wintergreen Barberry, Common Box, Sasanqua Camellia, Scotch Broom, Elaeagnus (trimmed), winged Euonymus, Chinese Holly and Burford Chinese Holly, Pineapple Guava, Youpon, Viburnum and Sweet Osmanthus (Teaolive).

Some tried and true "associate plants" to be used in the same bed with daylilies are: Orange-eye Butterfly bush, Admiral Bird (Chrysanthemum), Foxglove (Digitalis), Gerbera Daisies, Large leaf Hydrangea, Japanese Iris, Alpine Forget - me not, Stokesia Daisies, Tritonia and Ligustrum. These are just a few suggested plants. Many other woody and herbaceous perennials as well as annual flowering plants may be used.

Legion Plans New Rocket Mail Flight

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP)—The McAllen American Legion post plans to conduct another international mail-carrying rocket flight across the Rio Grande this month and officials hope things go smoother than the one 25 years ago.

Plans call for the flight to take place between June 23 and July 1 at a spot south of Mission, on the international river.

On July 2, 1936, the legion fired six rockets carrying about 2,000 letters across the river. The stunt gained international publicity for the area.

The improvised wooden rockets with homemade "firecracker" fuel were fired at a spot on the river bank near here. Some misfired, some fell in the river and one struck a saloon in Reynosa, Mexico, across the river from McAllen. One was reported to have set a corn field on fire. There were no injuries. Covers from the flight now are collector's items.

The rockets fired in 1936 were made by Keith Rumbel, 15, a Sharyland, Tex., school boy. Rumbel now is a rocket scientist with Atlantic Research Corp.

Legion officials said the rockets will be fired at a narrow point on the river where there are no buildings. Plans call for the firing of 10 to 12 rockets in clusters from both sides of the river. The rockets are scheduled to strike the banks of the river.

They will be fired electrically with instant fuses and powered by powder used in making fireworks. The rockets are expected to be wooden and about three feet long.

Legion officials said Mexico had given approval for the firings.

Legion officials said orders for about $6,000 worth of covers and stamps have been received by the post.

JFK Gives Tough Task To Freeman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty-nine days ago President Kennedy gave Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman a problem to solve. Freeman doesn't have the answer yet. In fact, he found it so tough that this week he created a special fask force of farm experts to work on it behind closed doors.

What Kennedy wants to do is reduce the prices American mills must pay for cotton while government price-proppers are pushing up the prices American cotton growers receive.

—American manufacturers now must pay 69 cents for the amount of cotton it takes to make a bedsheet that retails for about $2.21.

—Foreign manufacturers can come to this country and buy the same cotton for 55 cents provided it is shipped out for foreign processing.

The 14 cents represents the difference between the going price for cotton in world markets and the level at which the government is propping market prices in this country for the benefit of American growers.

American cotton would be priced out of foreign markets if it were not for the fact that the government cuts the price by paying an export subsidy.

The subsidy now amounts to 6 cents a pound. It is scheduled to rise to 8.5 cents on Aug. 1, when and higher price support rates go into effect for the 1961 crop.

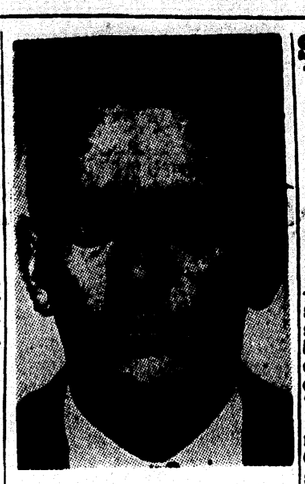
The subsidy is costing American taxpayers more than $200 million a year. The taxpayers, of course, include the housewives who pay for higher-cost cotton goods, and owners of American textile mills.

The textile men are not happy with this arrangement, particularly since some of the cotton sold abroad at lower prices comes back in the form of competing textile goods.

Monroyan Booked By City Police

A 27-year-old Monroe man was booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and a Negro was booked on three traffic counts yesterday. Monroe police Chief James C. Kelly Jr. said that Clyde Mareau of 800 McGuire was charged with DWI and released under a $435 bond.

Negro Willie Briggs, 31 of 3611 Carver St., was charged with failure to yield-right-of-way, reckless driving and hit and run driving.



WILLIAM H. Covington, above, 28, a clerk at the National Security Agency, is being sought by Maryland State Police. Covington, of Laurel, Md., has been missing since June 5, police said. (AP Wirephoto)

Houston Grocer Asks Damages

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A Houston grocer filed an injunction petition Saturday and asked $110,000 in damages from a Negro anti-segregation group he said tried to pressure him into firing five white employes.

Louis Orlando, owner of Orlando's Supermarket, filed the suit against the Progressive Youth Association and Eldrewey Stearnes, its director. Orlando said Stearnes demanded that the five white employes be fired and replaced with Negroes.

Orlando said the group has picketed his store—in a predominantly Negro area—since he refused to fire the employes Tuesday.

The man said he employes 19 Negroes in his store.

FEARED DROWNED

RANGOON, Burma (UPI)—Fifty five passengers are feared to have drowned when a 2,000-ton passenger - cargo vessel capsized during a heavy storm about 80 miles south of Moulmein Wednesday night, according to reports reaching here Friday.

Of the 80 passengers and crew aboard the government-operated Aungteza when it sailed from Moulmein earlier in the day, only 25 managed to reach the shore. The vessel went down about 12 miles from the coast near the mouth of a small river named Ye.

SIX OTHERS HURT

Five Persons Die In Florida Crash

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. (UPI)—Five persons were killed and six others hurt Saturday when a station wagon sideswiped a lumber truck and then rammed head-on into an automobile in a crash described by a veteran deputy as "the worst I ever have seen."

All of the dead and injured, members of two families from Georgia, were occupants of the station wagon and the car. The Negro truck driver, his wife, and their small daughter escaped injury.

The wreck occurred about dawn on U.S. Highway 19 in rural Citrus County five miles north of here. Crystal River is about 80 miles north of Tampa.

The Highway Patrol identified the dead as W. L. Sparks, 30, of (112 Castlewood Dr.) Marietta, Ga.; his wife, Wilma Jean, 27; and their daughter, Cheri, 6; Margaret Yancey Littleton, 37, of (1016 37th st.) Columbus, Ga. and her mother, Mrs. Etta Mae Yancey, 62, Columbus.

Two sons of the Sparks couple, Richard 9 and Jimmy, 7 were injured along with Harry Lee Littleton, 40, husband of one of the dead women; his son, Wayne, 12 and his two daughters, Ann, 14 and Sandra, 17.

All of the injured were taken to Citrus Memorial Hospital at Inverness. Littleton was believed the most seriously hurt.

Citrus County Deputy Herbert Williams said Sparks was driving the station wagon north and the truck and the Littleton car were southbound. The car was immediately behind the truck.

"The bodies were scattered out so bad we just couldn't tell (at first) who was in which car," Williams said. "There were four or five children slung out along the road when I got there. All the people pinned in the cars were dead. One adult died on the way to the hospital."

Williams, the first officers at the scene, said he began giving first aid to the injured and was joined by a physician who saw the wreck and stopped. Another doctor, summoned from Crystal River, arrived later.

There were so many people hurt we had to load five or six of them in the first ambulance," Williams said. He said another ambulance arrived to take the dead to a funeral home here.

Shreveport Man Kills His Wife, Then Himself

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A Shreveport man ended a long family dispute on a downtown street corner Saturday, shooting his wife twice with a pistol and then shooting himself.

Dead are Andrew Jackson Deese, 38, and Mrs. Gwendolyn Deese, 36.

A witness said Deese got out of his truck as his wife left a restaurant where she worked and shot her twice. He then put his revolver to his temple and shot once.

Police records indicated that Deese was placed in jail on charges filed by his wife. He was accused of striking her and burning all her clothing.

A son by previous marriage, John Dannie Fleck, 17, and his mother reportedly moved to another address after the incident. Fleck said his step-father shot at his mother once before and they had frequent furious arguments.

Surgeon Orders Graham To Bed

MANCHESTER, England (AP) —Dr. Billy Graham was ordered back to bed Saturday night after new twinges of throat trouble left him hoarse at the end of a sermon.

A Manchester throat surgeon, Dr. R. W. Wise, issued the order after the American evangelist had turned out in wet, cold weather to address a crowd of 33,000 at the city's football stadium.

The meeting marked the close of the second week of Graham's threeweek northern England crusade—a crusade on which he has been plagued by a throat infection.

Tax Agents Seize Chips Of Gamblers

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents Saturday seized $18,000 of a gambler's chips before the amazed stares of scores of spectators.

Dalmon Davis, IRS director in Reno, said the seizure was authorized in a seldom-used section of the IRS code.

He said the gambler is a former Oklahoman now residing in Las Vegas, Nev. The man's name was withheld. He was not arrested.

Davis said no court action was required for the seizure. He said he was prohibited by law from disclosing the reasons for invoking the seizure procedure.

The gambler was playing 21, also known as blackjack, with $100 chips. A crowd had gathered to watch as he placed $500 limit bets at each of the seven player stations around the table.

IRS agents walked up and informed the gambler the government had closed outs his taxable year as of now, and the chips were being taken for taxes. Davis said the man had been notified previously that such a tax assessment would be made against him.

Gambling is legal in Nevada.

Theft By Check Charges Are Filed

Sheriff was taken into custody at a local hotel after a warrant was issued for his arrest by Ruston authorities. His bond was set at $250 and he was transferred to the parish jail.

James Hagerty Visits Tokyo On Business Trip

TOKYO (AP) — James C. Hagerty, stormed by leftist mobs a year ago in Tokyo as press secretary for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, arrived Sunday on a business trip.

His quiet arrival marked a sharp contrast to last June's visit when his car was rocked and battered by numerous leftist demonstrators who opposed the Japan-U.S. security treaty. He was finally rescued by a U.S. Marine helicopter.

At that time he visited Japan to make advance plans for Eisenhower's state visit—later canceled for fear of violence against the President.

Tower Says South Moves Toward GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen.-elect John G. Tower, R-Tex., Saturday described his recent victory as a "giant stride toward a two-party system" in the South and a sign that conservative Southern Democrats are moving toward the GOP.

He said his runoff victory over Sen. William A. Blakley, D-Tex., "has given heart to conservatives all over the South who feel they should switch to the Republican Party, but for traditional reasons, or practical reasons, felt that perhaps they better go ahead and stay with the Democrats."

The 35-year-old former professor made the statements on a radio-TV program with Sen. Jack R. Miller, R-Iowa, for Iowa stations. Tower not only will replace the 45-year-old Miller as the Senate's youngest Republican but will be the chamber's youngest member when he takes office later this month.

His victory, Tower said, "is an indication that Southern conservatives are beginning to move in the direction of the Republican Party, because Southerners generally believe in the preservation of the free institutions that have served us so well, (and) that time and experience have proved to be so valuable."

"Therefore, he said, "I think the Republican Party has a very excellent future in the South."

Girl Scout News

Troops ending the regular meeting year with overnights at Pine Wood include Troops 23, 26 and 34. Mrs. Gene Spatafora, leader of Troop 34, now experienced campers, recommends, a fun week-end camp experience as a culmination of a year's work.

Girls who are specializing in camping these days are the ones known as Roundup campers. Girls who are now Senior Scouts or who will be in the fall are possible candidates for the patrol which the council will approve for the Senior Roundup in '62. Girls are encouraged to participate in the training, most of which is being held this summer.

Two nights at Pine Wood, setting up tents, cooking on charcoal, working in patrols, was the program last week for 26 girls. Mrs. Charles Overton is Round-up trainer for the council and is being assisted by Mrs. N. L. Huckabee. Jateen Kelly, Tonette Albright and Mickie Varnado were patrol leaders for the event.

Arriving at camp, the girls chose a section for their campsite and before long had an orderly row of green tents set up and ditched, grease pit dug, shelf for water cooler and tool rack lashed, cooking and eating areas defined. At the entrance to the camp a group set up a temporary flag pole, cutting a small tree that was too crowded to develop properly, attaching a pulley at top and a halyard on which to run up the flag. Raising the pole, the girls tied four guy ropes, which they pegged down.

Cooking with charcoal briquettes, as will be done at Roundup, was a new experience since Scouts couldn't use lighter fluid and had to rely on strips of milk cartons. Heating dish water after the meal and washing dishes in a sanitary manner was part of the training.

Even what looks like work to a casual observer is fun for campers. Activities included hikes, impromptu dramatics and song fests, around a campfire. A unit for Senior Scouts at day camp will include a similar experience, and a five-day camp is planned for August.

Girls participating were Tonette Albright, Bonnie Baldo, Carolyn Brooks, Elaine Butler, Mary Clampit, Martha Clampit, Jamie Corley, Carol Culpepper, Connie Davis, Jane Edwards, Mary Einhorn, Susan Ellington, Milann Gannaway, Diane Halley, Robbie Hicks, Loretta Jones, Jateen Kelly, Pam Kull, Becky Middleton, Carole Overton, Becky Parkerson, Deas Parrish, Gayle Smith, Linda Upshaw, Mickie Varnado, Jayne Wallace.

The sewing class scheduled for the agricultural building tomorrow has been postponed until the first week in August. Girls enrolled should phone the office to indicate whether they plan to attend. The class scheduled for the 19-23 will go on as planned.

This week is the last for registration and completion of payments on fees for the first session of day camp. The first training for staff is next week, June 21. Volunteers are needed.

U.S. OFFICIALS SAY

Spaeth To Head Latin Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will appoint scholar-diplomat Carl B. Spaeth as assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs next week in a move to cure chaos in Latin American policy.

Official sources said Saturday that Spaeth will be given direct responsibility for carrying out Kennedy's $600 million "alliance for progress" plan for the hemisphere.

The administration conducted an unprecedented four-month talent hunt before selecting Spaeth, 54-year-old dean of Stanford University's law school and a former Rhodes scholar.

Spaeth will bring to the job considerable experience in Latin American affairs. He was assistant coordinator in the Office of Inter-American Affairs in 1940. Later he served as a special State Department assistant for American republic affairs under President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The administration has come under increasing congressional and editorial criticism for letting policy be made outside regular State Department channels.

Many officials of the State Department's Latin American division have complained privately that they were being sidestepped by Adolph A. Berle Jr., head of a special interdepartmental task force.

Several members of the White House staff also have been given wide responsibility for dealing directly with Latin American diplomats. These have included presidential assistants Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., and Richard N. Goodwin.

Top administration officials have defended this White House participation on grounds that it was Kennedy's team, rather than the professional diplomats, who drafted the President's Latin American program.

Morrison May Get Ambassador Post

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Mayor deLesseps S. Morrison Saturday said Secretary of State Dean Rusk has asked him to consider the post of U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States.

Morrison said Rusk asked him to consider the OAS post in lieu of the job of assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs.

Morrison along with others has been considered for the latter job. Reports from Washington Saturday said President Kennedy is understood to have named Carl Speath, Stanford University law School dean, to the assistant secretary post.

Morrison said Rusk contacted him Friday night and told him he felt Morrison's background and friendships in Latin America best qualified him for the OAS ambassadorship.

The mayor added, "I want to emphasize that no decision has yet been reached by President Kennedy or by me on the position of U.S. ambassador to the OAS."

JFK Gives Tough Task To Freeman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty-nine days ago President Kennedy gave Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman a problem to solve.

Freeman doesn't have the answer yet. In fact, he found it so tough that this week he created a special fask force of farm experts to work on it behind closed doors.

Housewives have a stake in the solution because:

—American manufacturers now must pay 69 cents for the amount of cotton it takes to make a bedsheet that retails for about $2.21.

—Foreign manufacturers can come to this country and buy the same cotton for 55 cents provided it is shipped out for foreign processing.

The 14 cents represents the difference between the going price for cotton in world markets and the level at which the government is propping market prices in this country for the benefit of American growers.

American cotton would be priced out of foreign markets if it were not for the fact that the government cuts the price by paying an export subsidy.

The subsidy now amounts to 6 cents a pound. It is scheduled to rise to 8.5 cents on Aug. 1, when and higher price support rates go into effect for the 1961 crop.

The subsidy is costing American taxpayers more than $200 million a year. The taxpayers, of course, include the housewives who pay for higher-cost cotton goods, and owners of American textile mills.

The textile men are not happy with this arrangement, particularly since some of the cotton sold abroad at lower prices comes back in the form of competing textile goods.

Monroyan Booked By City Police

A 27-year-old Monroe man was booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and a Negro was booked on three traffic counts yesterday. Monroe police Chief James C. Kelly Jr. said that Clyde Mareau of 800 McGuire was charged with DWI and released under a $435 bond.

Negro Willie Briggs, 31 of 3611 Carver St., was charged with failure to yield-right-of-way, reckless driving and hit and run driving.

Houston Grocer Asks Damages

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A Houston grocer filed an injunction petition Saturday and asked $110,000 in damages from a Negro anti-segregation group he said tried to pressure him into firing five white employes.

Louis Orlando, owner of Orlando's Supermarket, filed the suit against the Progressive Youth Association and Eldrewey Stearnes, its director. Orlando said Stearnes demanded that the five white employes be fired and replaced with Negroes.

Orlando said the group has picketed his store—in a predominantly Negro area—since he refused to fire the employes Tuesday.

The man said he employes 19 Negroes in his store.

FEARED DROWNED

RANGOON, Burma (UPI)—Fifty five passengers are feared to have drowned when a 2,000-ton passenger - cargo vessel capsized during a heavy storm about 80 miles south of Moulmein Wednesday night, according to reports reaching here Friday.

Of the 80 passengers and crew aboard the government-operated Aungteza when it sailed from Moulmein earlier in the day, only 25 managed to reach the shore. The vessel went down about 12 miles from the coast near the mouth of a small river named Ye.

SIX OTHERS HURT

Five Persons Die In Florida Crash

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. (UPI) —Five persons were killed and six others hurt Saturday when a station wagon sideswiped a lumber truck and then rammed head-on into an automobile in a crash described by a veteran deputy as "the worst I ever have seen."

All of the dead and injured, members of two families from Georgia, were occupants of the station wagon and the car. The Negro truck driver, his wife, and their small daughter escaped injury.

The wreck occurred about dawn on U.S. Highway 19 in rural Citrus County five miles north of here. Crystal River is about 80 miles north of Tampa.

The Highway Patrol identified the dead as W. L. Sparks, 30, of (112 Castlewood Dr.) Marietta, Ga.; his wife, Wilma Jean, 27; and their daughter, Cheri, 6; Margaret Yancey Littleton, 37, of (1016 37th st.) Columbus, Ga. and her mother, Mrs. Etta Mae Yancey, 62, Columbus.

Two sons of the Sparks couple, Richard 9 and Jimmy, 7 were injured along with Harry Lee Littleton, 40, husband of one of the dead women; his son, Wayne, 12 and his two daughters, Ann, 14 and Sandra, 17.

All of the injured were taken to Citrus Memorial Hospital at Inverness. Littleton was believed the most seriously hurt.

Citrus County Deputy Herbert Williams said Sparks was driving the station wagon north and the truck and the Littleton car were southbound. The car was immediately behind the truck.

"The bodies were scattered out so bad we just couldn't tell (at first) who was in which car," Williams said. "There were four or five children slung out along the road when I got there. All the people pinned in the cars were dead. One adult died on the way to the hospital."

Williams, the first officers at the scene, said he began giving first aid to the injured and was joined by a physician who saw the wreck and stopped. Another doctor, summoned from Crystal River, arrived later.

There were so many people hurt we had to load five or six of them in the first ambulance," Williams said. He said another ambulance arrived to take the dead to a funeral home here.

Shreveport Man Kills His Wife, Then Himself

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A Shreveport man ended a long family dispute on a downtown street corner Saturday, shooting his wife twice with a pistol and then shooting himself.

Dead are Andrew Jackson Deese, 38, and Mrs. Gwendolyn Deese, 36.

A witness said Deese got out of his truck as his wife left a restaurant where she worked and shot her twice. He then put his revolver to his temple and shot once.

The shooting climaxed a stormy three-year marriage whose path included several trips to the police station—the last time on June 2.

Police records indicated that Deese was placed in jail on charges filed by his wife. He was accused of striking her and burning all her clothing.

A son by previous marriage, John Dannie Fleck, 17, and his mother reportedly moved to another address after the incident. Fleck said his step-father shot at his mother once before and they had frequent furious arguments.

Surgeon Orders Graham To Bed

MANCHESTER, England (AP) —Dr. Billy Graham was ordered back to bed Saturday night after new twinges of throat trouble left him hoarse at the end of a sermon.

A Manchester throat surgeon, Dr. R. W. Wise, issued the order after the American evangelist had turned out in wet, cold weather to address a crowd of 33,000 at the city's football stadium.

The meeting marked the close of the second week of Graham's threeweek northern England crusade—a crusade on which he has been plagued by a throat infection.

Tax Agents Seize Chips Of Gamblers

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents Saturday seized $18,000 of a gambler's chips before the amazed stares of scores of spectators.

Dalmon Davis, IRS director in Reno, said the seizure was authorized in a seldom-used section of the IRS code.

He said the gambler is a former Oklahoman now residing in Las Vegas, Nev. The man's name was withheld. He was not arrested.

Davis said no court action was required for the seizure. He said he was prohibited by law from disclosing the reasons for invoking the seizure procedure.

The gambler was playing 21, also known as blackjack, with $100 chips. A crowd had gathered to watch as he placed $500 limit bets at each of the seven player stations around the table.

IRS agents walked up and informed the gambler the government had closed outs his taxable year as of now, and the chips were being taken for taxes. Davis said the man had been notified previously that such a tax assessment would be made against him.

Gambling is legal in Nevada.

Theft By Check Charges Are Filed

Sheriff was taken into custody at a local hotel after a warrant was issued for his arrest by Ruston authorities. His bond was set at $250 and he was transferred to the parish jail.

James Hagerty Visits Tokyo On Business Trip

TOKYO (AP) — James C. Hagerty, stormed by leftist mobs a year ago in Tokyo as press secretary for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, arrived Sunday on a business trip.

His quiet arrival marked a sharp contrast to last June's visit when his car was rocked and battered by numerous leftist demonstrators who opposed the Japan-U.S. security treaty. He was finally rescued by a U.S. Marine helicopter.

At that time he visited Japan to make advance plans for Eisenhower's state visit—later canceled for fear of violence against the President.

Tower Says South Moves Toward GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen.-elect John G. Tower, R-Tex., Saturday described his recent victory as a "giant stride toward a two-party system" in the South and a sign that conservative Southern Democrats are moving toward the GOP.

He said his runoff victory over Sen. William A. Blakley, D-Tex., "has given heart to conservatives all over the South who feel they should switch to the Republican Party, but for traditional reasons, or practical reasons, felt that perhaps they better go ahead and stay with the Democrats."

The 35-year-old former professor made the statements on a radio-TV program with Sen. Jack R. Miller, R-Iowa, for Iowa stations. Tower not only will replace the 45-year-old Miller as the Senate's youngest Republican but will be the chamber's youngest member when he takes office later this month.

His victory, Tower said, "is an indication that Southern conservatives are beginning to move in the direction of the Republican Party, because Southerners generally believe in the preservation of the free institutions that have served us so well, (and) that time and experience have proved to be so valuable."

"Therefore, he said, "I think the Republican Party has a very excellent future in the South."

CREAM AND SUGAR SAM?

Sam, a handsome cocker spaniel belonging to Homer Zimmerman, got in on the routine one morning during breakfast. Now it's a regular habit — the Zimmerman's make an extra cup or two for Sam's benefit.

U.S. OFFICIALS SAY

Spaeth To Head Latin Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will appoint scholar-diplomat Carl B. Spaeth as assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs next week in a move to cure chaos in Latin American policy.

Official sources said Saturday that Spaeth will be given direct responsibility for carrying out Kennedy's $600 million "alliance for progress" plan for the hemisphere.

The administration conducted an unprecedented four-month talent hunt before selecting Spaeth, 54-year-old dean of Stanford University's law school and a former Rhodes scholar.

Spaeth will bring to the job considerable experience in Latin American affairs. He was assistant coordinator in the Office of Inter-American Affairs in 1940. Later he served as a special State Department assistant for American republic affairs under President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The administration has come under increasing congressional and editorial criticism for letting policy be made outside regular State Department channels.

Many officials of the State Department's Latin American division have complained privately that they were being sidestepped by Adolph A. Berle Jr., head of a special interdepartmental task force.

Several members of the White House staff also have been given wide responsibility for dealing directly with Latin American diplomats. These have included presidential assistants Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., and Richard N. Goodwin.

Top administration officials have defended this White House participation on grounds that it was Kennedy's team, rather than the professional diplomats, who drafted the President's Latin American program.

Morrison May Get Ambassador Post

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Mayor deLesseps S. Morrison Saturday said Secretary of State Dean Rusk has asked him to consider the post of U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States.

Morrison said Rusk asked him to consider the OAS post in lieu of the job of assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs.

Morrison along with others has been considered for the latter job. Reports from Washington Saturday said President Kennedy is understood to have named Carl Speath, Stanford University law School dean, to the assistant secretary post.

Morrison said Rusk contacted him Friday night and told him he felt Morrison's background and friendships in Latin America best qualified him for the OAS ambassadorship.

The mayor added, "I want to emphasize that no decision has yet been reached by President Kennedy or by me on the position of U.S. ambassador to the OAS."
